WHEAT LEAGUE

Continued from page one. The balance of the United States by water transportation from Portland. This means different varieties and different methods, because all present varieties are suitable for export, but are not always suitable for United States use in large quantities. Efforts are being made to get prominent Pacific Coast millers to discuss this problem.

The remaining committee, the one on Farm Finance, with Chas. Harth of The Dalles as chairman and H. B. Pinkerton of Moro as vice chairman, will have plenty of problems because farm financing has almost entirely changed in this district from a county bank basis to the utilization of huge national credit organizations which are receiving so much publicity at the present time. How to most effectively use these organizations will be up for discussion. The Government has made it possible for farmers to set up production credit associations and leading wheat farmers thinking about these are hesitating between local associations in each county or one large one in the Columbia Basin with headquarters at some central point in Eastern Oregon. At the meeting in Spokane last Thursday, it was definitely stated that the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation which has been loaning money to farmers for production purposes would be done away with and that it would be up to the farmers to form production credit associations under the new regulations if they wanted outside financial assistance. The Commissioner's Loan and the Home Loan which the Government has made available whereby farmers and others can ask for an adjustment on their debts and get this type of loan should be given serious consideration by all Eastern Oregon wheat farmers as it might help them in getting their business on a sound financial basis.

In addition to these discussions there will be talks given before the entire meeting on the wheat production control plan, the new finance setup, cooperative buying of gasoline, oils, mixed feeds, lumber, fuel, machinery, etc., subsidized wheat exporting, new developments in experimental work, Columbia River navigation and new development under which Pacific northwest wheats must be sold.

Watch this paper for the detailed program in the near future.

OREGON DAIRY COUNCIL

THE PUMPKIN AND THE SQUASH

The pumpkin and its close relative, the squash, are very useful foods and are important in the winter store of food. Since they are usually inexpensive and have a high food value in that they like all yellow flecked vegetables, are moderately high in Vitamin A, the pumpkin and the squash become important in the diet of limited cost. It is Vitamin A, that helps to build resistance to infections, to maintain vitality and to stimulate growth. The chief value of these foods, however, is in their carbohydrate content as well as some minerals of value.

Pumpkin pie is undoubtedly the most popular pumpkin dish, but pumpkin, like squash may be baked or mashed and used as a vegetable. For mashed squash or pumpkin, boil or steam the pieces, and when tender, mash and season generously with butter, salt and pepper. Baked pumpkin or squash in the shell, pumpkin corn bread, squash rolls or biscuits or pumpkin custard are a few other possibilities besides the pumpkin pie and the squash pie.

Some pumpkin and squash recipes are:

Pumpkin Custard

One pint mashed pumpkin, cooked or canned
Two eggs
One cup milk
One teaspoon salt
One-eighth tsp each pepper, mace and cinnamon.
Beat the eggs slightly and add the pumpkin and other ingredients. Pour into a greased baking dish, set in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven (350 F) for about an hour or until set in the center. Or bake in individual baking custard cups for a shorter time.

To vary the flavor, omit the cinnamon and mace, and sprinkle the top of the custard with grated cheese before baking.

Pumpkin Corn Bread

One and one-half cups mashed pumpkin, cooked or canned
One and one-half cups milk
One and one-half cups corn meal
One-half cup flour
Two eggs
Six tsp. baking powder
One and one-half to 2 tsp. salt
Three tablespoons melted butter
Mix the ingredients in order given and pour the batter in greased baking pan and bake for 40 minutes in hot oven. Cut in squares and serve hot with butter.

Winter Wheat Outlook

Not Favorable

Less favorable conditions for winter wheat in the United States and lower estimates of the Australian crop were strengthening factors in the general wheat situation. Dust storms damaged wheat in the Northern Great Plains and lack of moisture retarded growth in the Northwestern districts of Kansas. The crop made fair to good progress in the Ohio valley and in most eastern areas. The official estimate of the Australian crop was reduced to 169,000,000 bushels with trade figures around 15,000,000 bushels below this forecast. Trade estimates of the Argentine crop indicate that an output around 10,000,000 bushels over last season.

High tariffs and drastic trade regulations continue to be an important influence in the world wheat trade. The German government has assumed control of all agriculture, including production, marketing, processing and price regulation. Prices are definitely fixed in the various marketing areas. A tariff of $2.79 1/2 per bushel on wheat imports at current exchange is effective and millers are required to use 97 percent of domestic wheat, except under special provisions. Italy requires the use of 99 percent of native wheat in milling mixtures and has a duty of $1.84 per bushel on imported wheat. France has forbidden the use of any foreign wheat in milling for domestic consumption and has a minimum tariff of $1.45 per bushel. The fixed prices on local French markets have been abnormally high, with increases to become effective at stated intervals during the marketing season. An export subsidy amounting to about $1.46 per bushel at current exchange is allowed on all wheat exported. The Spanish government has fixed minimum prices, ranging from $1.83 to $2.16. In the exporting areas of the Danube Basin, price supporting measures include Government purchases and payment of taxes in grain. In the ex-European export areas outside of the United States trade regulations have shown little change during the past crop year.
