There is real satisfaction to the home maker who can use her culinary imagination with simple economy foods which will turn them into appealing and savory dishes. Improving the flavor of food and adding to its good looks requires some thought and ingenuity in the part of the meal planner.

With the need for low cost meals, staple foods are more in demand, and there is no end to the accommodating ways they may be fitted into the menu. With plenty of fresh milk, whole grain cereals, butter, eggs, cheese, inexpensive meats, fruits and vegetables, the wide awake "family planner" needs only to concentrate her attention on new secrets of cookery to make her meals appetizing and attractive.

Beginning with breakfast, that most important meal which gets you off to a good start, hot cereals hold a most important part. If steaming, hot cereals are served with cream or heated with whole milk, (not scalded) brown sugar, pats of fresh butter, or a mixture of one part cinnamon to three parts of sugar, the flavor is interesting and pleasing. Cereals may be mixed together before cooking to give variety in taste. The texture is varied by cooking it thin in milk, or thick and "chewy." Raisins, left-over cooked dried fruits, may be added to contribute food value, color and flavor.

The best kind of breakfast for the whole family consists of fruit, a whole grain cereal served with milk or cream, butter toast or muffins, and milk or a hot milk drink. For the person requiring a more substantial breakfast, the menu may include eggs, bacon or other forms of meat bushels and have been the smallest since 1926-1927. As a result of these reduced shipments, supplies available for export in surplus areas outside of the United States including Canada, Argentina, Australia and the Danubian countries, total around 500,000,000 bushels and are about as large as a year ago, despite the short crop in Canada and Australia this season.

Wheat Markets Dull; Conditions Fair
The general wheat situation remained dull with no important developments during the week. New crop prospects and movement of old crop grain are now dominant market influence. Sub-soil moisture remains deficient over important areas in both Winter and Spring wheat sections, in the United States. The condition of Winter wheat is only fair in the Ohio Valley, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas. Dust storms during the week caused injury in Nebraska, western Kansas and Oklahoma. The condition of Winter wheat is mostly poor in the North Central states but is still excellent in the Pacific Northwest. Some Spring grain was seeded in the Northern Great Plains, but the soil is dry and unfavorable for germination.
European crop conditions are still reported about normal but less favorable than last season. Surplus wheat supplies in exporting countries continue to move slowly into consuming channels. World shipments to date have totaled only about 340,000,000 such as creamed chipped beef. Easter morning is an appropriate time to check up on breakfast. An economical Easter breakfast that the family will enjoy:

- Chilled Pineapple Juice
- Creamy Eggs
- Crisp Bacon
- Wholewheat Muffins
- Butter
- Grape Conserves
- Creamy Eggs

Creamy eggs are much like scrambled eggs but especially good for children because they are made of fresh eggs, milk and butter. To make creamy eggs, place milk (about one third cup of milk should be allowed for each egg) in the top of a double boiler and add butter to it, using at least one tsp. of butter per person. Allow an egg for each one to be served and beat whites and yolks together and add to milk when it is warm. Stir gently as the mixture is heated through and the eggs become lightly coagulated but not hard. Season to taste. The amount of butter may suit the individual taste, more butter making the dish richer and more palatable, as well as furnishing valuable food materials. The creamy eggs may be served on toast with a garnish of parsley.

In any event the calendar is soon going to come to the rescue of the hesitant who ponder to run or not to run, that is the question, whether it is nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of political candidacy or by remaining a private citizen evade them.
