CLUB NOTES

about beef, forestry, and camp cookery clubs. Mr. Mitchell, leader of the Hungry eleven camp cookery club, asked if it was possible to drop a member if he does not come to the meetings and does not do his work. Mr. Allen said that he would much rather the member would not be dropped but that the club would get after the lagging ones and encourage them to finish their work.

The Forestry club leader asked many questions and received much information about his club. The demonstration for this project will be the planting of a tree. One person tells the phases of the work and the other does the acting. Mr. Andrews hopes to send a team to the fair.

The exhibit of this club is the bark, leaves, and seed of seed bearing trees or the bark, needles and cone of the cone bearing trees. There must be five different varieties. These specimens are mounted on heavy pieces of cardboard or beaver board and labeled according to variety and then exhibited.

The leaders discussed the forestry trip. Mr. Johnston tells us that there will be five forest service men at the camp. One will be assigned to each club to help identify the trees. Each club member is to bring a notebook and pencil so he can take notes on the lectures.

The Kert Forestry Club has their third regular meeting at 10:00 a. m. last Friday. There were twenty-three members present. Among them Harry Wayne Young and Junior von Borstel who had not been to any of the meetings before.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The leader asked about the record books and told us to be sure and have them made before the trip. Karl Pluemeke, president, passed out the slips of paper telling what each person is supposed to take on the trip. Mr. Andrews read and explained it. He announced that there must be No Smoking on the trip. There was a slight disagreement but the leader overruled.

One of the members asked how we were going on the trip. Mr. Andrews informed us that we were going in trucks.

There was more talk about the food, knives, stove, dishes towels and bedding for the trip. Mr. Andrews says that we sleep on the ground so it would be a good idea to bring a canvas big enough to go underneath and to cover the bed.

Our leader read the program of our two days in camp. He called special notice to the part where it says "5.00 a. m. Club leaders fall out (this does not include county school superintendent or county agent)" It seemed to be the general opinion that they would fall out too, or be pulled out.

The president appointed Margaret Dunlap, Helen Wilson, Phyllis Haynes, and Charles Wilson on a committee to arrange a skit or some other entertainment for the night in camp. Each club is supposed to contribute a part of the program. Everyone is supposed to learn the club songs if they do not already know them.

Some of the members asked what they should wear and Mr. Andrews said to wear your best suit so you could get it nice and pithy. Good idea, isn't it?

The meeting was adjourned. The next one will be on May 30th for the purpose of making final plans for the trip.

Mrs. Dunlap is going to fulfill her promise to her cooking club that she would take them on a picnic as soon as they have half of their progress cards in. Over half of them are in now and the girls are getting their reward next week. The ten meetings of this club are all finished and the girls are hoping to finish up the work 100 per cent.

This club which is called "Dorothy's Kitcheneers" has been one of the most active in the school this season. They have held regular meetings and the girls have been very interested in getting the work completed. This is the kind of club that helps to make 4-H club work profitable. Let's have more of them.

Margaret Dulap.

Twelve high school girls met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Stephens, for a cooking club meeting last Wednesday afternoon.

The dates for sending final records were discussed. Mrs. Stephens offered to help the girls in filling out this report in any manner she is able. The Division III girls talked about their bread baking and menus for the dinners they are required to prepare.

Summer school held a minor part of the business meeting. The refreshment committee for the Mother's Tea reported and told each girl what they were to furnish. The date set for the afternoon tea is June 2nd. The girls sang two club songs before being dismissed.

Three farms were visited by the Moro Colt Club on a judging tour Thursday afternoon.

Accompanied by Perry Johnston and Dewey Thompson, local leader, the club went to the farm of Tom Fraser where five Belgian mares and four young colts were seen and a class of each were judged.

From this place the group journeyed to the Sunkist Stock Farm owned and managed by Claude J. Thompson. A variety of horses were judged here including a class of pure-bred, registered Percheron mares, classes of Percheron geldings, saddle horses, grand champion saddle horses and saddle colts. Mr. Thompson and Mr. Fraser joined the group and traveled to Andrew May's Rainbow Stock Farm near Cottonwood Grade.

At this location four draft mares were placed and a class of draft geldings, both classes were Belgian. A young Belgian Stallion was exhibited to the audience. The visitors spent part of the time at this ranch estimating weights of various animals.

This 30 mile journey was made worth while by Mr. Fraser, Claude Thompson, Dewey Thompson, and Mr. May and Perry Johnston giving the club some very valuable points in judging the types of animals seen that day.

Several times each year Sherman county 4-H members, leaders and promoters are honored by the presence of State 4-H club leaders, or assistants. On May 18th and 19th Doctor Allen, assistant state leader, spent his time answering questions, problems and obstacles which have confronted local leaders this year.

Several questions were discussed at the leaders meeting on May 18, at the court house in Moro. Record books seemed to be the most important problem that needed to be cleared. "Doc" Allan told of several methods of filling these reports and enabled the leaders to clear the difficulties. The best method of figuring costs of keeping the urse cow was emphasized. Mr. Allan told of several club members in Coos County who had made a successful attempt financially at raising a new kind of potato for seed in their county.

Demonstrations and judging contests were discussed by the leaders. "Doc" gave some excellent suggestions for demonstration for several different types of club projects. The garden club leader and the Forestry club leader gave an interesting account of the progress of their clubs this year. Mr. Adams, forestry leader in this territory, stated that he merely controls and advises his youthful club members and lets these boys have all the responsibilities. It was decided by the leaders and county officials, the best plan for the sheep club members to exhibit their lambs, would be to have a sheep show in the near future.

Most of the sheep club members are anxious to sell their lambs due to the good market for due to the good market price for fat lambs and the club fair will be quite late.

Other problems of the rabbit, poultry, wheat, beef, calf, dairy, calf, and colt clubs were solved through the aid of "Doc" Allan.

The DairyCalf and Beef Clubs held a joint meeting at the Tom Fraser home last Saturday. The purpose of the meeting was to judge pigs and receive a few pointers in judging this type of stock.

Characteristics and qualities of Spotted Poland China hogs were discussed before the club attempted to judge the two classes of swine. Henry Barnum leader of the Beef Club had some material about swine which proved to be very interesting and useful to the clubs.

Two classes of swine were judged including Spotted Poland China sows and gilts of the same breed. Each member had his turn for telling why they had placed the animals as he had done.

Mr. Barnum gave his reasons for his placement of the livestock and pointed out some defects and good qualities of the classes.

On Monday afternoon, the Moro Poultry Club made a tour to several of the members homes in Moro to see the poultry which the members are raising.

The first yard visited was Dale Johnstons. He showed his excellent Buff Orphingtons flock. A short talk was given by Dale telling of the care of his birds. The club then went to the home of Melvin Baker who displayed a fine bunch of Rhodel Island Red chicks.

The group returned to the school house and a short business meeting followed.
