Farmers Refuse Loan Proffer

Two-thirds of the 5700 farm families interviewed during the rural housing survey just completed by the home economics division of the Oregon State college extension service for the federal civil works administration, said they would not be interested in borrowing money for needed repairs and replacements, in their homes, even at favorable interest rates, while the other third indicated that they would borrow an average of $619 each if it were available. Suggested interest rates averaged about 4 per cent.

About ten per cent of the farm families visited during the survey plan to build new farm houses in the next three years, however, and if they carry out their present plans these houses will average about five rooms and will cost an average of $1426. Only 209 families have spent as much as $500 on repairs or improvements in the past three years, it was found, and only 1014 have spent as much as $100 for this purpose in that time.

The survey was made by means of personal visitations by hired workers, and covered a large part of Clackamas county, and representative portions of Jackson and Josephine counties in Southern Oregon and of Deschutes, Crook, Gilliam and Sherman counties in the irrigated and wheat sections east of the Cascades.

Three Oregon farm families were found to be living in earth houses, and seven in concrete. Of the other dwellings visited, 69 were of logs, 16 brick, 13 stone, 32 stucco, and 1646 were painted frame houses and 3917 unpainted frame houses. Nearly two-thirds of the houses surveyed are more than 10 years old, almose a third are more than 25 years old, and 287 are more than half a century old. All but 10 of the families visited were white.

When asked what repairs or improvements they would make $500 if they had it for the purpose 3067 homeowners said a water system would come first. With $250 to spend water systems were still in favor, and 1333 said they would try to improve their water systems if only $100 were available. The survey shows that nearly half of the houses visited now must have water hauled or carried to them an average distance of more than 200 feet.

On the list of needed repairs and alterations, interior walls and ceilings came first, and floors were next with 1712 needing repairs, followed in order by roofs, foundations, exterior walls, doors and windows, and paint. More than half of the houses needed paint and 2251 needed screens. More room was an almost universal need. Only 2403 of the homes now have bathrooms.

HI-WAYS TO HEALTH
by ADA R. MAYNE
OREGON DAIRY COUNCIL

With the warmer days of summer coming on, it means some changes in the foods we consume. Foods that furnish the essential body elements, necessary for good nutrition and still are low in heat producing or in calorie value are welcome additions to the summer diet.

Cottage cheese is an ideal food at any time but fits into warm weather menu perfectly. Cottage cheese is just another way to serve more milk, since it contains all of the many elements found in milk. This makes of it a protective food, high in minerals and vitamins. Along with this high food value, cottage cheese is low in calories, making it a good hot weather food.

Cottage cheese is easy to serve. As a main dish, as a salad, or used in sandwiches, it is equally appetizing. The following hot weather suggestions are only a few of the many ways that Cottage Cseese can be used.

Mix pound cottage cheese with 2 tablespoons chopped chives or 1 teaspoon finely ground spring onion tops. Add one pound baked ham, the fat removed, run through the meat chopper. Shape in croquettes. Save a little ground ham to roll the croquettes in after they are shaped. Serve on a platter with parsley garnish.

As A Salad

Two cups cottage cheese
One tablespoon gelatin
One cup whipped cream
One-fourth cup hot water
One-fourth cup cold water
Seasoning
Fruits and vegetables
Salad dressing

Soak gelatin in cold water, dissolve in hot water. Put cheese through sieve, add gelatin, mix and combine with whipped cream.

This mold may be varied by adding fresh cherries, pineapple or other fruit to it. It may be used as the center of a green vegetable salad such as crisp, sliced cucumber or lettuce.

As A Sandwich

Cottage Cheese
Seasoning
Chopped watercress, chives or onion tops
Sandwich bread

Remove top, ends, and side crusts from a loaf of fresh sandwich bread. (If loaf is not moist, keep in damp cloth for an hour.) Spread top of loaf with softened butter and a layer of seasoned cottage cheese, mixed with the chopped greens. Cut a fourth inch slice and roll like a jelly roll. Repeat process for each slice. Wrap rolls in damp cloth and place in refrigerator. When ready to serve slice rolls crosswise.
