HI-WAYS TO HEALTH by ADA R. MAYNE OREGON DAIRY COUNCIL

It is relatively easy to outline good breakfasts for children but it is oftentimes difficult to get these breakfasts eaten. One of the chief reasons for this is the hurry that possesses most households in the morning. Children arise so late, due often to late bedtime hours, that they have little time to get a hasty bite before rushing off to school. Even where there is ample time for a leisurely breakfast, children have little sense of time and the fear of being late has been so instilled in them, that their only thought in the morning is to hurry through the necessary tasks and to dash off to school.

The first step then in insuring better breakfasts for children is to work for earlier bedtimes at night. To remove the sense of pressure and hurry will do much in developing in them a normal appetite for this important meal.

In planning good breakfasts for children, it is usually assumed that this meal should supply approximately one-third of the food requirements for the day. This would mean including from one and one-third cups of milk and some of the fruit (or vegetable) depended upon to help furnish minerals and vitamins. Since milk is a good source of protein, the milk in the breakfast may supply the desired one-third of the day's protein need, especially with younger children. For older children, whose protein needs are greater, an egg, crisp bacon or other protein food may be added.

The energy needed in addition to that supplied by the milk, fruit and egg (if used) may be obtained from bread, butter, cereals, potatoes or other bland foods. Cereals are especially suited to breakfasts, not only as a source of energy, but because they provide a warm food and are good carriers for milk. If whole grain cereals are used they supply additional minerals and vitamins not found in the refined cereals. Eaten with butter or milk gravy, potatoes are an excellent breakfast food. Breads, too, may furnish the energy for the breakfast if desired.

Suggestive breakfast menu pattern is given here:

Fruit, 1 piece or dish.
Cereal: 2-3 cup.
Milk for cereal: 1-3 cup.
Sugar: one teaspoonful
Toast: 2 slices.
Butter: 2 tablespoons
Milk to drink: one cup.

These foods, sometimes added: Bacon, crisp slices; Eggs: one.

Bringing the breakfasts of children up to these standards will result in greatly increased school efficiency and general physical improvement. If better breakfasts are combined with more adequate milk and fruit consumption, and with earlier bedtimes, and more actual hours of sleep, the result will be even more striking.

Government Loans Most Of The Money

During the last four months the Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner have made loans to farmers of Oregon in greater amount than to those of any state except Idaho.

Loans in this state have totalled $6,551,450 which is in excess of those made to Washington farmers by $1,790,000. Farmers in Idaho have borrowed a little over a million dollars more than those of Oregon. In the same length of time the individual and corporate institutions of the country have loaned $2,420,383 to the farmers of this state. In the United States as a whole the government has made twice as many loans to other institutions.

Children Should Be Ready For School

To be ready for school is the inherent right of all children. Parents should see that their children are in the best possible physical and mental condition so they may be able to take advantage of school instruction. Too many school children start the school year with defects that might easily be corrected, defects that interfere with their health and their progress in school. The average school child loses about seven percent of school time or about two weeks because of preventable defects. These defects are adenoids, bad tonsils, defective vision, dental defects, poor nutrition and certain constitutional disorders. Children who are suffering from physical defects are badly handicapped in acquiring an education. Good eyesight and hearing are of the greatest importance in children's educational progress.

The common cold causes the greatest loss of time. Nearly all defects contribute in some way to frequent colds, especially bad tonsils, adenoids and malnutrition. Infected tonsils and the presence of adenoids expose children to colds with possible infection of nose and ears. This means at least a loss of school time and there is always danger when ears are seriously inflamed. Adenoids are a menace to children and if left too long cause changes that cannot be repaired. They cause mouth breathing, the roof of the mouth becomes high and the upper dental arch is changed. This with the obstruction of the nose causes unpleasant changes in the voice. Bad tonsils cause tonsillitis, sore throat or serious systemic infections such as heart disease and rheumatism. Diseased tonsils also increase children's chances of contracting communicable diseases.

Decayed teeth are likely to be sore and to cause children to chew their food improperly, thus resulting in insufficient nourishment. Defective eyesight as such, is not always noticeable but reveals itself in reddened, watery eyelids, persistent headaches, strained posture or irritability. Unsatisfactory progress in school may be due to poor vision. Children may be greatly handicapped by faulty hearing. Undeveloped children lose much time in school. Over weight and under weight while sometimes normal for certain families usually indicate faulty nutrition which may seriously handicap in later life.

Mental or so called nervous defects if present are serious handicaps. Minor ones are easily corrected and major ones can almost always be improved.

Wise parents will know that they cannot depend upon their judgment to decide their children's fitness, and before sending them to school will have them examined by a physician. If defects are found they should not be neglected but corrected at once. Children should be given the opportunities they deserve.

siasm for the measure in this county although it is certain to get many votes from those who believe that taxes must be reduced in some manner. Those who opposed the sales tax are unanimous in opposing it as such a reduction it goes down to 15 mills in five years—would make some other form of tax an absolute necessity unless some governmental activity be definitely abandoned.

Rodeo Again Holds Spotlight at Exposition

Top riders of famous Victor Elliott outfit and a string of the wildest bucking broncos will appear along with show horses at combined Horse show and Rodeo of Pacific International Livestock Exposition, Portland, Oregon, October 6 to 13.

A race for popularity will again be in vogue this year when high stepping thoroughbred horses of the show ring compete for favor with wild bucking outlaws of the range at the 44th Annual Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland, October 6 to 13.

Because of vastly improved farm and business conditions Exposition officials predict that all records for entries and attendance will be broken this year. According to B. C. McHenry, in charge of industrial exhibits, the various displays this year will be the finest shown. Included are dairy products, food products, wild life, fish and game, wool and mohair, flowers and the exhibits from such concerns as the Standard Oil company, Knight Packing company, Frostkist Ice Cream and Columbia Steel.

In addition there will be nineteen complete shows staged under the mammoth eleven acre Exposition building roof. These will include dairy cattle, beef, swine, fat stock, draft horses, sheep, goats, dogs, poultry and pet stock, 4-H boys' and girls' work and Smith-Hughes vocational exhibits.

For the combined Horse show and Rodeo a varied program of spectacular and thrilling events have been scheduled with liberal cash awards for winners. The Rodeo will be the final of all western shows this year at which the grand champion cowboy will be chosen. Only the best of America's cowpunchers and buckaroos will be seen in action. Events will include bronco riding, bull dogging, calf roping, cow steer riding, with cash awards totaling $5000 for the winners.

Veteran arena directors will have charge of events, insuring a fast-moving program of top performance and exciting performances. Plenty of action with accompanying thrills and spills is promised.

For a long time we have been seeking a way to reduce the AMERICAN BOY to readers, states Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor. "Recently we have effected savings that make the cut possible, and we think boys will agree that the new price is big news on the reading front. We hope boys will help us to spread the good news by telling their friends."

Along with the cut in cost, the magazine's publishers are planning a magazine that will continue to set the pace in fiction, articles, and departments. The favorite characters of millions of boys will parade through THE AMERICAN BOY in new stories. Douglas Renfrew of the Royal Canadian Mounted, Hide rack, the red and gold collic, Bonehead Jim Tierney, the detective, will give the reader many exciting hours in the months to come.

William Heyliger, whose true-to-life, gripping vocational stories have won him wide acclaim from parents and librarians, as well as the hearty approval of boys, is working on new stories. Staff writers are interviewing famous coaches and athletes and world-renowned explorers, to bring boys the color and fun of sports and travel.

In short, THE AMERICAN BOY, under its new price, will give boys a magazine that measures up to the best standards set by adult magazines. Send your subscription to the AMERICAN BOY 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan. Enclose your name and address and the proper amount of money, and THE AMERICAN BOY will soon be headed your way, loaded with reading thrills.
