DUNNE FOR GOVERNOR

Oregon is going to elect a governor early next month. When he is installed into office he will have the duty of handling the executive duties of the state government. What are the qualifications the people desire in the man they select?

It seems plain that the first qualification should be a knowledge of the state and acquaintance with the government of the state. Joe Dunne is easily the best fitted of the candidates from this point of view. He has traveled over the state in his business for many years and has a wide knowledge of the people and their difficulties in all corners of Oregon.

We should have a governor who is young enough to have the physical vigor needed for this trying job. General Martin has been pensioned from one branch of government activity because of age. It appears odd that after the military department dismissed a man for age the civil branch should consider him young enough for harder service. Oregon has had too many aged and infirm governors in the past.

These are trying times. People are inclined to become excited and vote for measures that would not be considered under normal conditions. We need a man who is liberal enough to keep the state on the path of progress and yet abstain from the radical movements that are untried and perhaps unworkable. In private business men fall back upon known values in times of trouble and the same policy should be followed by the state. It is a time for sanity.

With many persons out of work in this state a man who has previously shown an interest in the welfare of his fellowman should be at the helm of the state government. The reputation of Joe Dunne in this regard is most enviable. There is now teaching in Sherman county a young man who is one of the many who have been helped through school by Mr. Dunne. Such actions give a valuable side-light on human character.

The governorship of Oregon is a state office, not a federal office. Federal policies are not made or effected by Oregon's governor. Prating about the new deal by every office seeker from constable to governor is merely an attempt to tie up with known popularity and perhaps draw attention away from personal defects. President Roosevelt does not distribute patronage and financial aid on a vote basis. Even his most active opponents do not accuse him of that. Oregon may expect federal aid according to its needs, not according to its politics, and no good citizen will anticipate any other sort of a treatment.

There will be many blasts and counter blasts during the remaining days before election, but voters will not be swayed to any great extent by last minute charges. Consideration of the back ground of the candidates, we are convinced will result in the election of Joe Dunne.

The Legion has asked for the adjusted service certificates at a cost of 2 billion. A mere trifle, a bagatelle, almost nothing; the oldsters expect that much every month. Whether our currency is inflated or not it is becoming much easier for us to roll huge sounding sums off our tongues with ease.

Some governments are most generous. Estonia has granted condemned persons the right to commit suicide instead of waiting for the headsman.

Some way the possible election of Sinclair doesn't worry us a bit. Why not let California be the experimental ground for new governmental theories for a time? If it works we can try it; if it don't we can miss it.

Flyers go half way around the world while the remainder of the population keeps track of them every hour over the radio. Ug, the cave man, didn't get ten miles from home and he never heard of his neighbor across the river.

The position of No. 1 gangster of the U. S. is becoming one of the most dangerous places to fill.

Portland found the least harmful way of being in the dark Wednesday when the lights went off for a brief period. There are much worse ways.

Willamette and Linfield won't play in each others back yard any more, Eh. Well boys will be boys.

Probably the most important thing for Sherman counties to consider is a change in freight rates to a lower level.

That some body or other for football in a fall like this.
