Soap Guns That Were of No Avail

Two Dillinger gangsters, emulating their late chieftain by using guns cunningly fashioned from soap, failed in a desperate attempt for liberty from Ohio penitentiary's death row. Charles Makley was shot to death by the prison guards and Harry Pierpont was wounded. Above are the soap guns used in the attempted escape.

New Hog Contracts Announced By AAA

Smaller benefit payments for hogs, but less reduction and more liberal contract requirements in other respects, characterize the 19-35 corn-hog adjustment program, according to advance announcements received by the extension officials at Oregon State college from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Copies of the new contracts have not been received, but detailed reports of their provisions show that growers who voluntarily choose to sign again will be permitted to raise up to 90 per cent of their established hog base instead of 75 per cent as was the case this year. Corn growers may also plant up to 90 per cent of their base acreage, though they may elect to reduce down to 70 per cent, as was allowed this year, and take rental benefit payments on the 20 per cent.

The benefit payment plan on hogs will be changed so that instead of receiving $5.00 on each hog raised under the allotted quota as was the case this year, the grower will be paid $15.00 a head for the number represented by the ten per cent reduction. The effect of this is that in the case of a man with a 100-hog base he will receive $150 in benefit payments as compared with $375 under the original plan. He will be able to raise and market 15 more hogs, however, and will have no restrictions imposed as to number and kind of other livestock produced.

Benefits for the corn growers have been raised from 30 to 35 cents per bushel and yields will be figured on a farm basis rather than on the particular acreage left out of corn. All restrictions as to the use of what was formerly called "contracted acreage" have been removed under the new corn-hog plan, and the contract signers can

VOLCANO PUPS

Father Hubbard, Alaska's famous "Father of the Snows," is pictured with the seven mammoth pups that were born in an Alaska volcano crater in the Adulien pinnacles, wildest part of the Alaskan peninsula. "Mamie," their mother, carried them in a pack sack on her back for a month. They were "sexed" over ridges, across rivers and through swamps that had never before been traversed by white men.

Hi-Way to Health by ADA R. MAYNE OREGON DAIRY COUNCIL

In looking for ways to dress up the dinner table do not overlook the possibilities to be found in butter. Butter can be molded into dainty butter balls or crisp looking butter shells which will change the conventional butter pat into something attractive and inviting.

Often a simple change of this sort will help in solving a perplexing eating problem with children. Watching a golden ball of butter melt on the top of a baked potato or mound of vegetables will often stimulate the appetites of small boys and girls. It may be just as tempting to grown ups to find butter in party dress.

Proper tools and the right technique are the only requirements in shaping butter. A little tool called a butter shaper is used for making the shells and these, as well as paddles and individual molds, can be purchased in almost any house-furnishing department.

Butter Shells Dip the butter-shaper into boiling water for a half minute. Then draw it lightly over a piece of butter and drop the little ball into a bowl of cold water. Butter shells are slightly oval in shape and the outside is daintily grooved by the serrated edges of the shaper. With a little practice, a number of interesting sephas can be produced.

Butter Balls Chill the wooden molds in a bowl of cold water and be careful to dip them into the cold water after each shaping. To shape the butter balls, cut off a small pat and roll it between the molds in to the desired shape, working quickly and lightly. As the balls are formed, drop them into a bowl of cold water or onto a cold plate.

Should the paddles become heated, the butter will stick, and will not shape easily. The procedure, in case of sticking, is to put the paddles into a bowl of ice water. If the butter should still continue to stick, rubbing the paddles with coarse salt will usually do away with the difficulty. The butter itself should be firm but not so hard that it cannot be shaped.

Some people prefer to cream the butter before making it into butter balls with the paddles. To do this the butter is cut up into chunks and put into a mixing bowl covered, and allowed to stand at room temperature until it has lost its hardness (about 10 minutes). Mash with a wooden spoon, then stir until it is soft and creamy. Allow the butter to stand covered with cold water for a few minutes before reworking it into butter balls. From 10 to 16 butter balls can be made from one fourth pound of butter. It is often more convenient to make up more than are needed for the meal or day. A quantity will keep nicely if put into a bowl of water, covered and set in the refrigerator.

Butter Molds Dip the mold in cold water, invert it, and let the stamp drop to the bottom. Then fill the mold with cold water, turn it over, and with the stamp press out the butter on a cold plate.

raise anything he pleases except corn on this land and for any purpose, except as he may be bound by other adjustment contracts.

This lowering of restrictions on what are now termed "shifted acres" is explained by the Washington officials as being necessary in view of the shortage of feed which is expected to develop early next season in many of the areas affected by drouth. The AAA leaders believe continuance of the corn-hog control is necessary in the modified form, however, to prevent rapid expansion of the corn production and repetition of the surplus conditions first in corn and then in hogs.

Regional meetings in connection with the new contracts will be held soon after Thanksgiving, the one for this territory to be in Salt Lake City. Soon after this the extension leaders and county and community committees will prepare for the new campaign, with the new contracts probably being offered sometime in January.

RUFUS SCHOOL NOTES

By Georgiana Blackburn

The Rufus volley ball team won its last game when they journeyed to Kent, November 23. The line-up was Anna Coats, Dora Millard, Margaret Macnab, Margaret Burnett, Marjorie Morris, and Georgiana Blackburn.

However quite a number of substitutions were made. The final score was 33-22.

The boys played their first basket ball game here with Arlington November 24. The line-up was: Shirley Eakin, Joe Morris, Earl Williams, Lynden Gulliford, and Thomas Macnab. The final score was 41-6 in favor of Rufus.

The boys second team also played that night. The score was 23 to 8 in favor of Arlington.

The second of the series of programs toward better education will be given here November 27. The whole school will contribute toward the evening's entertainment. After the program is over the high school boys will show the audience how basket ball is played.

The Girls League met November 26 and elected its officers. Marjorie Morris was elected president and Thelma Dingle vice president; Norma Blackburn, secretary and Anna Coats, treasurer.

Florence Thompson gave a party November 24 to which several of her friends attended.

The primary room now has a post office in their room. They are learning how to write letters and address them.

The primary room's rhythm band will play again on November 27, at the program.

To make the band complete the high school student body has decided to rent a bass horn and to get one of the student body members to play it.

The high school boys have decided that they need new warm-ups and the girls new suits so the student body is also going to buy these.
