Tuning His Motors for Record Try

Although there is no indication that a Harmsworth challenger is in the offing, Gar Wood, peer of all speedboat drivers, will not be found unprepared should one bob up. Wood is increasing the power in his huge Miss America X motors, and intends to try for a new world record in Florida some time this winter. The photograph shows Wood looking over the superchargers of his motors. He has increased the speed of these units to provide 300 horse power more to each of the four big motors, making a total horse power of 7,600 for the craft, the most powerful power plant ever attempted in a boat.

MORO SCHOOL NOTES

Mr. Adams of Oregon Branch of Vocational Guidance, spoke to the high school students at an assembly last Friday afternoon. His companion, Mr. Coolie, also spoke a few words.

The girls of the Junior high played the Freshman girls last Friday after school. This was the first game for the Junior high girls but they succeeded in crushing the Freshmen by a score of 38 to 6. Barbara Belshe was captain of the Freshmen team and Reatha Sayrs for the Junior high. The other players for the Freshmen were: Forwards—Beth Mersinger and Marie McLeod; Guards—Vivian Fuller, Betty Powell and Winifred Belshe. The forwards for the Junior high were Marjory Meloy and Jane French. Guards were Audrey Searcy, Jocile Peters and Lois Melzer. The Junior high boys were also victorious in a game with the Freshmen boys. The final score was 13 to 10.

Among those absent this week with the chicken pox are: Theodore Thompson, Freda Rice and Vivian Fuller.

Warren Cox, an eighth grader from Grass Valley, is now enrolled in the Junior High.

This Friday the boys basketball team will play The Dalles there. They were to have played Wasco this Friday but the game was postponed due to an epidemic of mumps there.

Those in charge of the program in Oregon emphasize the fact that taking a farm inventory, which is a list of things the farmer owns, is not a difficult task, particularly if suggested forms are used. Such forms will be made available free during the present campaign.

Dr. A. F. "Quintuplette" Dafoe Says "Gosh, Gosh"

A great moment was that on May 28, 1934, soon after midnight, when Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, for a quarter century a country doctor, answered a call to his second obstetrical case, since sundown.

Greeted as a conquering hero by New York City last month, he told a rapt audience of 3,000 in Carnegie Hall: "I scrubbed up the best way I could, and took over the situation." Half asleep from the work he had done previously that night his long training as a country doctor, enabled him to come out of the date to which he confesses and to write his name for as long as medical literature shall endure by the feat of bringing five children into the world and keeping them alive. "I was astonished," he told his charmed audience, "to find that two babies had already been born and a third was arriving. The attendant told me afterward that my eyes were bulging and that with the arrival of each baby my word was 'Gosh.' It was, he recalled, "unreal and dreamlike." He didn't think the babies could live, so he baptized them himself. Then he became alarmed at the condition of the mother, and for her he dashed off two and a half miles and brought a priest.

Thus in news paper language opens the story of the five Dionne sisters of Callander, Ontario. Two families among Oregon citizens in the year that has just closed, welcomed babies so much under weight as to attract wide attention. These infants were both born November 24, Jacqueline Dean Jackson whose parents reside at Cascade Locks, at Stevenson, Wash.

and Richard Henry Martin at Salem. Jacqueline weighed 15 ounces at birth, and Richard went down to 28 ounces soon after birth. Yet both are living and gaining, just as are the Dionne sisters. Both were listed in our Baby Enrollment campaign in which we are now rounding up those forgotten.

Colloquially, infants of the Dionne, Jackson and Martin kind are called incubator babies. The word "incubator" suggests the fact that keeping such babies alive is a modern achievement, depending on equipment not available in former times and on doctors and nurses using a technique which was acquired through the centuries. No wonder Dr. Dafoe declared that in keeping the Dionne babies alive the "first week was a nightmare." Of 32 other cases of quintuplets recorded in the last 500 years, one group of five lived an hour, and of another group one survived 50 days. Until Dr. Defoe, only physician in a village of 600 people and serving an area of 400 square miles, stepped into world fame. no other baby other than the six of the 160 mentioned lived as much as an hour. So no one need be surprised that Dr. Defoe is discussed for the Nobel prize in medicine, which previously has gone to research discoverers. But the country doctor has gone back to his Callander practice, explaining that is "where I belong."

How does this new I. E. S. BETTER SIGHT LAMP differ radically from an ordinary lamp?

IT IS HIGHER

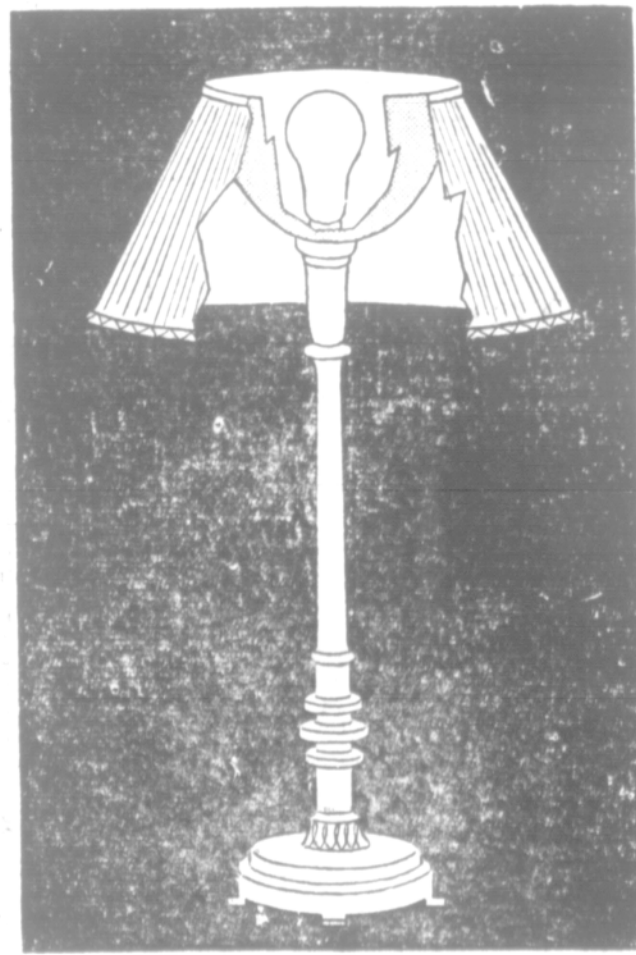

10 1/2 inches from table top to bottom of the shade—so that the light can be distributed over the desk. Ordinary lamps are usually too low to do this.

ITS SHADE IS SPECIALLY TREATED INSIDE

The shade is lined with a white finish of great reflecting value. This gives you several times as much light where you need it as in the case with an ordinary reading lamp.

IT HAS AN OPAL GLASS REFLECTOR

This diffuses the light, eliminates both reflected and direct glare, and softens shadows. It sends enough light upwards to relieve the harmful contrast between the well lighted table and the balance of the room.

All these radically different features can be found only in the New I. E. S. Better Sight lamp, created by the Illuminating Engineering Society for the specific purpose of saving and protecting eyes. And they give you new beauty in your home as well as new eye comfort. They are made in any number of attractive styles, so that one may easily be selected to harmonize with any style of room. But, while the style may vary to suit individual tastes, the lighting unit of the Better Sight lamp is scientifically the same. The approval tag of the Illuminating Engineering Society certifies that the lamp meets the full requirements of Better Light for Better Sight.
