Financially Irresponsible Drivers To Be Eliminated By New Safety Law

On June 12, several new regulations of the motor vehicle laws will become effective, as enacted by the 1935 legislature. One of the most important of the new laws is that known as the motor vehicle safety responsibility act, a form of legislation entirely new to the people of Oregon although now in effect in more than 20 states, reports Secretary of State Earl Snell.

In operation this law is designed to promote safety on the streets and highways by eliminating therefrom any driver against whom there is an unsatisfied final judgment for negligence to property in an amount exceeding $100.00 or for the death or bodily injury to any person resulting from the operation of any motor vehicle on a highway until such judgment is satisfied and proof is furnished of ability to respond to damages in the future.

Responsibility Must Be Shown

Likewise, the driver who has been convicted of any violation requiring mandatory revocation of his operator's or chauffeur's license is not again permitted to drive until he has furnished proof of financial responsibility and his license has been regularly restored. Such proof must be maintained for a period of three years, at the end of such period if the driver has not been involved in an additional offense which requires mandatory revocation of his license, he resumes his regular status as a motor vehicle operator.

Under this act, proof of responsibility is regarded as having been established when an insurance policy, surety, cash or personal bond has been furnished showing that the person in whose behalf such proof is filed is able to respond in damages to the extent of $5,000 for any one person injured or killed, or $10,000 for two or more persons injured or killed, and damage to property in the amount of $1,000 resulting from any one accident. Whenever like amounts have been credited on any judgment rendered in excess of these amounts, such judgment is then deemed satisfied for the purpose of this act.

HE KNEW HIS WORTH

An Erie shopman at Hornell had been drawn on a federal grand jury and didn't want to serve. When his name was called he asked the judge to excuse him. "We are very busy at the shops," said he, "and I ought to be there."

"So you are one of those men who think the Erie couldn't get along without you?" remarked the judge.

"No, your honor," said the shopman. "I know it could get along without me, but I don't want it to find it out."

"Excused," said the judge.—Erie Railroad Magazine.

and mohair, according to word received by the Oregon State college extension service from the Agricultural Adjustment administration. Other sessions of the same hearing are scheduled for Denver, Billings, Mont., San Francisco, and Salt Lake City.

The proposed license is designed solely to regulate trade practices and selling charges rather than as a means of affecting market supplies or price levels. The proposal calls for an advisory committee consisting of five growers and four dealers. The license plan would be administered by an official appointed by the secretary of agriculture.

Estimates are that 12 to 15 of the 275 wool dealers in the country handle 85 per cent of the business, the AAA officials announce. Two trade practices are listed in the proposed license as unfair. Two of these are particularly important to growers, the announcement states.

One provision would prevent dealers from selling for growers on commission when they also deal in wool on their own account. A second would ban the practice of deducting an arbitrary flat discount for "tags" or other off-sort wool or mohair with out reference to the actual condition of the lot being sold.

The license would relate only to transactions on or after January 1, 1936, having no effect on contracts or commitments made before that time.

One In Three Pedestrians Hurt

If you have three children the probability is that one of them during his life time will either be killed or injured in an automobile accident.

This statement was made by Albert W. Whitney, vice president of the National Safety Council, in connection with the "Let's Quit Killing" traffic safety campaign sponsored in Oregon by the Oregon State Motor association.

It was based on national automobile accident figures wherein it was shown that 36,000 persons were killed and 954,000 injured during the 1934 calendar year.

Of the children killed, 8660 were between the ages of 15 and 64; 3240 were over 65 years old; 2,880 were between the ages of 5 and 14, and 1,170 were under 4 years old.

The greatest cause of pedestrian fatalities, records show, is crossing a street between intersections. 4,310 persons having been killed in this way during 1934. Nearly 17 per cent of all pedestrian fatalities were caused by walking along a rural highway.

Other causes of pedestrian deaths, in order of importance, were crossing at an intersection where there was no signal, 12.1 per cent; children playing in the street 11.3 per cent; coming from behind parked cars, 9.4 per cent, and crossing at an intersection against the signal, 6.9 per cent.

Of the pedestrians killed, 8660 were between the ages of 15 and 64; 3240 were over 65 years old; 2,880 were between the ages of 5 and 14, and 1,170 were under 4 years old.

CURDS AND WHEY

Do not waste sour milk is a bit of advice often repeated in this column. To those of you who delight in an opportunity to serve your family with sour milk biscuits, muffins, corn bread and other delicious things made with sour milk this will seem rather unnecessary but many do not know the possibilities in using sour milk.

Sour milk is good food and should never be thrown away. Some of the best cooks go so far as to make the milk sour deliberately for special uses. Many people like to eat clabber or curd with cream and sugar for luncheon or breakfast or for dessert with fruit or preserves. And you remember, of course, that little Miss Muffet sat on a tuft, eating her curds and whey—with enjoyment presumably, until the spider came.

When used in baking, sour milk may be substituted for sweet milk in equal quantities but with soda to neutralize the acid. In the case of thin batters, the soda and sour milk generally furnish enough leavening, but for thick batters or doughs, baking powder is usually needed in addition. Thus, for griddle cakes, 1 cup of sweet milk and two teaspoons of baking powder, may be replaced by 1 cup of sour milk and a scant half teaspoon of soda. For biscuits, with the same proportion of sour milk and soda, add 2 teaspoons of baking powder.

Cottage Cheese, too, is a product of sour milk—in fact, is curd with some of the whey squeezed out. Directions are given here for making it:

Sour Milk Cottage Cheese

One quart freshly clabbered milk
One quart boiling water
Salt and pepper

Pour boiling water over the clabber. Let stand until curd separates. Turn into cheesecloth bag and let hang until whey has drained. Break and moisten curd with two tablespoons of melted butter. Season to taste. Sweet or sour cream may be added, for greater smoothness and better flavor.

French Curd
This is uncooked curd or French cottage cheese. The sour milk is not heated. It is simply poured into earthenware molds with holes in the bottom. A very fine sieve may be used instead of the molds. The whey drips out and the curd assumes a custard like consistency and takes the shape of the mold. When sufficiently stiff the cheese is chilled and is eaten with sweet cream and sugar, fruits or preserves.

For a delicious meat sauce, try this recipe:
Horseradish Sauce
One half cup sweet or sour cream
One half teaspoon salt
One teaspoon sugar
Three or 4 tbsps fresh grated horseradish
Whip the cream, salt and sugar and gradually add the horseradish. Serve with meat or fish.

Mrs. Talkington—Darling, how would you like it if I became a public speaker?
Darling—I'd like it. It would relieve me a lot.

Little Susie (to her small brother)—I heard papa calling you a while ago.
Brother—What did he say—Robert or Bobby?
Susie—He said Robert.
Brother—Then I guess I'd better go and see what he wants.

Mrs. Peck—They say a bachelor is one who has been crossed in love.
Peck (under his breath)—Yes, and a married man is one who has been double crossed.

Boon—I hear you got a job. What sort of a job is it?
Doggie—I'm doing research. I'm a government investigator.
Boon—That's great! What are you investigating?
Doggie—Oh, nothing in particular.
