

Grover Young Hurt When Horse Falls

Mrs. W. D. Barnett Taken To Hospital

Grover Young is in the Mid-Columbia hospital in The Dalles with a compound fracture of the right leg just above the ankle. This was caused when his saddle horse fell with him while rounding up stock. Mr. Young went through the painful experience of being forced to wait out in the sage brush for three hours until the members of his family found him. From all reports he is doing nicely.

Many Seniors Make Honor Roll

By Janet Wilcox
Out of the 42 students enrolled in the Grass Valley high school, 7 made the honor roll for the first six weeks, five of whom were seniors. As there are only ten seniors, Mr. Rowe, the English teacher, shook his head and decided that entirely too many made the honor roll, therefore we will probably have our assignments doubled and examinations more frequently. The seniors on the honor roll and their grades are: Cora Bayer, 125; Katherine Burton, 155; Keith Rhinehart, 125; Isabelle Fortner, 150; Janet Wilcox, 100. The only Junior to qualify is Frances Fairchild with a good average of 1.25. The Sophomores seem to be taking it easy, at least none of them are on the honor roll. Eileen Hogue is the only Freshman that made it and her grades averaged 1.00 which is unusually high for one just entering high school.

Last Wednesday night the volleyball girls defeated the Rufus team at Rufus 19 to 14. This game was very close, therefore, very interesting. The next volleyball game will be with Wasco at Wasco.

New Bulletin On All-Wheat Grown In U. S.

A 164-page bulletin entitled "Classification of Wheat Varieties Grown in the United States," recently issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will be of much interest to wheatgrowers everywhere. This profusely illustrated bulletin by J. A. Clark and B. B. Bayles gives a description of all the commercial wheat varieties of the U. S. with maps showing the acreage distribution and a brief history of the origin of all important varieties.

The plan of classifying and correctly naming all U. S. wheat varieties was first evolved by Dr. C. R. Ball, who with Messrs. Clark and Martin issued a similar bulletin in 1923. For the original classification studies, the largest nurseries were grown in cooperation with the Oregon Experiment Station. At the Branch Station at Moro there were 6765 sowings and at the Main Station at Corvallis 3985 sowings during these five years the study was in progress. For the later classification studies, more than 30,000 separate sowings were made at Experiment Stations in the western United States, one of the largest being at Pendleton, Oregon, Field Station.

To compile this new bulletin it was necessary to study 836 wheat varieties. After observing and studying these 836 named wheat they were classified into 237 distinct varieties. It was found that the same varieties often are being grown under many different names.

For example, Gold Coin, the wheat Sherman county knows as Fortyfold, was being grown under more than 30 different names in various localities.

Of the newer varieties of wheat that have been distributed in recent years, Federation has been by far the most important one in the Pacific Northwest. From a rod row first grown at the Moro station in 1915, Federation is now an important commercial variety in several different states, with a total acreage in 1929 of 752,800 or more than three times the acreage of any other new wheat that has been distributed to farmers of the Pacific Northwest during the past two decades. The new variety Rex, which is similar to Federation but more winter-hardy, will probably replace Federation as a winter wheat. Rex is being recommended by the Oregon Experiment Station to replace Hybrid 128, Albit, and Federation for fall sowing. About 20,000 acres will be sown to Rex in Eastern Oregon and Washington this fall.

A YOUNG PIONEER

When several hundred families were sent to Alaska from the Middle West to settle the Matanuska Valley, the Red Cross sent a nurse, Madeleine de Foras, to remain with them for a year to help protect their health. Among the first friends she made were the little pioneer, Arthur Mack, 4 years old, and "Prince," the pup who went with his young master to Alaska.
