Roster of Events At Grass Valley Shows Activity

Farmers Busy In Fields; Ball Players on Diamond

Although the farmers are busy getting the plowing done there is little activity about the town as farmers make the activity when they come to town for extras or supplies. Candidates supply an element that is different as some of the numerous group drop in nearly every day and make the rounds of business men handing out cards and talking about county affairs. Most of them get a pleasant reception for most of them are pleasant themselves.

School ma'am Rowe is perpetually pointing these days as his most important finger is strapped securely to a board. A ball player put a kink in his digit last Sunday that made it look like a pretzel bender's product.

The Baptist church will hold special services May 10, Mother's Day. A program is being prepared. Everybody will be welcome.

Jack Gervais and others were repairing the skylight on the roof of the Masonic hall Tuesday of this week in case it might rain again before the summer is out. And speaking of rain there have been several showers of magnitude enough to be called real rains in this dry cycle of years. Reports are that the country south of here has had better luck in attracting the rain drops than the district north. Anyway the wheat is growing.

J. W. Shepard and wife were here Saturday afternoon and night from their new home in Lewiston, Idaho.

Fishing was no good Sunday which is one of the unsatisfactory things connected with rain storms.

Mrs. Roy J. Baker was hostess to a group of bridge players Tuesday afternoon and Mrs. C. L. Poley of Moro succeeded in winning the honors for the day.

E. M. Alley and wife, A. A. Dunlap and wife and W. Ray Blake were among those who were in Moro Monday night to hear and see the Republican dinner.

Grass Valley School Preparing Annual Play

Kent Personals Concern Many Citizens There

On May 9 the Seniors are presenting the lively three act farce "The Whole Town's Talking." This play takes place in the Simmons' home where their daughter, Evelyn, returns from school bringing with her a dashing young man of Chicago and Paris. Mr. Simmons wishing his daughter to marry his partner, Chester Binney who is an anemic, plodding, sort of individual, invents a story about Chester having a hectic love affair with a ravishing movie actress. After convincing his wife and daughter that Chester is really a man of the world, the movie star with an extremely jealous fiancé arrives in town. Immediately complications arise which prove very humorous and entertaining. Nothing could be funnier than Chester trying to pattern after Evelyn's Parisian friend, and Mr. Simmons trying to keep from his wife the fact that he is taking dancing lessons. After affairs become very tangled they begin to straighten out and the play ends in a very appropriate manner.

The lead characters will be portrayed by Keith Rinehart as the scheming father, Ruby Fairchild his wife, Janet Wilcox their daughter Evelyn, and Ralph Balzer as Chester Binney, Mr. Simmons partner. Other members of the cast will include Kathryn Burton, Max Van Ausdal, Ferd Stark, Vere Pike, Eileen Hogue, Phyllis Dickson, Cora Bayer, and Robert Rolfe.

Moro School

By Norma Meizer

Twenty eight high school pupils and three teachers went to Camp Sherman Friday afternoon. The Juniors got up early Saturday morning to cook the Senior's breakfast of sausage, eggs, potatoes, hot buns, coffee, and an appetizer of oranges.

Saturday afternoon the truckload went over to Suttle Lake where swimming, boating, baseball playing, eating, and dancing were enjoyed. Sunday morning everyone went their own way until 12 o'clock, when they started home again, much to the disappointment of many. Sunburns and a good time were had by all.

Our district came out very good at the declamatory contest Friday night, by placing first, second, and third prizes. In the upper division Claudine Thompson received first, in the second division Dorothy Miller received third, and in the lower division Annjean Knighten achieved second.

The Sherman County Contest was held Wednesday afternoon. Louise Barzee and Barbara Belshe were the contestants from Moro. Barbara Belshe made the highest score.

The school band will go to The Dalles Saturday to the Mid-Columbia Band Festival. They will give a concert in the evening.

"This is the Life" a modern comedy by Robert Ray, has been chosen as the all-school play, and will be presented at the Legion Hall on May the 8th. Because of the universal appeal of this play's up-to-the-minute plot, and the opportunity it affords the local group to show the results of their dramatic training, it has been selected as a fitting vehicle for this time of the year. If you are worried, come and laugh your cares away. If you like excitement, there is enough suspense and drama to keep you interested throughout the entire play. If you enjoy romance, you will be hard put to it to refrain from speaking your mind aloud when the heroine overlooks the love that is right before her, in the false glamour of a superficial ideal. But if you are serious minded and enjoy plays that teach a lesson, you will be grateful to the author for showing how very little the material things matter when once they are seen, through the eyes of experience.

Grass Valley School Preparing Annual Play

On May 9 the Seniors are presenting the lively three act farce "The Whole Town's Talking." This play takes place in the Simmons' home where their daughter, Evelyn, returns from school bringing with her a dashing young man of Chicago and Paris. Mr. Simmons wishing his daughter to marry his partner, Chester Binney who is an anemic, plodding, sort of individual, invents a story about Chester having a hectic love affair with a ravishing movie actress. After convincing his wife and daughter that Chester is really a man of the world, the movie star with an extremely jealous fiancé arrives in town. Immediately complications arise which prove very humorous and entertaining. Nothing could be funnier than Chester trying to pattern after Evelyn's Parisian friend, and Mr. Simmons trying to keep from his wife the fact that he is taking dancing lessons. After affairs become very tangled they begin to straighten out and the play ends in a very appropriate manner.

The lead characters will be portrayed by Keith Rinehart as the scheming father, Ruby Fairchild his wife, Janet Wilcox their daughter Evelyn, and Ralph Balzer as Chester Binney, Mr. Simmons partner.
