THEY WILL BE PLACED

A certain amount of harm is being done the younger generation as a part of it prepares for graduation exercises from college and high school. Young men and women are being told that there is no place for them nowadays. It is true that in the manufacturing sections of the nation there are more workmen than there are jobs for, but in the agri-

There have been few periods in the history of the nation when the business world awaited with nervous irritation the influx of a new crop of young people into the business world. The youth of the land has to make its own place in most years and it does their confidence no good to be told they have no place at all.

A large part of the graduates of the past few years are doing something or at least are kept busy in an activity that pays living expenses with some chance for advancement. Such things are never as bad as the calamity how-lers profess to be leve.

THE LAMB SHOW

There is no gainsaying the statement that the first lamb show held here was a success. Only unsatisfactory element was the weather which is something that may be tolerated in this country of sudden changes in temperature.
The visitors, who were numerous and who were men of prominence in the sheep business, expressed themselves universally as being pleased with the show and the quality of lambs exhibited.

One surprising fact is that of the farmers showing lambs all were rather enthusiastic about the business of producing lambs and wool. None were heard to say that sheep were a nuisance and a bother and that they wished to be out of the business. There was an interest in the different crosses shown at the show and a discussion of the relative merits of different breeds of sheep in the crosses.
Average weight of fleece and weight of lambs was compared by owners.

Because of this type of talk it appears that there will probably be more sheep in the county in a few years than there is now. Records that show an income of from $500 to $1500 per year from farm flocks of sheep will convince others that sheep, although a mild looking animal, are efficient in keeping the wolf away from the door. The lamb show will have well served its purpose if it increases interest in the farm sheep industry.

ELECTION RESUME

The recent primary election, although not decisive as to office holders for the next government term, did seem to indicate a trend on the part of voters that has not been in evidence for some years. The moderates were in demand.

Within the past few years we have had campaigns that caused voters to give large majorities to those who favored drastic reduction of taxes or of some government function; we have elected those who stood on a single plank for some change or for some policy. This time the voters seem to have returned to the principal of judging candidates on a more complete basis.

County candidates are elected because of personal reasons in most instances and may be disregarded but in state and national affairs there appeared to be less of the well known inclination to "kick the rascals out" regardless of past performance than was once the case. Senator McNary received a fine vote that should insure his re-election this fall, Holman, one-time unpopular, was given a vote of confidence, Pierce had no difficulty beating a man well qualified to attract discontented votes, Ekwall withstood the threats of his enemies without a campaign. Throughout it all there was an expression of favor for the successful manager of governmental business.

An eastern representative recommends that we unite with Canada. Heck, from the kind of weather we have been having we thought we had already done it.

The locust trees have the heaviest bloom in years in these parts which gives the amateur prophet a chance to foretell the same for wheat.

The National Geographic society is sponsoring an expedition to find the remains of the very first settlers. Even back of the horse and buggy days, we suppose.

European nations are talking about paying us what they owe us. That is the best evidence that war is imminent that has been printed.

What are we going to do for explorers when the peak of Everest is reached? Man has been everywhere, or nearly so, on this planet.

Hydroelectric commission.
The report of the commission makes no recommendation for or against the proposed project but is confined entirely to a statement of facts in connection with the project as revealed in studies made by engineers of the department.

The proposed district would include most of Clackamas, Clatsop, Columbia, Lincoln, Polk, Washington and Yamhill counties, embracing an area of 2427 square miles and a population of 143,984.

"Creation of the district does not of itself, embark the people on a program of ownership and operation of a power project," the report points out. "If an election is held on the question of forming the district and election of directors thereof, no bond issue or question of policy in the matter of acquisition or construction of an electrical distribution system will be involved in such election."

Cost of a distribution system to serve the proposed district is estimated by the commission at $6, 001,000. This would include a system to serve all municipalities within the district and 2865 miles or rural primary lines, being 1294 miles more than now exist in that territory. If the property of the district paid no taxes, operation of the system could be expected to yield a surplus of $157,413 annually for the first four years and $40, 008 annually thereafter while the debt was being amortized. If taxes were paid this surplus would be changed to a deficit of $12,729 a year for the first four years and $130,134 a year thereafter until the debt had been paid. These figures are based upon the assumption that the district would have a monopoly upon the electric service within its territory.

"The project does not, however, hold forth a prospect for a reduction of rates for electricity until the amount of energy consumed is substantially increased or until the indebtedness is retired," the report points out.

A compulsory reduction in property tax levies for state, county, city, school district and all other governmental purposes is proposed by the newly organized Oregon State Taxpayers association which is sponsoring a proposed constitutional amendment covering the subject. The measure would permit of a six mill levy for state purposes in 1937 but would impose a 20 percent annual reduction from that base thereafter for five years so that for 1942 and subsequent years not more than 4.8 mills could be levied against property for state purposes. For all local tax levying units the levy for this year would be made the base for 1937 with an arbitrary reduction of 20 percent each year for the next five years. Assessment of property would be limited to 50 percent of its true cash value.

Oregon fire chiefs will hold their annual convention this year at Marshfield June 25 to 27. The convention is sponsored jointly by the state fire marshall's department, the state department of vocational education and the League of Oregon Cities. Walter Vanderveiden of Forest Grove is president of the association.

Sixty six diesel powered trucks are licensed in Oregon so far this year compared to only 36 last year. Secretary of State Snell reports. These trucks pay a 50 percent higher license fee under an act of the 1935 legislature than do gasoline powered trucks.

Entries in the state capitol architects' contest have been pouring in the past week. Entries close Friday (May 22) and the judges will begin their work Saturday with announcement of the winner scheduled for next Thursday.

In Other Days

From the Observer, May 24, 1901

Sunday's storm got in ahead of Hatfield, the storm breeder. His work begins tomorrow; $1500 or nothing. We hope he will not make it so wet that we can't harvest.

Mr. and Mrs. Arran Ramsey leave early next week for Col.
C. A. Buckley's farm where Mr.
Ramsey has a contract for erecting a residence and other buildings keeping him from home perhaps three months.

Arlington was visited by 50 cow boys in spurs and chaps, driving 3500 head of cattle for shipment to various points, making 4500 head taken out of Gilliam county the past month turning over about $80,000 in cash.

Sunday's storm plowed into the wheat fields below Wasco to the depth of four feet or more and delayed the train from Biggs four hours.

The funeral of J. E. Harris will take place in this city Sunday next at 10 a. m. Deceased was for many years a resident of Sherman county.

Members of the Sherman and Wasco county courts will hold a conference in The Dalles June 6 to make plans for the construction of a free bridge at the mouth of the Deschutes river or the purchase of the present toll bridge.

E. W. Lewis is again proprietor of the Moro Barber Shop.

C. E. Sheets has finished the preliminary wiring, Davis & Miller the rough plumbing and Wes. Rigdon is now placing the roof on the new farm home of Roy Powell.

According to Elmer Barzee jr. his father will now have water enough on the farm for a bath without hauling it. The well drill struck water at 165 feet.

The school board held an election and the people voted 64 to 16 to construct a new school building.
