Now's the time to trade!

Your old equipment is worth less and less as time goes on. Its trade-in value is dropping and will continue to drop faster and farther as more and more users turn to the advantages of up-to-date equipment.

You can stop the losses of operating obsolete machines . . . and begin to profit from new "Caterpillar" equipment by trading in now.

Formosa is an important link between Japan and the South Sea islands, and it has been decided, according to reports, to have it always under the governorship of a high navy official.

Good reading lamp.
Modern radio.
Small library of books worth reading.
Typewriter in good condition.
Ample supply of clothes.
Electric fan.

The foregoing items are a better investment than any stock or bond listed on the exchange. They pay dividends out of all proportion to their cost. Anyone who chooses to go without these common essentials of pleasant living in order to "save" money is making a mistake. A comfortable bed is worth more than $4 a year, which is all that a safe hundred dollar bond yields.

ALLEN STORY

dophilosophy and propaganda that now characterize the newspapers in too many European countries. And they get lots of advertising, which helps a newspaper to keep up its quality of service and its intellectual courage.

The Danes think—and freely say—that American papers, compared with their own, are not sufficiently well written, and are not vivacious enough.

The Danes have their troubles, just as other peoples have in this troublesome period in the world's history. They have some unemployment, largely owing to uneconomic tariff policies followed by customer countries, but it is written into the constitution that no Dane shall go hungry and he doesn't. There are no alums, or at least the Ford car hasn't been able to find any and the Danes tell us there are none. There is an elaborate system of social insurance that protects everybody, and this again is only possible where a high standard of education honesty and self-respect is general. In Denmark you just park your car in one of the wide boulevards over night and save the garage rent. Nobody will steal the accessories or drain out the gas. We saw nine soldiers across the street at the Rosenberg palace yesterday, but have not yet identified a policeman. The chap in a bright red coat turned out to be a mail carrier. And this is Europe, in the year 1936. Of course there must be soldiers and policemen somewhere, but they are not so thick that they get into one's hair, as is the case of most of Europe.

These shores of the North Sea figure in the ancestry of almost every Oregonian, if one traces it back far enough. Here, and along the German coast where we are going next, is where the Anglo-Saxons originated. A new book just issued in Germany—the Germans are much interested in "race"—far too much so, in fact—makes very sensibly, of the tendency of scientists to figure that every race that is found anywhere at the dawn of history must have come from somewhere else—the Caucasus or Central Asia for preference. The writer asks, with very good reason, where else could a tribe be bleached out so white as we are except right here? This is a very bleaching climate, and it is very easy to believe that it was right here that the Oregonians acquired their white skins. Thru-out the entire period of American drought and heat wave, we have had in Europe, except for a few days in Italy, weather that is exactly like an Oregon winter—of damp and part of the time colder, if anything.

It is no wonder that Europe is so beautifully green. The wonder is how completely the Europeans have conquered mud, and how neat, snug, well painted and well kept every farmhouse is—and nowhere more so than in rainy Denmark.
