"And the politics of your family?"

"Mixed. I'm a republican, the old man's a democrat, the kid's wet, the cow's dry and the cat's a Populist."—Whirlwind.

Vacancies Announced In U. S. Army

Major M. D. Bagnall, United States Army Recruiting Officer, 323 New Post Office Building, Portland today released a new and complete vacancy list to be filled by his district.

Opportunities are available for service in the following organization, Major Bagnall said.

7th Infantry, Vancouver Barracks, Wash., 3rd Coast Artillery, Fort Stevens, Oregon; The 9th and 10th Field Artillery regiments, the 6th Engineers and 3rd Signal Company of the Signal Corps all stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., 6th engineers, Fort Lawton, Wash., and the 14th Field Artillery stationed on Puget Sound. An opportunity also exists for two male stenographers for service in the Philippine Islands.

The Major further states that the vacancies in many of these branches are very limited and are subject to being closed to enlistment at any time. The vacancies for service in the 3rd Signal Company at Fort Lewis are reserved for men who are interested in radio and telegraphy.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 55, in good health, single and without dependents and able to furnish character references. Criminals or men with past criminal records are ineligible for enlistment in the United States Army.

During the past ten years, 94 percent of the graduates of the School of Law of the University of Oregon have passed the state bar examination. This record has been possible only through a rigorous standard of scholarship.

Whooping Cough Danger May be Partly Overcome

This is the season when a cough or cold in a child should be regarded with suspicion. During the early stages it is extremely difficult to differentiate between the common cold and whooping cough. Moreover, it is during this early stage that whooping cough is most readily transmitted from person to person. Since over fifty per cent of the whooping cough deaths occur in children under one year of age, parents should use every precaution to protect their children against this disease.

During the month of October 1935, six cases of whooping cough were reported in Oregon while in October, 1936 eighty five cases were reported. Undue prevalence of the disease is regrettable when we realize that by using precaution and intelligence many of the cases would not occur.

Except for measles, there is less natural immunity against whooping cough than any other communicable disease. During infancy, whooping cough is even more dangerous than measles; children under six months of age are not apt to take measles but are highly susceptible to whooping cough.

Among precautionary measures to be considered by parents in order to protect their children against whooping cough are the

"Now I Lay Me —"

This child was hurt when a tornado struck Tupelo, Mississippi, necessitating medical and nursing care for hundreds—care which in many cases could not have been given without Red Cross assistance. It is a fine tribute to the organization that the young beneficiaries of its health and relief services invariably place themselves in the hands of the Red Cross with a completely confident, "Now I lay me—"

Rufus Notes of Interest Taken From Events

The recently elected sheriff of Sherman County, Mr. Charles Wilson, said, "I wish to extend my thanks to those of this county who have made it possible for me to be elected to this position, and will do my utmost to do that which is right in order to perform the duties of this office."

Bobbie Huck, who has been ill with broncho-pneumonia, is attending school again.

Thursday of a week ago, the election of officers installed a number of different strangers in some of the many positions necessary in a progressive grange, although the position of Master is still held by Mr. Gifford, and several others are retained by the former officers.

With the exception of unsettled weather during the last week, the weather has been unusually dry for the last month or two with hardly no moisture, and the season of the year seems to indicate that winter is upon the threshold for frequent freezes of varied intensities are gentle reminders of what is to come.

A petition to aid in getting the new road mentioned some time ago has been circulating in the last few days, in fact, considerable surveying and determining has already been done toward its origination.

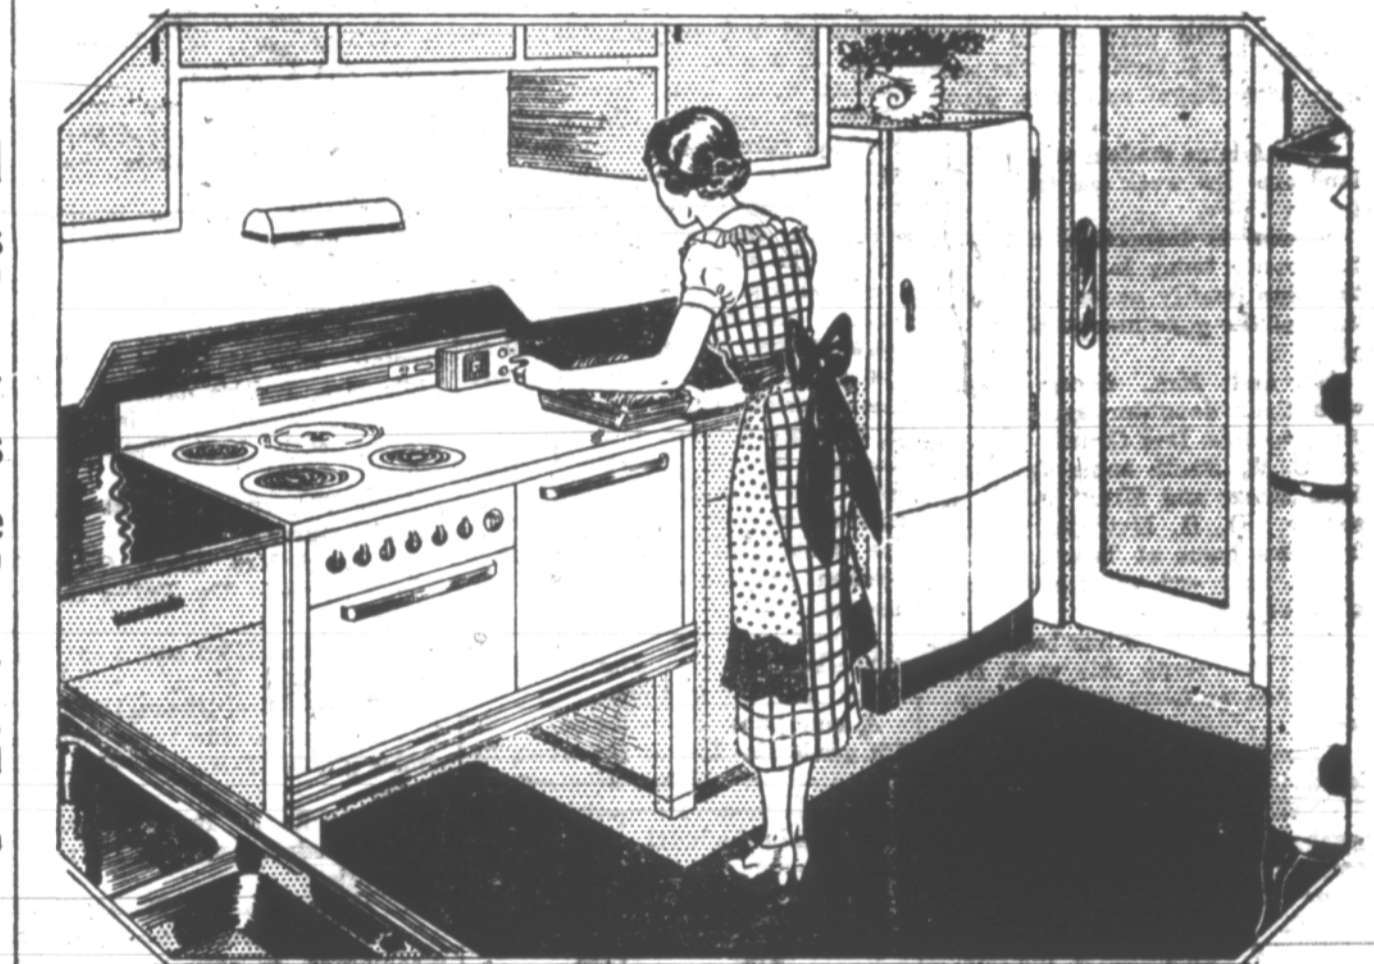

The road will run through Dege's land, down the hill from Wasco, via Wilkerson's ranch. It will make it necessary to grade a possible road from Wilkerson's to the west leading to Fowler's and other ranches west of the main road.

following: (1) a child with what seems to be an ordinary cold should be kept away from others and a physician consulted to determine the true nature of illness; (2) if whooping cough develops in a community, little children should be kept at home so as to escape the dangers of exposure; (3) whooping cough vaccine of approved type is of probable value in preventing or lessening the severity of the disease; the vaccine is usually given during the first year of life. Until parents appreciate how dangerous a "cold" may be to little children, whooping cough will continue as a major factor in causing fatal illness among infants.
