BONNEVILLE

In Bonneville the people of the northwest will have a giant capable of turning the wheels of innumerable industries. Few can realize the power that will be ours to command.

More units will be put in as they are required; as the demand grows. The quicker they are all installed the sooner the dam will be paid for.

Perhaps the inability to realize the immensity of Bonneville power is the chief reason why there is a quarrel about how it shall be used.

Blanket rates that make the price the same over a large area will make it impossible to sell power close to the dam and if the area is made too large will make all rates so high that there will be no advantage to anyone.

If a goodly portion of Bonneville's power can be sold to manufacturers who will come to the district near there and take power from the switch board, there will be a chance to double the population of this state in a few years.

The government has power to sell, steady continuous power in great quantities. If it can generate and transmit it to rural areas at a cheaper cost, that is a valuable service to its citizens.

A farmer who saves $100 per year on his power bill through Bonneville will be fortunate indeed while the added market that even fifty thousand people would make for farm products would bring in many times that hundred dollars in sales of farm merchandise.

The need is to sell our newly developed electricity so that we will get the most good from it.

BIG FARMING

The system of farming practiced in this section of the west has long been known as bonanza farming. Economic historians long ago prophesied that it was a transitory period that would not long continue.

If the erosion specialists are correct in their beliefs the time is coming when it will be impossible for one man to farm thousands of acres and properly care for the land. At the present time there is evidence that they are right.

Few observers of the farm situation hereabouts will sorrow at the change if it comes for it is a common observation that the man who cares well for a moderate sized farm has as much money as the man who goes over thousands of acres annually.

The most surprising thing about the coronation was that thousands of Americans stayed up all night to hear it.

BANK

Next Saturday, May 15, will be a happy one for Sherman county citizens, especially those who are engaged in retail business.

Banks were so common in most places since the beginning of the twentieth century, that county pride suffered considerable damage during the past five years although many larger communities were undergoing similar handicaps.

There is no question in the minds of any one but that the officers of the bank will find the venture into Sherman county, delayed although it has been, a profitable one.

Therefore there will be a hearty welcome to the new branch bank in which all will join.

John Lewis of the C. I. O. says the only compromise he will accept will be the complete defeat of the A. F. of L. Sort of wanting to fight it out on this line if it takes every manufacturer in the county, eh?

The first lady of the land recommends an eight hour day and a salary for housewives. It is surprising that no ambitious labor leader had thought of the idea before.

Pageantry is so stiff and formal and stilted. Amidst all the formality the most interesting thing to many of the reporters was the very human yawn of a bored little girl, who may some day spank her grand-daughter for a similar action.

The crop of graduates for 1937 is beginning to bloom in nearly every town. In new graduation gowns and in new suits the young people take their second step into adulthood.

The club that made Democrats agree in spite of their natural differences has apparently lost its power and southern members of the party who favor agriculture and northern members who favor manufacturing are not getting along as brothers are supposed to do.

The governor's good will cavalcade to the San Francisco bridge dedication will be crossing the line the last of this month which will put quite a strain on the boys that have to search baggage at the line.

Rufus Holman, state treasurer, has an idea. He wants all holidays to be observed on Monday so that a double holiday may be had by all working people.

The national debt is now above $35,000,000,000. Yes, the last cipher is the hardest to wipe out.

People's Column

To the Editor of the Journal:

The citizens of Moro are to be warmly congratulated upon their late move looking toward cultivation of the parkings and street borders of the city and the planting thereon of suitable trees, shrubs and flowers.

The rather limited annual moisture receipt here would far better be preserved for the production of selected shade trees, shrubs and flowers than be left for the promotion of the growth of greedy, ugly and troublesome grass and weeds.

lation for the benefit of the next session is composed of the following members: Chas. V. Galloway, chairman of the state tax commission; H. C. Herron of Corvallis, county judge of Benton county; Gust Anderson and B. T. McBain of Portland; Representatives Roy Carter of Gold Beach, Ralph Stevenson of Medford and Carl Engdahl of Pendleton.

If you are a beer drinker and your next glass of suds shows signs of shrinkage don't blame the liquor control commission. A. H. McMahan, chairman of that commission, denies any responsibility whatever for the recent decision of the Oregon Food and Beverage Dispensers association to reduce the size of the 10-cent glass from 12 ounces to 10 ounces.

In Other Days

From the Observer, May 17 1918

The grain elevators being built at Hay Canyon and Moro by the Farmers Elevator Co., are now about ready to have their concrete foundations and pit built.

Wm. Henrichs and wife are home from Metolius where they have been busy putting in their war garden.

The Columbia river highway will be open from Hood River to Portland about June 1 by means of a detour around Rutherford hill.

From the Observer May 15, 1908

Grass Valley, our sister city ten miles south was visited by a disastrous fire Tuesday morning which destroyed $50,000 worth of property with $20,000 insurance.

for the Grim Reaper on Oregon's highways this year. At least the year has started out like a record breaker. The first three months accounted for a total of 63 fatalities as a result of traffic accidents.

A car load of flour broke away from the Wasco Warehouse Milling company Saturday forenoon, and whizzed out of town passing DeMoss at 70 miles per hour.

A material decrease in Oregon's general relief load is reported by Elmer Goudy, relief administrator. The number of persons receiving relief was reduced from 59,842 in February to 45,967 in March.

Although C. A. Howard's resignation as superintendent of public instruction does not take effect until September 1 Governor Martin is expected to name Howard's successor within the next few weeks just to get the matter settled and relieve the pressure that is now being brought to bear on him by the numerous candidates for Howard's job and their friends.

Oregon is in for the biggest tourist crop in its history in the opinion of Secretary Snell. He bases his opinion on foreign registrations which show that 19,029 out-of-state cars visited Oregon during the first four months of the year, compared to only 14,891 during the same period last year.

No logging, milling or other industrial operations may be carried on in Oregon's forested areas after May 15 without a permit, according to J. W. Ferguson, state forester. Permits for slash burnings will also become necessary after that date.

The interim committee which will make a study of revenue legis-

BANK BY MAIL

For the greater convenience of our out-of-town customers and others who would like to use this service, we have adopted a new, improved Bank-by-Mail method.

We provide a one-unit Deposit-by-Mail Envelope. You make out your deposit slip on the inside flap, enclose your endorsed checks, stamp and mail the self-addressed envelope. Just as easy as that. One portion of the envelope is returned to you as a receipt for your deposit.

We invite you to use this easy, safe system. It is fully explained in a leaflet which may be had by calling or writing.

For the next few weeks we shall feature and display in our lobby the products of local industries. Be sure and see it. C. R. Harding Manager L. A. Littleton, Asst. Mgr.
