Proper Land Use Favored By R. A.

Proper land use and prevention of settlement on Sherman County lands unsuited to agriculture, are goals of the Resettlement Administration's rehabilitation program, reports Milburn A. Stout, County Rehabilitation Supervisor, Hood River.

Plans worked out in cooperation with each of the 8 rehabilitation families in the county, provide for farm management and farm practices that will conserve the soil resources and still provide the maximum cash income. Where possible, participation in the soil conservation program is urged.

As every family locating on good land or in isolated districts unsuited to farming, increases county road, school and relief costs without comparable tax returns, rehabilitation loans are made only to families on potentially productive farms. A family on a farm capable of being a productive unit thru a loan for necessary livestock, feed, seed, machinery or other capital goods, is not only able to pay its taxes but spends hundreds of dollars each year with local merchants and industry.

To prevent settlement on lands unsuited for farming, newcomers expecting rehabilitation assistance are urged to check with the county supervisor before making final arrangements for purchase or lease. If the farm is located on good soil where county services and marketing facilities are available, eligibility for a loan is easily established.

The History of Spaulding Chapel (Continued from page one) Of himself Rev. Spaulding writes "I am not a relation of H. A. Spaulding who was with Dr. Whitman. My father crossed the plains in 1852, spent two years in California, and came to the Willamette Valley in 1854. He began preaching for the M. E. church that year. I began preaching in the old Columbia Conference in 1883. I am now retired and am making my home in Hood River."

Donations were made by the people of the community and enough money was raised to buy the lumber at once. It was hauled from Goldendale, Washington, and cost around $500. Mr. Emerson Peoples was the carpenter in charge, but most of the labor was done by the people of the community who donated their time. The late Mrs. Frank Belshee has told my mother about taking lunch to the men and driving nails in the floor herself.

The church was dedicated in the fall of 1888. On the day of the dedication sufficient money was raised to pay off the entire indebtedness. The following year a parsonage was built beside the church.

The first regular minister for this new charge was Rev. Frank Spaulding. Following is a list of other men who served the church during its life: M. P. Brown, Father White, John Evans, C. D. Nickelson, Eugene Alfred, Frank Johns, Ernest Lidstone, Walter Sexton, Fred Pinkham, Mr. Lather C. H. Miller. Of these Frank Johns lives in The Dalles. He says in a recent letter, "I came to the Spaulding Chapel in the fall of 1898 and was there two years. Frank Spaulding arranged my first appointment as he was presiding Elder. I enjoyed my work there very much and the people were very kind to us." Walter Sexton of The Dalles Sextons, now lives in Los Angeles. Ernest Lidstone died during his appointment in the Chapel. Very frequently evangelists came to the community to help the regular minister with revival meetings. Charlie Belshee tells a story connected with a revival meeting at the time when Frank Johns was pastor. The evangelist named Mr. Brown was preaching on the text "And Babylon fell because of unbelief." He made them more dramatic by hitting the pulpit with his clenched fist. A large kerosene lamp hanging in front of the pulpit and at the end of the front row of seats, needed only this jar to cause it to fall to the floor. Charlie himself was the first to run out the door. Running around to the rear window he managed to climb through in time to help A. M. Wright and others who were beating out the kerosene flames with their coats. The room had been crowded but was empty in a very short time without injuring any one.

In addition to revival meetings and the regular Sunday school and church the Church was the center of frequent community gatherings. At Christmas time a Juniper tree was brought in and decorated for the presents and the Christmas program. Very often community dinners were held at Thanksgiving time. Ice cream and oyster suppers were part of the club activity, but were usually held in homes of the community.

I have learned of three weddings held in this church. The first was that of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Thompson in 1889. The next was Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Dillinger, who lived in Dufur until Mr. Dillinger's recent death. The third was Mr. and Mrs. Roy Benson.

The greater part of the people whose funerals have been held in this church, were buried in the old Rosehill cemetery a mile and a half west of the church.

About twenty five years after the founding of the church or at the beginning of the period of better roads and cars, Spaulding Chapel ceased to be a separate charge. Sunday school was still held every week, but the minister located at Moro came only every two weeks.

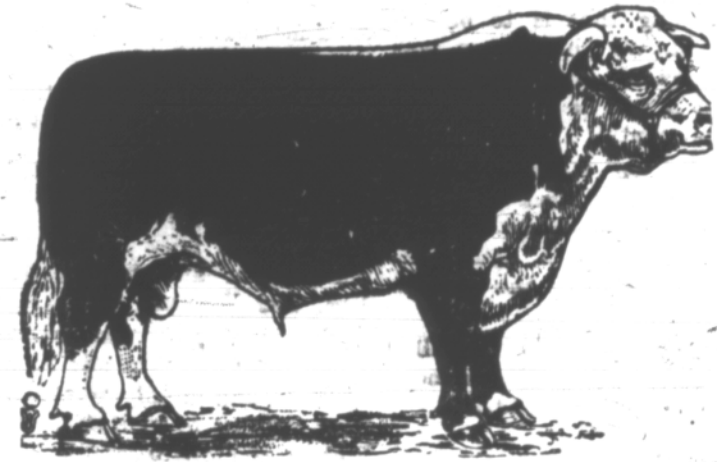

Under this plan and because of ever increasing use of cars it became difficult to maintain the church. About 1920 there was no longer an attempt made to open hold Sunday school. It was that time until the building of the Harmony Grange Hall, the Chapel was used for Grange purposes. The parsonage has long since been torn down, but the church still stands, desolate and neglected, a memorial to the days of the close community life of the past.
