G. V. School

The result of the volleyball game between Grass Valley and Rufus were girls: 50 to 10, and boys: 48 to 9. Both of the games were won by Rufus, we regret to state. Friday, October 8th, the Moro boys and girls teams play at Grass Valley.

Initiation was held last night at the school house, the result of which makes the freshmen full fledged high school students and everyone seemed to have a good time, especially the upperclassmen.

We miss our more ambitious 4-H clubbers, who are now seeking high honors at the Pacific International Stock Show. Those who are attending from our classes are: Bob King, Marcus Eslinger and Anita Dunlap. Good luck to all of them.

Wasco Festival Makes Money

The Wasco Library Association wishes to express appreciation for the splendid cooperation which made the Festival a success.

Committees, organizations, the school, friends, business houses—Pacific Power & Light Company, the Sherman County Journal, all contributed their efforts, and the proceeds are evidence that the community is interested in a bigger and better library.

At this time the financial statement is incomplete, but the profit will reach the 400 dollar mark. And while the faithful ones were cleaning up the debris Sunday morning plans were being laid for next year's event.

Bulletin Tells Of Potatoes

With prospect for the 1937-38 potato market situation, the circular gives current and statistical data of particular importance to potato producers in view of the increased production this year forecast by the government. The potato market situation is also characterized by a larger than average percentage of the crop expected to be harvested in the western states by slightly lower than average prices for competing foods at wholesale. Probably the most significant potato data in the report is that

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert A. Williams of Portland with their daughter Muriel and son Richard, were visitors over Sunday, at the home of their parents here, returning to Portland Monday morning.

Mrs. N. Sport, a sister of Mrs. G. C. Hul, with her daughter, returned to the east this week after a visit here. This was their first visit in the west.

Among the brief list of people who recently in Portland celebrated the fact they have been married over fifty years were the parents of County Clerk Joe Truitt—who have been married 72 years and Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Barzee who have been married 65 years. Mr. and Mrs. Barzee are parents of Mrs. Everett McQuillen and Art Barzee of Wasco.

Mr. and Mrs. Walt Ruggles left Saturday for a vacation giving no hint of their destination or probable return date. They just left to return when homesick for Sherman county.

Mrs. Velma McKean left for Portland Thursday to bring a new car back for delivery.

Social events in honor of Miss Dorothy Foss whose wedding will be an event of October 10 have been numerous. Mrs. Velma McKean and Mrs. Lloyd Hennagin were hostesses Wednesday night at the Hennagin home for Miss Foss and a miscellaneous shower was given Friday afternoon at the Masonic hall in her honor.

J. C. McKean, after spending the entire summer in a wheel chair, has consented to go to the hospital and is now in The Dalles under the care of Dr. Coberth. He does not know how long he will remain there but expects it to be some months before he is able to get out on both feet again.

A large number of Sherman county people have spent a day or more at the Pacific International at Portland this week and many more will see the exhibits and the horse show before the final day.

Vic Barr is home on leave from SOS work until November 17 when he will probably be sent to a yet unnamed destination. The camp at Gibbon was closed and Condon was not opened giving him a chance for his accumulated leave.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Barzee returned from Newport and valley points this week after nearly two months away from Sherman county. E. E. says there is no place like Sherman county.

Thursday for Portland to see the stock show.

Mrs. Ralph Brisbine entertained the volleyball girls at her home Wednesday evening with a dinner party.

Vote On Spud Control Scheduled

All potato growers in 18 Oregon counties who normally harvest three acres or more of potatoes will be asked to cast a ballot not later than Saturday, September 25, on the question of establishing voluntary regulation of commercial potato acreage under the AAA. Arrangements for the referendum have been completed by the extension service at Oregon State college at the request of Washington officials.

The referendum is being taken only in counties where, according to the 1934 agricultural census, there are located 50 or more farms on which 200 bushels or more of potatoes are produced.

The question on which the growers will be asked to ballot is, "Are you in favor of establishing a potato acreage goal for each commercial potato farm in connection with the 1938 agricultural conservation program?"

The proposed system would have the county committee in each designated commercial county recommend a potato acreage goal and average acre yield of potatoes for each farm which normally plants three acres or more of potatoes. These goals would be based on average acreages and yields for 1936 and '37 with such adjustments as necessary to compensate for abnormal weather or other conditions in these years. A farmer who accepted such a goal and did not exceed it in 1938 would qualify for payments under the agricultural conservation act while those who exceeded it would have deductions made from any other payments due under the agricultural conservation program.

AAA officials have been asked by the industry to attempt such voluntary control as a means of stabilizing annual production in the interest of both producer and consumer. The officials say that no program will be initiated unless it has the full support of the potato industry. Under the proposed plan no goals would be set up for farmers who do not produce potatoes on a commercial scale.
