WHEAT PROGRAM

required number of acres in soil depleting crops he is penalized 8 times his production index for each acre over his limit. In the example above if he had 1610 acres he would lose 8x156x10 or $124.80.

Production indexes are pretty well known by each farmer as they have been in effect for two or three years. The county average is 15 bushels which is 100. (Average yields below lower the index and those above raise the index.)

District meetings will be held next week and committee men elected to administer the law. Goals will be set by the five men chosen for each farm. Each farm will be given a goal whether it is under the program or not but need not comply.

Returning this week from a national conference of production credit executives in Washington, D. C., Ernest E. Henry, president of the district corporation at Spokane, reports that forward-looking plans are under way for continued development of cooperative farm financing in the four northwest states through the local production credit associations.

Embarking upon the fifth year of operation, the local cooperative credit organizations, located in 31 agricultural centers of the northwest, already have attained a leading place in the field of crop and live stock financing. Mr. Henry points out, having made seasonal loans totaling $125,000,000 to their farmer stockholding members, with approximately $20,000,000 outstanding. Constant attention is now being given to more efficient and economical operations. Mr. Henry says, to the end that association member-borrowers may continue to be served in a dependable way at lowest possible cost.

A program embracing five principal points will be launched at the associations' annual meetings the first of the year including:

1. Continued educational efforts, showing advantages of the cooperative methods of financing and stressing conservative, well planned borrowing through the use of budgets.

2. Improvement of service in out laying territory, especially where local credit is inadequate.

3. Further simplification of operations, but adhering to sound business methods.

4. More decentralization, urging local association directors to assume their full responsibility in the conduct of business and the development of their associations.

5. Constructive efforts to bring more stability to agriculture by wise financing—following economic outlook reports more closely and basing loans primarily upon the individual farmers' operating set-up and opportunity to make a profit and liquidate his note, rather than looking at the security alone.

HI-WAYS TO HEALTH

by ADA R. MAYNE
OREGON DAIRY COUNCIL

When 85 percent of all money is spent by millions of home makers and when the health and contentment of the nation depends on the direction of these expenditures some faces may well turn red to look at some of the results.

"To market, to market to SEE what she can buy," may be a ruinous move on the part of some home makers but "To market, to market, to KNOW what you buy," is not only the answer to wise food buying but contributes much to the health and happiness of family life. And here are just a few knowing tips.

First, with the slight weather change... a nipiness immediately suggests Baked Beans and Brown Bread, Macaroni and Cheese, and a countless additional substantial dishes, all good to eat, and with a definite place in the days intake.

However, a guard must be placed on these foods for they are apt to replace the milk, fruits and vegetables. Since milk, fruits and vegetables are essential to health and have earned for themselves the name of protective foods, no substitution can be made for them in any safety. Sometimes we spend as much as one-third of the total money for milk and cheese because of the protection they afford to the diet.

We may spend approximately one-fourth of our food money for fruits and vegetables knowing that some of the cheapest—potatoes, carrots and raw cabbage—are also the best, and knowing also that the body wants at least one citrus fruit a day.

And so we avert disaster and build health resistance when we market so that we continue to include due amounts of protective foods, even as we increase the supply of the energy and warming foods. We have just to recognize what a pleasant contrast vegetables provide when served with, for example a bean loaf, and what a saving too, when it is baked directly with it. Keep in mind, too, that the place for the milk pitcher is on the table at every meal and that milk should be provided for the grownups in the family, who need it, as well as the children.

This season happens to be a most fruitful squash season. Then consider the deliciousness of a Squash Souffle, for that something different to serve with a much in demand filling dish.

Squash Souffle
Serves 6 to 8
2 cups hot stewed squash
2 tablespoons brown sugar
pepper
1 1/2 cups half milk and cream.
2 eggs

Force squash through a sieve. Add sugar, butter, seasoning, milk cream and beaten egg yolk. Fold in beaten egg whites, and place in a buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven until firm and lightly brown.
