Home Accidents Make Work Safest Job

Surveys have shown the rather astonishing fact that it is much safer for a person to be working in a factory than to engage in domestic duties. Almost one-half of the accidents cared for by visiting nurses in large cities were out of domestic pursuits and less than ten percent happened while the injured person was at work.

Among the domestic injuries nearly one half were due to falls on or down stairs, on chairs, in bath tubs, slips on rugs, off the step ladder and to falls out of windows.

From which it would appear that these types of home hazards deserve more consideration as a cause of disability than they have been receiving. Burns and scalds are next in importance as a cause of domestic injury. More than 25 percent of home casualties were directly traced to stove, grate, lamp and match hazards.

While undoubtedly spectacular progress has been made against accidents in industrial establishments by means of improved safety appliances, physical examinations and personal instructions, a concentrated and regulated effort along these lines regarding the home, has as yet not been made.

In order to prevent home accidents it will be necessary to observe the basic rules of health. Sufficient sleep, adequate rest, daily exercise, and proper food are all essential but will, however, amount to little to the person who, because of an inexcusable lack of caution, meets with a physical calamity.

The habit of caution and responsible care need not and should not assume the proportions of a complex, but they should studiously be developed until natural caution becomes automatic.

A serious injury to you at home could cause wage and other losses to you and your family. Be careful of all hazards including the following:

1. Slippery floors and sidewalks
2. Defective ladders and all makeshift supports.
3. Objects left lying on floors, walks, stairways, etc.
4. Broken or loose stair-treads; torn or loose stair carpets; stairs without hand rails.
5. Electric lamps, extension cords, wall plugs, lamp sockets, and switches in bad condition.
6. Never touch a light switch and some grounded object such as a kitchen sink or a bath room fixture at the same time. You might receive a serious shock.
7. It is dangerous to approach a gas leak with an open flame. Call your gas company. If the leak seems serious shut off the gas at the meter.
8. Never use gasoline or naphtha for cleaning purposes; use only non-inflammable cleaning fluids.
9. It is dangerous to carry scalding water about the house in open pails.
10. Always open the garage door wide before starting the automobile engine.

Churches

Moro Community Presbyterian church: Mrs. Lloyd Hennagin is to be soloist at the 11 a. m. service when the pastor speaks on "The Day of Glorious Tragedy." Our adult choir will be augmented by members of the high school department.

7:15 p. m., the second study for adult and high school age group discussing "Our Highland Heritage" in the Southern Mountains. A display of Mountain curios has been obtained. Mrs. A. W. McLeod and Reatha Sayre are the group leaders this week. 10 a. m., Bible school directed by Chester Smith, general superintendent, and a staff of capable instructors.

L. H. Mitchelmore, minister.

Moro Christian Science Society: The Sunday morning service will be held at 11 o'clock. The Wednesday evening meeting which includes testimonies of Christian Science healings, is held at eight o'clock. The reading room is in the rear of the church building with an attendant after each service. The public is cordially invited to attend the church services and to make use of the reading room.

Grass Valley Lutheran Church: The Lutheran church conducts Lenten service in the Grass Valley Methodist church building March 20 and April 3. The suffering and death of the world's Savior should prompt every one to attend church service at this time, though they may ignore the general worship hour. Let no man deem it a light inconsequent fact that Christ died to save fallen mankind. Come and hear the Lenten services at 11 o'clock. A very edifying and timely service is broadcast every Sunday 7:30. It is called the Lutheran Hour. Tune in on any larger station in Oregon, Washington, Idaho or California. Holy communion will be celebrated on Easter morning.

H. H. Fleckenstein, missionary.

Grass Valley Baptist church: Due to the small pox epidemic, there will be no services at all Sunday, March 20, 1938.

Gerald C. Dryden, pastor.

Wasco Methodist church: Sunday School at 10 a. m. Classes for all ages. Preaching service at 11. Subject, "The look of longing." Text—"I will lift up mine head unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." Psalms 121:1. Epworth League at 6:00 p. m.

F. L. Cannell, pastor.

POPULATION INCREASE STUDIED BY BOARD

A report, prepared by V. B. Stanbery, secretary of the State Planning Board shows that Oregon had a net gain of approximately 96,600 in population in the seven year period ending January 1, 1937, and of these but 16,100 were the result of natural growth or excess of births over deaths.

The wave of recent immigration reached a new peak in 1935 and 1936, the report shows. In five years from 1930 to 1935 the yearly increase was 8,063, but this rose to an average of 28,166 per year during 1935 and 1936.

"These new comers have great difficulty in finding employment or land on which they can make a living. Social problems must be faced when migrants fail to make satisfactory personal adjustments. Manufacturing activities in Oregon are notably deficient and inadequate industrial development precludes absorption of any considerable number of migrant workers."

Establishment of basic industries, especially those requiring large blocks of power, greater development of lands through irrigation, flood control and clearing, and a program of public works are recommended as aids in improving the lot of people moving into this state.
