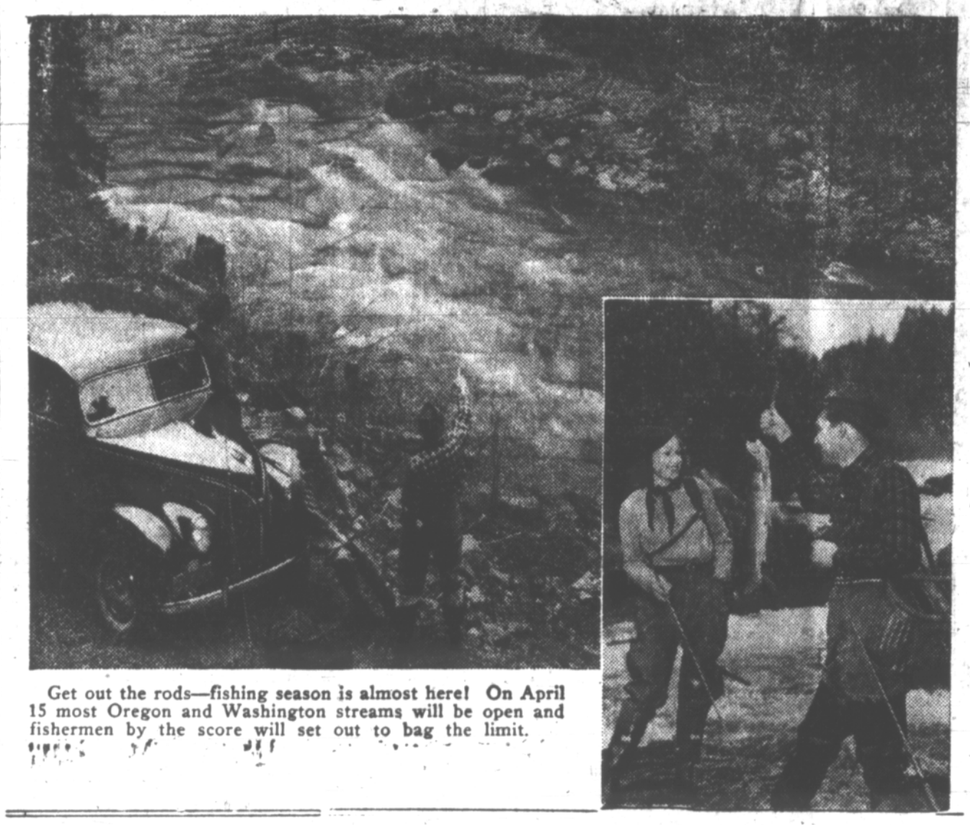
Trout Fishing Season Is Almost Here!



Get out the rods—fishing season is almost here! On April 15 most Oregon and Washington streams will be open and fishermen by the score will set out to bag the limit.

Highway travel in Oregon jumped 17.5 per cent during January and February this year, according to Secretary of State Earl Snell. This increase in traffic makes the simultaneous drop of 35 per cent in highway deaths all the more remarkable Snell declared.

A loud speaker on a police car will warn motorists and pedestrians in Grants Pass against repeating traffic blunders. The loud speaker is sponsored by the Josephine County Safety council in conjunction with Grants Pass city officials, and will be used daily in the interest of safety.

In Ireland, pedestrians were held directly responsible for 47 of the nation's 214 road fatalities last year. Drivers were held responsible for 88 fatalities, and bicyclists for 41.

To Get In On

Sam and Rastus were seated in a Jim Crow car on a southern railway en route to a plantation for the cotton picking season. They were discussing politics, with particular reference to a coming election. Rastus was a rabid partisan of the incumbent representative.

"Well," said Sam, "Ah like him all right, Ah guess; but his platform ain't no good."

"Platfo'm," snorted Rastus. "Platfo'm; say, don't you know dat a political platfo'm is just like a platfo'm on one o' dese yer railroad cars—hit ain't meant to stan' on; hit's jes' meant to get in on."

"A CREAM OF A MORNING"

"You're the cream in my coffee," a phrase from a former popular melody, was not just another idle thought, it significantly meant, "you're the tops." This type of a top is associated with song, beauty, and most highly with food.

Connoisseurs of fine foods recognize that many a poor cook is "lifted" and momentarily saved from destruction when she instinctively adds (because she maintains in her refrigerator) a portion of cream to a flat cream soup, finishes vegetables de luxe by simmering in cream, tosses rich green leaves of lettuce lightly with acid flavored whipped cream dressing, uses it significantly in desserts, and generally, makes it the paprika of her product.

Today's convenient variations in size of bottles make it possible to purchase amounts adaptive to the family needs. However, as house wives may have discovered, the "food beauty" and economy of cream is that it becomes valuable after the turning point. The break down of tissue in meat cookery by using sour cream for the liquid is well known, the use of sour cream in the popular Russian soup Borsch is no secret, and cakes and pastries take on new flavor and texture when made with sour cream.

Additionally, pure pasturized cream is a food of unusual value in human nutrition. As that part of milk which consists mainly of butterfat, cream posesses all the nutritive advantages of the most nearly perfect food, as well as approximately five times its Vitamin A content (ranking closely to the amount available in cod liver oil)

Recent experiment on the effect of increased Vitamin A content in women's diet reveals that this Vitamin is most significant in preserving fine skin texture and muscle tone. Of course, it is true that indiscretion in food intake, together with increased intake of cream would tend to increase weight. But the amount of enticing pastries and bon-bons are wisely limited so that a protective amount of cream may be included with a feeling of security in weight control.

Today, with the decreased cost of cream, it cannot possibly be considered a luxury, but one of the foods that is necessary for the maintenance of optimum health for all members of the family; cream on your berries and on your cereals again becomes a daily habit.

Celery in Cream

One quart diced celery
One cup cream
One tablespoon butter
Dash pepper
One half teaspoon salt
One eighth teaspoon nutmeg

Cook the celery until tender. Meanwhile thoroughly heat the cream, to which the butter and seasoning have been added. Drain the cooked celery and pour the hot cream over it in the serving dish. Garnish with finely minced parsley.

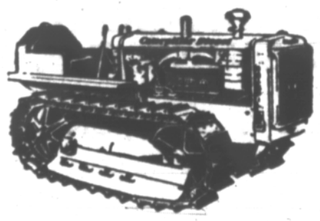
Check for Quality too



If you are seeking low price alone, there are many tractors cheaper than "Caterpillar" Tractors.
But if you want quality, too . . . . and the genuine economy of a machine that is built for dependable long service—
Then . . . . . none are so low in cost as "Caterpillar" Diesels.
Check for quality as well as price. The new D-2 Diesel pays for itself in a surprisingly short time.
