SPICES FOR VARIETY

Have you ever experienced the disappointment of a carefully planned and carefully prepared meal - well, just not getting over? A meal may be well balanced, as to vitamins, minerals, roughage, and such; it may be colorful and pleasingly so, and yet from the standpoint of flavor will lack the zest and the interesting jolts that our appetites demand.

Many cooks have won fame, or at least praise, by adding an unexpected bit of spice to foods commonly accepted at their face value. Some of these additions are now so common as to be part of standard recipes, as cloves in baked ham, cloves and bay leaf in tomato soup or sauce, gingerroot with preserved-pears. But there are many more unusual touches that have proved happy discoveries and probably just as many to be discovered by those who dare to be adventurous. Moderation and variety are the rules for using spice seasoning. While a little is good, too much may easily spoil a dish. And without variety even the best spices fail to be interesting.

To get the most flavor from every fleck of spices, season puddings, pudding sauces, and sprinkle the topping on milkshakes at the last possible moment. If your apple pie recipe tells you to "dot" the surface of the spiced apples with butter, that's a good tip too. Mixing with the butter helps hold more of the spiciness until serving time. Try adding a grating or two of nutmeg to chicken soup or creamed spinach; a dash of mace to oyster soup; a little curry powder to lima beans. Curry powder gives an interest of flavor for a mixed green salad, and a white sauce seasoned with curry is delicious on poached or sliced hard cooked eggs.

The ancient Aztecs, it is said, spiced their hot chocolate with cinnamon, and modern Mexicans keep that custom today. So if you would like a different flavor for variety's sake serve Mexican Chocolate. This recipe makes six cup of chocolate.

Mexican Chocolate
One quart of milk
One inch stick cinnamon
Three table spoons ground coffee
Two squares sweet chocolate
One half cup boiling water
One half teaspoon vanilla extract
One eighth teaspoon salt

Heat milk to scalding with the cinnamon and coffee. Strain and add the chocolate melted in the boiling water. Heat again to the boiling point, remove, and add vanilla and salt. Beat until frothy and serve hot.

For Convenience
Customer (suspiciously):—I see you have placed all the best tomatoes on the top.
Grocer—Yes, ma'am. We do that to save you the trouble of hunting through the box for them.

Of Course Not
Smith—Patience has ceased to be a virtue with me now. I refer to my neighbor's conduct.
Brown—Isn't he neighborly?
Smith—His conduct has become intolerable. He built a six foot fence between his house and mine. I was willing to overlook that, but now he has increased the fence to ten feet and that I can't overlook.

Dust Stays Out

of the "Caterpillar" Diesel

The "Caterpillar" track-type Tractor doesn't fool around taking chances with dust at any point. At the final drives of every "Caterpillar" track-type Tractor stands "Caterpillar" Bellows Seals... the most effective dust, mud, and water seals ever developed in tractor history. Track rollers, crankcase breather, control lever entrances... all repel dust, not halfway, but positively!

You must have this 100% sealing against dust to protect extra years of tractor life. Don't take chances on a tractor without them!
