

Mrs. J. H. Johnson At Wasco Reaches Ninety

The members of the Ever Faithful Sunday school class met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Johnson Wednesday to observe the annual Christmas party and with invited friends of Mrs. Johnson participate in the celebration of an important event, her 90th birthday. Mrs. Johnson was born December 14, 1848, on a river boat on the Mississippi and was four days old when her parents, Fredene and Marie Diebert landed in Cairo, Illinois. They moved from there to Kentucky, again to Illinois to reside in Sangamon county where she was married in the town of Old Berlin to John H. Johnson in a double wedding ceremony for her sister, Barbara, who became the bride of James Yates at the same time. They came to Oregon in 1880 and located in the Biglow district on a homestead. At that time Wasco consisted of the Barnett store, an old blacksmith shop, and the Biggs and McPherson residences. The old Methodist was being built. The Johnsons moved into town after many years on the ranch and Mr. Johnson died here at the age of 88. Mrs. Johnson is still active in church work and until a few years ago did her own house work. Her many friends wished her many happy returns of the day.

HI-WAYS TO HEALTH by ADA R. MAYNE OREGON DAIRY COUNCIL

There is no surer way of enjoying Christmas than by sharing in some way the joys or sorrows of others. The Christmas spirit is demonstrated in so many ways but those who year after year, help some one less fortunate than themselves, know the joy of real Christmas spirit.

The help you give may be the giving of food, or fuel, or clothing—for it is well to know the needs of those who you are helping. If you have in mind a gift basket of food we have a suggestion. Do not make it just a "basket of food" but make it a basket with an idea in it. Make it a well balanced food supply that will last the Christmas week end, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, this year. Choose the foods carefully and know that the family receiving the basket will get the most food value for the money spent.

There is distinctly a "how" to this sort of planning. Particularly for a needy family it is important to supply the right kinds of food, especially the kinds that such a family is not likely to have. It is a safe guess these kinds are milk, vegetables and fruits—without which a diet is one-sided and therefore likely to bring ill health. But how much milk, how much and which of the vegetables and fruits will make the best meals for the least money—balanced meals, of course?

Begin your list with milk—one quart for each child and one pint for adults. This may not sound like a starter for a Christmas feast, but milk is very important. The children will need the milk, and it will be needed in cooking. Include next, half a pound of Cheddar cheese. Made from whole milk this type of cheese contains many of the food value of milk. It will add to the Christmas dinner, either as plain cheese or with apple pie, for instance.

The next on the list will be the vegetables. First of all three pounds of white potatoes, because of their energy values, too; a head of green cabbage; two pounds of carrots; two pounds of onions; and two cans of tomatoes will provide numerous possibilities for attractive dishes, as well as vitamin and mineral values.

Of fruit include two pounds of apples and half a dozen oranges—one orange for each member of the family. A pound of raisins—for their iron and their vitamins—and also because they make puddings and cakes taste better and look more festive.

With the children especially in mind, put into the basket a dozen eggs—a child should have several eggs a week at least, and your dozen will help toward that.

For the Christmas meat we suggest a loin roast of pork, a pot roast of beef, or a small leg of lamb. Of course there must be energy foods—especially bread and cereals. A package of whole wheat cereal, two loaves of bread, a pound of butter, and two pounds of sugar will complete the list for energy foods. Include also a pound of coffee or a quarter pound of tea, then tuck in a few sprigs of parsley, a pound of cranberries, and some peanuts, if you can, and your basket will be completed.

With this completed, well balanced basket you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have provided not only for the Christmas dinner but for the holidays following.

And a Merry Christmas to you all!

4-H Clubbers Raise Good Seed Corn

The Commercial National Bank 4-H Corn show, being held in the lobby of the bank at Hillsboro Dec. 9 and 10 for the ninth consecutive time, is the forerunner of the corn shows now being sponsored in various counties of the state, as well as of the state corn show, says L. E. Francis, assistant county agent. Each year Washington county 4-H corn club members grow and market from 6 to 10 tons of high quality seed corn, which has found markets in all sections of this state, as well as in neighboring states.

CARELESS TURNING CAUSE MANY SERIOUS ACCIDENTS

Careless turning is responsible for hundreds of automobile accidents in Oregon every year, and also accounts for several fatalities, Secretary of State Earl Snell said today. He referred particularly to turning from the wrong lane, turning without signalling, and making reverse turns where visibility is limited. The chief factors in turning safely are to make sure that other drivers understand what you intend to do, and to delay the turn until automobiles which have the right of way have proceeded, Snell said.

AUTOMOBILE ANALYSED BY MATERIAL WEIGHT

Nearly 200,000 Oregonians own "packages" containing a strange assortment of materials. And they don't realize it. Each of the packages contains a ton and a half of steel, 38 pounds of copper and brass, 2 pounds tin, 27 pounds of lead, 144 pounds of cast pig iron, 110 pounds of rubber, one-tenth bale of cotton, 18 square yards of upholstery fabric, 21 gallons of spraying lacquer, 37 pounds of paper and fiber board, 18 square feet of glass. The Oregon Motor association, quoting from the Washington Daily News, says these are a few of the basic items you buy when you purchase an automobile.
