Biggest Enrollment Expected at U of O
University of Oregon, Eugene, April 14—The Oregon basketball team, busy winning the western and national titles while their fellow students enrolled a couple of weeks ago, turned to their registration cards last week and swelled the total for the institution to over the 3,000 mark, the first time this figure has been reached in a spring term, it was announced by C. L. Constance, assistant registrar.

Total registration to date is already a substantial increase over the 2870 enrolled for the spring term last year. A number of other late comers are yet expected to register, to swell the all-time high mark for this term.

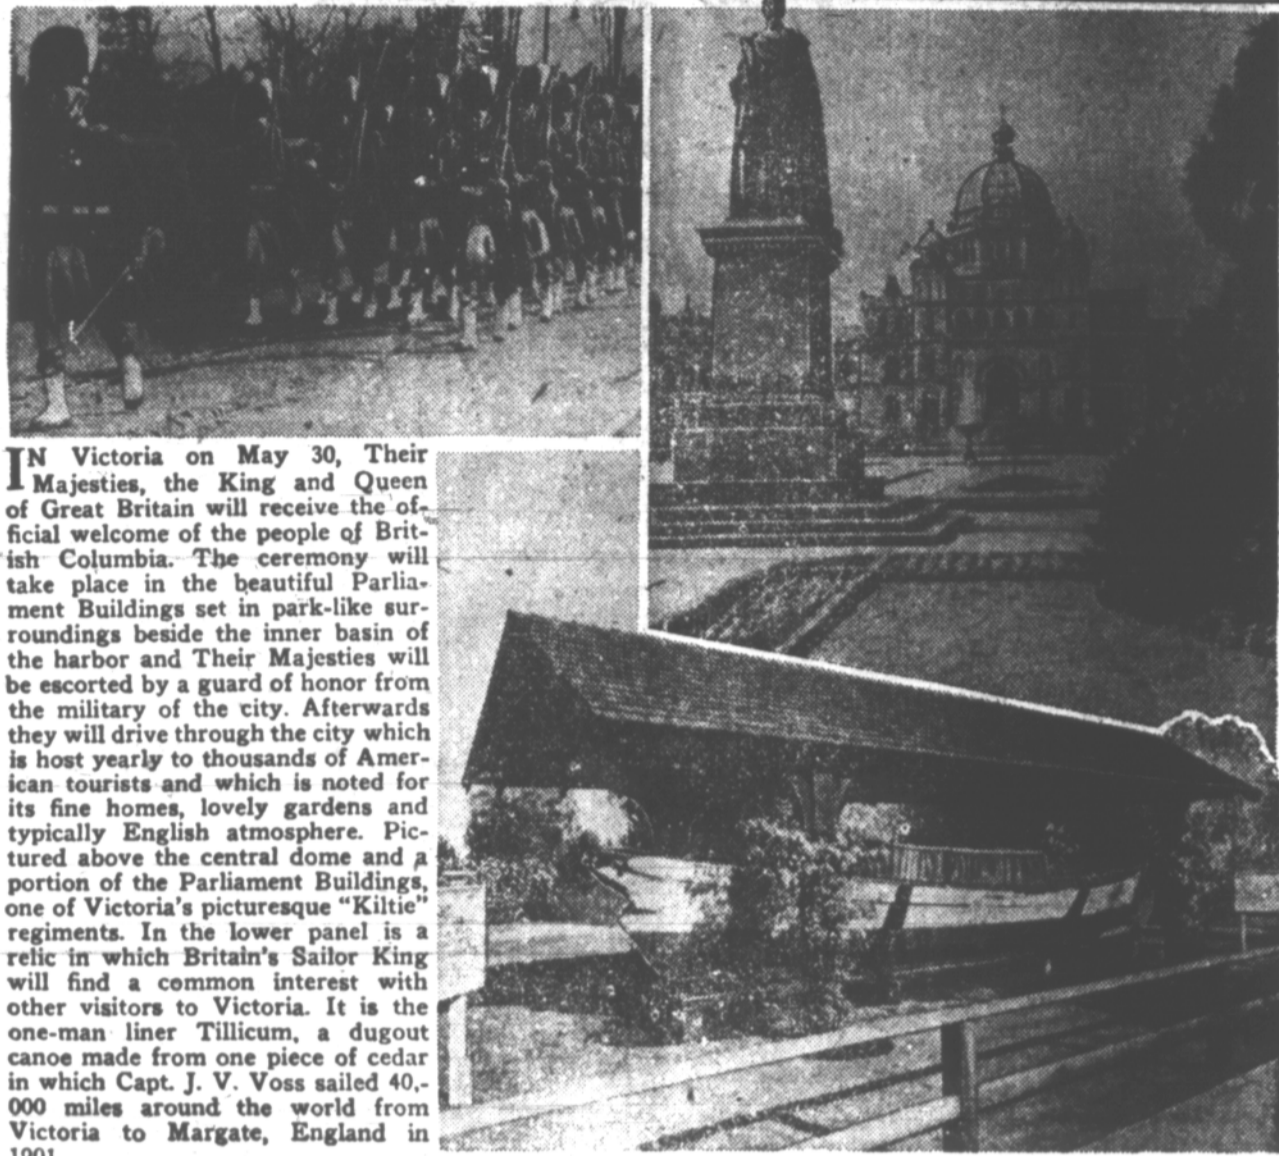

Cumulative enrollment for the entire year, which includes students registering regardless of the time they have remained in the university, is nearing the 37,000 mark, also a new all-time record for the institution.

To Be Expected
He was being interviewed for a job. After the first few remarks the employer explained, "Everything in this establishment is run by electricity."

"Yes, I quite believe you," said the applicant. "The salary offerer has already given me a shock."

Where Royal Visitors Will Be Welcomed to British Columbia

IN Victoria on May 30, Their Majesties, the King and Queen of Great Britain will receive the official welcome of the people of British Columbia. The ceremony will take place in the beautiful Parliament Buildings set in park-like surroundings beside the inner basin of the harbor and Their Majesties will be escorted by a guard of honor from the military of the city. Afterwards they will drive through the city which is host yearly to thousands of American tourists and which is noted for its fine homes, lovely gardens and typically English atmosphere. Pictured above the central dome and a portion of the Parliament Buildings, one of Victoria's picturesque "Kiltie" regiments. In the lower panel is a relic in which Britain's Sailor King will find a common interest with other visitors to Victoria. It is the one-man liner Tillicum, a dugout canoe made from one piece of cedar in which Capt. J. V. Voss sailed 40,000 miles around the world from Victoria to Margate, England in 1911.

Spring is Time for Physical Check Up

With the first days of spring, there is usually a desire to clean up, to cut out the dead wood, and rake up the winter's refuse.

The spring clean-up idea was applied to the youngsters in the old days in the form of sulphur and molasses. A modern view applying the principle of personal hygiene is to make a spring check-up of physical efficiency and vigor.

The ideal is to have a well developed body of moderate size with a symmetrical and adequate distribution of normal weight for the height and age.

The ideal includes also a deep chest, broad shoulders, non-protruding abdomen, and flat shoulder blades with an absence of slouch or spinal curvature. If you have these qualifications you have a sound foundation to build on. Proportionate development gives symmetry to form, good poise, erect posture and graceful carriage. An elastic step, a ruddy complexion and clear, sparkling eyes are further evidence of health. Habits conducive to health include regular hours of work, recreation, and meals; ample rest and sleep; a health protection diet, and good elimination. No person need fear the years after forty if he can adapt and adjust himself to warning signals and have frequent structural check-ups.

If you find in your spring check up that shoulders begin to droop, chest becomes depressed, stomach protrudes, back rounds over, feet protest under the strain of increased weight and wrong use, the fat pads appear in definite areas, you should have a thorough physical examination to determine the causes of these changes. You may find that as a result of these changes, the circulation, digestion, and the elimination have become troublesome, sluggish, and precarious. Muscles become flabby from lack of use and refuse to do their work of holding the structure together properly. Such disorders can usually be corrected in their beginnings if one makes a constructive attempt to overcome them.

Important as exercise is to the preservation of bodily tone, there are times when relaxation should be substituted for activity until the tenseness is gone, and fatigue eliminated. Physical fitness can be retained only by a full and intelligent plan of living. Begin the spring season by budgeting your physical reserve as you would budget your income, spending wisely along the way so that you will have a reserve of as great a value at forty as at twenty-one. Find out by a thorough medical and structural examination what your physical assets and liabilities are. Plan your health habits to suit your individual needs. The best way to test your capacity is the way you feel at both ends of the day. If you are worn out when you awaken, you are in no condition for a day's work. If you are unduly fatigued when you come home at night, your daily plan of living needs correction. Your physician should be consulted to determine the cause of abnormal fatigue. It may be easily corrected or it may be the beginning of a serious disease. Life can be prolonged and many diseases prevented by intelligent living.
