Britain's Sailor King Will Feel at Home in Vancouver

WHEN Britain's Sailor King visits Vancouver, British Columbia, with his Consort at the end of May, he will feel at home. For Vancouver is a city of the sea. In and out of its great harbor flows the trade of the world and as a port it is one of the most important links in the life-line of the British Empire. Under its modern skyline lives and is seen the romance that makes sailormen from opposite poles members of one fellowship. A British tar swaps yarns and cigarettes with an American gob. A turbaned East Indian passes the time of day with a broad-chested Norwegian sailor. Proud liners and nondescript tramps tie up side by side at the piers, and through Vancouver's pulsating harbor moves all the necessities of life. Pictured above are three typical views of Vancouver.

The Lions, the twin peaks that stand guard over the harbor and below is a piece of the city's skyline as seen through the rigging of a ship entering the harbor.

HI-WAYS TO HEALTH by ADA R. MAYNE OREGON DAIRY COUNCIL

One of the most important considerations in health education in recent years has been the school lunchroom program. The growing acceptance of the "school meal" as a means of helping toward a well balanced diet for growing children is world wide. Many countries have had such a program for many years, others are relatively new, but all with the same general objective - "Help today, to protect the children of tomorrow."

One of our own states has adopted the slogan, "An adequate lunch for every child." This is really the ideal back of any well organized school lunch program. But to accomplish this an understanding of the foods that make for an adequate lunch must always be kept in mind. In another state, the department of health, under whose guidance all school lunch rooms in this particular state are run, uses what they call a measuring stick for a well chosen lunch which reads: Milk - 1 pint or 2 foods made with milk

A hot dish - particularly in cold weather
Fruit or vegetable - a full serving fresh or cooked
Sandwich - made often with dark bread, well spread with butter
Dessert - if pocketbook allows
If this same measure were used for every school lunch served, it would assure a highly nourishing noonday meal that would help in overcoming the increased malnutrition showing up in school children. A lunch planned after the above pattern would include large amounts of calcium, of vitamins, especially A, B, C, and of energy foods, - all of which are necessary to the growing child, in developing strong and healthy bodies. Along with physical improvement, there is nearly always an accompanying gain in weight, in alertness and interest in school work, in play,

WASCO MORO

Even Thirty Years Ago When Sherman County

advertising in local papers was considered the only means of reaching the citizens of this most prosperous county. Then, as now, the county was an economic unit working at the same industry in the same way and with the same tools, buying the same merchandise, eating the same foods and wearing the same clothes.

Today advertising in the SHERMAN COUNTY JOURNAL is the accepted way to inform Sherman county citizens of merchandise offered, its quality and its price. It is a progressive county, filled with men and women who forge ahead at whatever they do. Neither business men nor farmers succeed with any other policy.
