Grass Valley Lodge Gives Play

The Rebekah lodge of Grass Valley presented a three act play to a large audience last Friday night at the Grass Valley auditorium. The play entitled, "Aunt Susie Shoots the Works" was a comedy mystery with Georgia Blaylock in the title role. Aunt Susie, an unmarried, man hating female, was to inherit a house and nearby sausage works from a friend, provided she was married within thirty days to one Omar Graves, a confirmed bachelor. Upon arriving at the house Aunt Susie, her niece, Joy (Mrs. Don Smith) and Joy's maid, a colored comic (Clara Kock) began noticing mysterious sounds and happenings which gave a megalomane, Omar Graves (T. M. Rolfe) and his colored servant (Frank Bayer) arrived on the scene with the intention of refusing to live up to the provisions of the will.

To help a bad situation along Omar Graves's servant gave some love lozenges to practically every one in the cast with the result that whenever two members of the opposite sex got together there was an expression of sentiment between them. From the mix-up Aunt Susie decides to marry Omar Graves immediately and take her niece and her fiance (Kendrick Dunlap) on a double honeymoon to Europe. In the meantime the two colored servants who provided much of the comedy have decided to take the oath of marriage. Johnny Rogers (Kendrick Dunlap) finds a solution to the mysterious happenings by exposing two criminals, (Cora Bayer and Lester Smith) who have robbed a rich lady Laura Dawson (Edna Kee) of her jewels and money. Myrtle Barnum as Cynthia, was the typical small town woman who knew the late owner of the sausage works. Miss Lark, portrayed by Mrs. Kendrick Dunlap, was the woman lawyer in charge of the will.

After the play the chairs were removed and many persons stayed to dance to the music of the local orchestra.
