Homemade Electrical Apparatus Dangerous

On Friday, August 2, 1940, "Jackie" Walker, four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsie Walker, Route 1, Springfield, was electrocuted when he contacted an electrically energized wire used as a fence around the property of Al Campbell, a neighbor. This is the first death of a person in Oregon from a homemade electric fence.

The device used to energize the fence was built for Mr. Campbell by a neighbor's boy who constructed it in accordance with a description and diagram published in a nationally distributed magazine "Mechanix Illustrated." It did not comply in any respect with recognized safety standards. The current was continuous and had a value twice that known to be safe. This accident will serve to indicate the truth of the oft repeated statement that it is impossible for the layman to build a safe electric fence unit. This is a job for a trained engineer and even he must have electrical laboratory testing equipment before he can construct a device having proper safety factors, warns the State Bureau of Labor.

ELK SEASON TO OPEN

All steps possible to prevent our break of any fires during the Clatsop county elk season are being taken by the State Game Commission officials.

With the cooperation of the State Forestry department, arrangements have been made for the establishment of at least eight "hot" camps—where camp fires may be built—and only cold camps will be permitted elsewhere in the hunting area.

The Clatsop county bull elk season opens at noon on August 24 and ends on September 2. Shooting of cow elk will not be permitted in Clatsop county and any hunter killing cow elk will face vigorous prosecution.

If a hunter is unable to bag a bull elk in Clatsop county, his bull elk tag will be good in Northwest Oregon during the elk season there, November 1 to 16, inclusive.

THEY BUCK

No better string of bucking horses can be found than the bunch brought here by Mac Barber. Not one comes out of the chute without going into a dance that more often than not upsets his would-be rider.

This is YOUR Fair. The 4-H boys and girls who exhibit are YOUR children; the men and women you meet are YOUR neighbors; the exhibits and the racing stock are YOUR animals.
