MORO SCHOOL NOTES
Last Friday marked the last volleyball game of the season. It was played on the local floor against the Grass Valley team. The Grass Valley boys and the Moro girls were victorious. Both games were close and exciting.

The boys have now started basketball practice. The first contest will be the jamboree at Rufus on December 6th. Each team in the county will play a quarter against each of the other teams. The team with the most points will be the winner.

The regular schedule starts January 13th.

I wish to thank the Voters at Tuesday's election for their expression of confidence in my stewardship as Sheriff of Sherman county and assure them that I will continue to give my best toward the conduct of the office.

Garage Men Needed In Service

The garages and automobile repair shops of the nation employ some 200,000 mechanics and 120,000 helpers within the draft age, according to a survey just reported to the Oregon State Association by the A.A.A.

Since there are but an estimated 360,000 mechanics and 150,000 helpers of all ages in the 90,000 garages and repair shops, the figures foretoken the possibility of a shortage of trained mechanics when the draft and other phases of national defense get under way and point to a need for prompt institution of mechanic training programs, the Motor Association points out.

Already, the national defense program has accounted for the weaning of some 10,000 mechanics from the repair shops to the aviation and automotive industries, the survey indicated. At the same time, about 70 per cent of the garages answering the questionnaire anticipated an increase in automobile repair work during the next three or four years, particularly if the armament program should disrupt the practice of introducing new models each year.

Kick Up Tunes

Two ladies were sitting at an open window.
One was listening to a church choir practicing across the way.
The other was listening to the noise of the crickets.
The first one said, "How loudly they sing tonight!"
"And the other one said: "Yes, and they tell me they do it with their hind legs."

Death Rate Drops

The traffic death rate for the first nine months of 1940, as expressed in the number of persons killed per 100,000,000 miles of travel, was 10.8, a slight decrease from the rate of 11.2 recorded for the same period last year, it was announced today by Earl Snell, secretary of state.

The lowered death rate is a tribute to the driving care exercised by Oregon motorists because it indicates that in spite of more travel in Oregon, and the consequent greater exposure to accidents there was actually a lower percentage of fatal accidents, Snell said. Traffic in Oregon, as computed from gasoline consumption, was eight percent greater than during the first nine months of 1939. In the face of this increase, the actual death toll increased only three per cent, giving the lower death rate for the period.

During the month of September this year, the traffic death rate was 9.3 as compared to a rate of 13.5 for the corresponding month of 1939. There were 26 deaths during that month, a decrease of 27 per cent from the toll of 36 for the corresponding month a year ago. Travel during the month of September was five per cent over that of the same month last year.
