EASY

"I want this picture of my soldier husband enlarged," said Mrs. Higgins to the photographer. "Now can you do it with his hat off?"

The photographer studied the portrait and said: "I think I can manage to fake the hair. By the way, on which side does he part it?"

"Oh, I just can't remember replied the woman, "but you'll be able to see that when you take his hat off."

SEA TRIP DOES PRESIDENT GOOD

President Roosevelt, who has been pallid, ashy-gray, after two weeks at sea inspecting bases in the Caribbean returned with a coat of tan. Although absent from the national capital, he carried on his "paper work" and was in constant touch with the White House. Secret service operatives, who constantly guard the President, killed time fishing from the cruiser. Next move is to guard the Pacific coast by enabling American warships to use the Singapore base. Negotiations are in progress.

Argument to be used in requesting a beginning on the reclamation end of the Grand Coulee project is that the reclamation project acres now in cultivation yield $37,068 an acre, and the 1,200,000 acres at Grand Coulee would furnish homes for migrants from the dust bowl. Head of the navy department complains that defense production is handicapped by Walsh-Healy bill, which specifies wage-hour provisions in all government contracts. Congress discusses legislation preventing non-union men from working on defense orders.

CARE WILL REDUCE HIGHWAY DEATHS

"Let's begin Forty-one without a one!"

Urging Oregon drivers and pedestrians to exercise care in order to avoid traffic accidents on New Year's eve and on the following day, Earl Snell, secretary of state, suggests this slogan.

Last year, four persons were killed in traffic accidents in Oregon on the last day of December. This year, Snell and others working in the interest of traffic safety in Oregon hope they can reduce this toll so that the state can start the new year with a clean slate.

In view of the fact that statistics show that pedestrians are the heaviest sufferers during the holiday period, the traffic safety division has distributed several thousand and pedestrian-driver cards, designed to acquaint both drivers and pedestrians with the situation regarding pedestrian accidents in this state and containing suggestions for avoiding such accidents.

An optimist is a guy who thinks his wife has quit cigarettes when he finds cigar butts around the house.

NEW GAME LICENCES SOON READY FOR DELIVERY

With Oregon's 1940 Big Game season history, the curtain falling on Migratory Bird season in this state, and fishing confined largely to the coastal streams, attention of the Oregon State Game Commission is now centered in distribution of 1941 hunting and fishing licenses.

Preparations for supplying more than 200,000 sportsmen with the new licenses has been under way for some little time. The sale opens on December 15 in both the Commission's Portland office and at 600 agencies scattered throughout the state.

Opening of the sale in the middle of the month was made because of the heavy demand on the part of persons who desire to purchase licenses and use them as Christmas gifts.

Warning is issued that persons mailing money for Veterans and Pioneer licenses should first obtain application blanks from the license agencies, filling them out with report of the 1940 kill and other information, before mailing them to Portland. This will avoid delay in return of the licenses.

$375,000 to Clackamas county with which to build 100 houses for low income families in Milwaukie. This will be about $3,850 per residence, provided the site is furnished by the county, and for that sum a very excellent house "to eliminate slums" can be provided. Similar offers of loans to other communities have been rejected.

Some 100-odd communities in Oregon and Washington were listed for millions of dollars for airports several months ago. Out of this list ten Oregon and nine Washington towns were given priority. The remainder were left holding the bag.

The CAA was given $40,000,000 for the entire country, when the estimate totaled more than a half billion. Under the plea of national defense a few more communities may be assisted with their airports, but this is uncertain.

Friday, January 3, witnesses the opening of the new congress, which will be one of the most important in this generation. There is a prospect that it will run continuously on account of the threat of war.

HI-WAYS TO HEALTH

by ADA R. MAYNE
OREGON DAIRY COUNCIL

Although New Year's resolutions made earnestly are apt to be forgotten after the coming of the new year, the idea of an annual check-up is a good one. The resolution may in the end amount to nothing more than a consciousness of a need for a change in ourselves, even this is better than no resolution at all.

A resolution regarding good principles of diet is always in order for the homemaker. To take advantage of the many sources of nutritional information and to apply this knowledge in the every day feeding of the family is a job important enough to deserve special consideration when New Year's resolutions are made.

To serve the family an abundance of protective foods is a suggestion for a starting point. The "protective foods" Milk, fruits, vegetables and eggs, have been given emphasis by food scientists because of their high mineral and vitamin content and therefore the name protective. Milk is given first place in this important list of foods because it contains more of the protective mineral and vitamins than any other food, and in addition is a body builder because of its fine quality protein.

One quart of milk each day for the children and at least a pint a day for adults; a generous serving of fruit, if possible two, with one of citrus variety or tomatoes; at least one serving of vegetables be sides potatoes and preferably of green or yellow color; and eggs at least three or four times a week - and there you have the recommended amounts of protective foods.

It is simple enough and easy enough to do, once the home maker is in the habit of considering these foods first. There is little danger of the necessary foods being neglected - meat, cereals, sweets and fats - so thought should be put on the protective part of the food planning this year and the home maker will have the satisfaction of knowing that the big job of feeding the family is well done.

Even before the last Christmas cookie and the last slice of fruit cake disappears, it is time to look ahead to the days and weeks of planning regular meals. A good way to assure enough milk in the family diet is to use it generously in food preparation and there is no better way than in a delicious milk dessert.
