It does not near begin to hit the income tax payer like property taxes do the property owner. For those who have property, unfortunately, there is no exemption. When one gets up into the higher brackets where the government demands three quarters of the total income the tax seems pretty stiff, but there seems to be plenty left for such fortunate individuals. It is entirely possible that by the first of the year there will be another tax to be paid, one that will be much higher than this one. If not this year, it is certain that by 1943 everyone will have to pay more. May be a solution to all this spending is to raise the taxes high enough that everyone would want to know where the money was going. Anyway, that seems to be the only way it can be stopped now.

Kelly's Column

placed under a ban because they have metals that are required for war defense, and the factories are either turning to something else or are going out of business. It is interesting to note that when the farmer has electricity the first thing he buys is not a milking machine, or a cream separator, or small motor, but a radio.

Communities in the northwest wishing a new industry or national defense orders usually make the same mistake. They write to their congressman or senator, "We want such and such; try and get it for us." No data is submitted, no maps showing the area, the land available, the housing situation, labor resources, skilled mechanics, the climate, elevation of the town, means of transportation by railroad, river or highways. Without a definite plan to present to whatever agency is approached the member of congress is helpless and all he can do is notify the agency that the community wants something. The request is placed on file and forgotten, and the community decides that the congressman has thrown them down. To obtain results the member must be fortified with an array of facts and be able to answer any question that agency may propound.

LINDBECK'S STATE NEWS

fence Robert Farrell, Jr., who served as Speaker of the House of Representatives in the last legislature, has been recognized as an active candidate for this post for several months. In fact Farrell's candidacy is regarded as having gained considerable impetus during the legislative session. George Flagg, deputy secretary of state under Snell would like very much to succeed his chief but will probably not enter the lists as a contender for the position if Snell becomes a candidate for governor. Elbert Bede, Oregon newspaperman now located in Portland but formerly of Cottage Grove, has been doing considerable scouting around and is understood to have lined up considerable support from members of the newspaper fraternity but so far has made no announcement of his intentions.

Democratic party leaders are understood to have brought considerable pressure to bear on Rex Putnam, state superintendent of public instruction, in an effort to persuade him to enter the lists as a candidate for Snell's job but so far Putnam has resisted this pressure, preferring to remain in the teaching profession, especially if he can continue in his present office which is a non-partisan position. Bruce Spaulding, aggressive young district attorney of Polk county who gave I. H. Van Winkle such a run for the attorney generalship in the last campaign, is understood to be giving serious consideration to suggestions that he take a whirl at the job now held by Snell and is expected to announce in due time as a candidate for the Democratic nomination.

The secretary of state in addition to presiding over the destinies of the state department, including the motor vehicle division, is also a member of the board of control, land board, banking board, printing board and several other state boards and commissions. The state board of control administered a gentle slap on the wrist of the business office of the state university this week when it turned down a "rush" request covering the purchase of 50 beds for the dormitories at the institution. Holding that the university officials should have been able to foresee the need in time to forestall any emergency situation the board directed that the requisition should go through the regular procedure. Dan Fry, state purchasing agent, told the board that similar "rush" requests had been received at the opening of school for the past several years, the institutions waiting until the last minute to fill their needs and then going out into the open market and buying without the formality of asking for bids on their needs. The board of control held that this practice would be permitted in the future only after a real emergency was shown to exist.

There will be no attempt to construct the new million dollar state office building authorized by the last legislature, until the present defense emergency is over if members of the state board of control adhere to the policy adopted this week. Board members agreed that it would be the part of wisdom to withhold construction on this project to take up the slack in employment expected to follow the let-up in the defense program. Members of the state emergency board whose consent must be had before the building

Public Safety Record Better Since 1933, Analysis Reveals

Mr. and Mrs. America can be proud of a marked improvement since 1933 in social trends affecting public safety.

Reductions in the rate of automobile traffic fatalities, in deaths from alcoholism and in incidence of crime stand out among the improvements in the period since Prohibition was repealed. Basic statistical reports recently issued by governmental and other authoritative agencies provide the figures for analysis.

The 1941 edition of "Accident Facts," just published by the National Safety Council, shows that the highway fatality rate was 12.1 deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle miles in 1940. This contrasted with 19.0 in 1935, the first year for which the statistics were compiled. The average motor vehicle death rate for the prohibition years from 1925 to 1932 was 17.49 per 100,000,000 vehicle miles, while since the end of Prohibition, the average rate has declined to 15.26 and for the last three years it has averaged 12.3.

The death rate from alcoholism has been halved since 1935, when the high mark of 4.0 per 100,000 population was recorded. In 1938 and 1939, the latest years for which these Census Bureau figures are available, the rate was 2 per 100,000—the lowest since 1921. The death rate from alcoholism for the Young, tender carrots, served raw, are one of the best salad joiners. Their mild flavor and bright color combine well with vegetables of distinctive flavor and pale color, such as cabbage, celery, and cucumbers. Or serve the carrot in slender sticks cut lengthwise of the root. For variety, cut the carrots or shred them on an ordinary salad shredder (finest size.)

One favorite way of preparing shredded raw carrot is in a gelatin salad in combination with pineapple or orange. Another is a crunchy sandwich filling made of shredded carrots, chopped peanuts, and salad dressing. Cabbage carrots, grated onion juice, and chopped peanuts make a fine winter salad.

For variety try cooking shredded carrots in a small quantity of boiling water containing salt and a small amount of sugar. Do not drain. Season with butter or cream and a little nutmeg.

STUDY GOVERNMENT?

The proposal has been made that the local library, or other local libraries, in fact, might perform a public service and provide some enjoyment during the winter months by sponsoring a local government forum.

These forums, held at appropriate intervals through the fall and winter season would, it is understood, have speakers, panel discussions, and discussions about county, city and school district government. Some might deal with certain phases of all such governments such as budget making, for instance, means of obtaining money, services that can be legally provided, etc.

There is probably no doubt but that library boards in general would be willing to provide this service. The question is: how many citizens would be interested in studying about their government in this manner.

FRIEND IN NEED

Eugene Courtney has resigned as manager of the First National bank in The Dalles. That news is going to bring a moment of sadness to the club boys and girls of this section, and not only to them but also to the club boys and girls of eight or ten years ago who obtained their start through the aid of Mr. Courtney. Times were pretty tough then and parental aid for the purchase of club calves was not always easy to get. But Courtney took all club calf loans, helped the boy buy his calf, watched him through the year and rejoiced with him when the calf was sold and the note paid.

The clubber not only received new knowledge about stock feeding but obtained some information about business dealings. As results have shown both experiences have been valuable. We hope that when the club banquet is held this fall that Mr. Courtney be invited to come again and visit with his boys and girls despite the fact he will not be losing the money hereafter.

MOVIE MANIPULATION

It is unfortunate that the senate is investigating the motion picture industry because of its supposed opposition to the axis. There isn't much that can be done about it if it is anti-axis, or should be done. Had it not been for some very fine political manipulation the motion picture industry would have been before several committees long before now because of its business practices. The good political sense of some one in the industry to hire top flight politicians has undoubtedly saved its booking system for many years after it is known to be a monopoly.

There is Will Hays, who has held a good job with the fickers for a long time. There is James Roosevelt, who was certainly hired more for his connections than for his executive ability and now there is Wendell Willkie, whose political position is better known than his ability as an attorney. But there is a saving phase of the problem: the picture magnates have begun to wonder what is the matter with them, themselves. Which likely means that they are unable to fool the people despite the fact they have fooled the people's government all these years.

TAXES

Between now and sometime in early March the citizen who has to pay an income tax will have plenty to worry about. Not that everyone won't have enough worries, but the income tax payer will have the added job of figuring out how much the government wants as its share of his pay. Really the figures of taxes to be levied against American incomes do not look too large. A man who makes $2,000 a year and has two dependents will have to pay $54. That doesn't seem like a great

In Other Days

From the Observer Sept. 26, 1902. A company made up of N. W. Thompson, R. J. Ginn and W. H. Moore has been incorporated to manufacture and sell the Thompson Harrow Jack.

Best Sherman county farmers agree that the yield this year will be about 25 bushels to the acre. Joe Ornduff of Biglow finished heading Friday and Herin Brothers have pulled in their machine and are hauling wheat.

James T. Belchee has added an elegant new surrey to the Moro Blue Barn. We have it engaged for a visit to our DeMoss friends next week.

From the Observer, Sept. 27, 1912. Herman Pape has bought the Wilmer Cooper farm of 1311 acres at $48,000. Wilmer took a 38 acre farm of Herman's situate in Washington county at $15,000. Both well pleased.

A large party of Morosites left on a special train to see the Pendleton Round-Up this week. L. V. Moore and George Hennagiu made a joint shipment of stock to the Portland markets this week. Fifty one hogs brought $8.75 per 100 and 11 head of spring lambs brought $6.00 which was above the market.

Hans Thompson was a disappointed man this week when he had to go to hauling straw while the hired man went to Pendleton. The Sherman county fair will be held October 10, 11, 12. From the Observer, Sept. 29, 1922. Fred Hennagin has bought the Locust Grove farm, known as the Woodworth place from Herbert Root.

A. H. Barnum left Monday with his herd of Herefords to exhibit at the state fair from where he will go to San Francisco, for the California National Livestock exposition. He will then return to the Pacific International at Portland. Virgil Cushman has moved to Gilliam county where he has rented a farm near Condon. The shortage of water in the city mains was relieved somewhat by use of the new city deep well pump equipped with an individual electric motor, pump jack and air compressor.

Carrots Good For What Ails Ya', Say Experts

The so-called lowly carrot of yesterday has moved to the head of the parade today as a vegetable almost second to none in the scientific appraisal of nutrition specialists, says Miss Lucy Case, extension nutritionist at Oregon State college. Today's carrot is about all anyone could ask of any vegetable as it tastes good, has an attractive color, has a high food value and, in Oregon at least, is available fresh from the garden all year, she says. Carrots rate high nutritionally because they are a good source of carotene, a substance which human beings can change to vitamin A in their bodies. In fact, carotene is what gives carrots their attractive bright orange color. In general, the deeper the color of the carrot, the better the source of vitamin A it is.

Because vitamin A is such an important item in a good diet, and because both yellow and green leafy vegetables are good sources of carotene, nutritionists recommend at least one serving a day of these vegetables. Carrots and other green and yellow colored vegetables are on the list of "protective foods." Besides the vitamin A they contain, carrots also are a good source of calcium, riboflavin, B1 and C vitamins.

"The carrot is a regular vegetable of all trades in the kitchen," says Miss Case. "It goes into stews, pot roasts, soups, chowder, vegetable combinations of all sorts, and even into mock pumpkin pies, pickles, and preserves."
