WOMEN AND THE WAR

The long awaited order restricting women's styles is here at last and proves to be very mild. Mrs. America won't look very different after all. A little less fullness in her skirts, a little less length to her jackets, no French cuffs on her sleeves. It's doubtful whether men will notice the difference at all—except that lines will be slightly more figure revealing.

You are going to miss certain of your favorite canned soups. A new tin order prohibits tin for canning all except certain specified varieties. The range is still wide, but if your favorite was black or cream of mushroom, you won't find it on the list. Fish chowders, chicken, and a wide variety of vegetable soups will still be available, although many cans may be larger than usual. Also, a greater amount of tin is being allowed for packaging soups which acquire the addition of water, rather than those which come "ready to serve."

have been hoarding first aid materials. Perhaps unintentionally you have been et on a number of household articles such as radios, phonographs, cooking and heating stoves, washing and ironing machines and vacuum cleaners—and many more are coming! Government regulations say that a tag must appear on each article clearly stating the maximum price which may be charged.

UNION PACIFIC

RAILROAD CROSSING

STOP ON RED SIGNAL

You, too, can help!

Now—more than ever before—those railroad warning signs should be rigidly observed, night and day. A fleet of powerful Union Pacific locomotives are hauling precious cargoes over the Strategic Middle Route, connecting the East with the West.

Rolling over the rails are shipments of materials for armament plants, trainloads of troops and supplies. They must go through without delay. America's welfare—and your welfare—are at stake. Please, then, be extremely careful when approaching railroad crossings. In that way—you, too, can help.

For information concerning passenger and freight transportation, consult local representative.
