Labor Scarce For Farm Work

Although shortages of farm labor continue because of wartime conditions, united community action is meeting the problem in most sections of the state, according to the weekly agricultural report of the US employment service prepared under State Director L. C. Stoll.

About half of the reported short ages of 7,641 workers came from the cane berry fields of Multnomah, Clackamas, Linn and Yamhill counties, but the peak of this picking is expected to be passed this week. Cherry picking with fasted labor needs of a thousand also is near the end.

Hay and grain fields could use about 1600 additional workers with the most acute demand between The Dalles and Pendleton. About 200 more pea harvesters and 400 in tomato fields also could find work in the latter district, while the Ontario area wants more than 500 sugar beet laborers.

Community action, already successful in saving many acres of beets, berries and other crops, is expected to get its most severe test when the pole bean harvest gets under way in Lane and Marion counties in mid-August, shortly before hop, prune and pear picking and in the midst of much other activity. Organized transportation, part time closing of stores and offices and recruiting of women and children from long recent listings are measures now being planned.

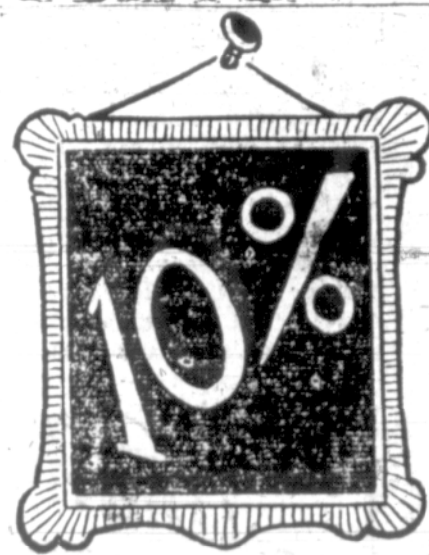

An analysis of June placement figures from 22 local offices showed 16,434 verified farm jobs, of which 8220 were filled by those under 18. Boys outnumbered girls 4244 to 3976, while men also were in the majority, 5546 to 2658.

A breakdown of workers sent to farms listed 12,605 from nearby communities, 3092 from other places in Oregon and 3030 from outside the state.

Non agricultural placements for June were 12,241 with 5527 from the Portland district, 1322 from Klamath Falls and 1097 from Pendleton. In farm jobs, Ontario, The Dalles and Salem followed Portland.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The 75-millimeter gun is a divisional weapon used by the Artillery as an anti-tank gun. It has been replaced to some extent by the modern "105", known as the heaviest of divisional weapons. The 75-mm gun costs $12,000 and has been converted by our Ordnance into a "blaster" twice as efficient as in the first World War.

This gun gets maximum power for minimum weight and cost, and the American people are providing the finance through the purchase of War Bonds. If you do your share and invest 10 per cent of your income in War Bonds, adequate supply of this efficient gun can be assured our fighting forces. Buy War Bonds every pay day.

DESSERTS COOL AND AIRY

Ice cream isn't what it was a century ago. In the good old American way it has become easier and easier to make. The newest idea, however, is not to make your own but to remodel it. This may be the lazy woman's way, the busy woman's way or just the ingenious woman's—but whichever it is, it produces very satisfactory results. Nuts, fruits and flavors of all kind may be stirred into store ice cream and put in the refrigerator.

Whether you prefer your ice cream from a freezer or a mechanical refrigerator or from the milkman or the corner store, serve it often. Ice cream is an easily digested substantial food and is suitable for family meals. The regular use of ice cream is one excellent way to include milk in the diets of both children and adults. In addition to being a good food, ice cream is also a comparatively low-calorie dessert. Plain ice cream may be enjoyed with less rigorous reducing diets because it is relatively low in calories and high in building and protective substances.

Add dash to your summer menu with a milk sherbet. Here is a recipe that doesn't use sugar and is a delicious dessert.

Apricot Honey Sherbet
1 cup apricot puree from No 2 can apricots. 2 tbsp honey
Few grains salt
2 cups milk
Blend the apricot puree salt and milk. Add honey. Freeze in refrigerator, stirring well every half hour. Serves 4.

This is a suggestion for remodeling ready made ice cream into something different and delicious—and it's so easy to put together.

Macaroon Ice Cream Loaf
1 pint chocolate ice cream
1 pint vanilla ice cream
2 cups macaroon crumbs
Crumble macaroon crumbs and place in a shallow pan. Toast crumbs in 250 degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes and cool. Line refrigerator tray with waxed paper letting paper extend over sides of tray. Put chocolate ice cream in bottom of tray; sprinkle macaroon crumbs over top. Put vanilla ice cream on top cover with waxed paper and return to freezing compartment for 1 to 2 hours. Slice in inch slices. Serve 6.

Are you entitled to wear a "target" lapel button? You are if you are investing at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day. It's your badge of patriotism.

Paratroops Boast First Jumping Chaplain

CHAPLAIN RAYMOND S. HALL

Parachute troops at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia, boast of a literal "sky pilot." He is Chaplain Raymond S. Hall, former rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, Lowell, Mass., and the Army's first jumping chaplain.

Chaplain Hall is a quiet, husky young man inclined to regard his present assignment as the happy working of fate. When he was first assigned to Benning, there was no regulation requiring chaplains to jump. Chaplain Hall soon fixed that. After a week of talking to the men he applied for permission to take the gruelling five-week training course. He found it rough. It had been more than ten years since Chaplain Hall was captain of Brown University swimming team and a member of the All-American swimmers, and life in the rectory had not prepared him for the enthusiastic body-bending a parachutist must perform in training. Today, as a qualified parachutist, he looks forward to each jump with zest. He also speaks with modest satisfaction of the men's reaction to his jumping. "It inspired attendance at church," he says.
