Canned Goods To Be Upped

OPA's new price regulation on canned fruits and berries will pass on to Mrs. America enough of an increase only to cover the actual raw material and labor costs to canners over the expense of packing such products in 1941. That means a raise of from 15 to 25 percent in cost to the consumer. Canned fruits and berries and the nectars and juices which are covered include apricots, sour cherries, sweet cherries, figs, clingstone and free stone peaches, blue black, boysen, cran, goose, huckle straw, young and black and red raspberries.

Look for increased dehydration of foods for Lend-Lease requirements and our armed forces. Production facilities will be expanded so that for example, 60,000,000 lb of meat are expected to be processed in this way this year. Dehydrated meat occupies about one-third the volume and weighs one-fourth as much as raw lean meat. Dried whole milk requires about one-tenth the space of fresh milk and weighs about one-eighth of the original product. Ten pounds of fresh vegetables will weigh about one pound when dehydrated, and among the vegetables to be treated this way are potatoes, onions, carrots, beets, sweet potatoes and cabbage. The process should be of help in meeting the problems of providing food for the armed forces and for Lend-Lease because a greater quantity can be shipped in less space.

NEW D2S AVAILABLE!

If your work is vital to our war effort, it may be that you are eligible, under a recent War Production Board ruling, to take delivery of a new 24-hp 'Caterpillar' Diesel Tractor.

Check with us for full particulars. We will gladly survey your power needs and help you fill out proper forms and present them to the War Board.
