THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"I've been meanin' to ask you for the last couple of weeks, Judge, what yod think of this prohibition talk that keeps croppin' up every so often."

"I've heard some of it 'too, Henry, and I feel like this about it..."

"It comes from a comparatively small group of reformers... the same type that plunged us into prohibition during the last war. And, as we all remember, into nearly 14 years of the worst crime and gangsterism this country has ever known. Everybody had all the liquor they wanted only it came from bootleggers at exorbitant prices and the government was deprived of millions and millions of dollars in taxes."

"It seems to me, as I told my Congressman down in Washington last week, that we've got all we can do here at home to help win this war without wasting time arguing about things we know, from sad experience, won't work."

Conference of Alcoholic Beverage Industries, Inc.

IT'S always been the American way to herald Easter by blossoming forth in attractive clothes. There's no reason to change the custom now: even though many costumes may not make their "debut" in the Easter parade, but shall have already appeared on previous spring scenes. They can be worn with even more pride this Easter Sunday because in the name of Victory, they have been "made to do."

THIS war-time Easter, American women are buying only what they need... and putting extra money into War Bonds that will bring a fighting man home sooner. And the fashions they do buy represent the best in Yankee skill and ingenuity... are even more exciting than in previous years, and are made on the firm basis of quality and durability.

THERE are many smart wearables to meet with the purse-thrifty, eye-pleasing ways of fashion-wise women... but it's best to buy them early, to save often untrained salespeople from the added burden of a late-shopping rush. You'll find a galaxy of flattering costumes here, waiting to be carried home... to lend charm and versatility to coming spring days and nights... and to garner orchids of compliments in the Easter parade.
