Your "Caterpillar" Dealer Says Avoid Tractor Old Age By Proper Care

"Caterpillar" built tractors have earned a world-wide reputation for their willingness and ability to stand up under long hours of hard work. Like the human body, these tractors will prematurely show signs of old age if they are denied proper care. To extend the trouble-free, economic life of your "Caterpillar" Diesel, lubricate and maintain it properly and avoid overloading. Follow the instruction book carefully and consult our service department for help and advice.

How About YOUR Victory Garden?

This young man already has a good crop of early onions to add to the family food supply. In 1943 it's patriotic for YOU to have a Victory Garden too. Start NOW. Food will WIN the WAR.

Wm. Nisbet read Mrs. Augusta Royce's paper on Oregon's Conservation of Natural Resources. Mrs. Pardy Rich gave a very interesting travelogue of their trip to New Brunswick and West Virginia several years ago. Refreshments of cup cakes, tea and coffee were served.

Mrs. Robert Collins and sister, Jessie Knox were weekenders in Portland.

Certificates of War Necessity Still Needed

Farmers who are now applying for a certificate of war necessity for gasoline must send in an itemized list of their trips, mileage and gasoline used in the first quarter and an estimate of similar needs for the second quarter. Otherwise their applications cannot be acted upon by the ration board which must have this information, it was stated this week by the county agent.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

After that Western thriller at the movies, Ben Ryder says: "You know, the West wasn't all like that. While the gun-play was goin' on - respectable folks were weeding out undesirable elements... red-eye saloons and gambling joints."

And Ben's right. There's a spirit in America that's always working for a better community. Take that "clean up or close-up" program of the brewing industry, for instance. Its whole purpose is to see that beer is sold only in clean, respectable places.

Everybody benefits from cooperation like that—even folks who want Prohibition back. Because those beer folks are working for the same thing—a decent, law-abiding community.

From where I sit—the way isn't to pass more laws, but to enforce the ones we've got—and rely on America's spirit of tolerance and cooperation.

The Coast is No "Summer Resort" for your Electric Service

One of a series of twelve advertisements about the men who manage PP&L business in Oregon and Washington

● When storms thunder along the coast you'll find our men working hardest—running new lines around wash-outs, clearing away fallen trees, anchoring a cable on some wind-swept point. In spite of every precaution, the "big blows" mean trouble. And when service can't be rerouted, the lines have to be fixed.

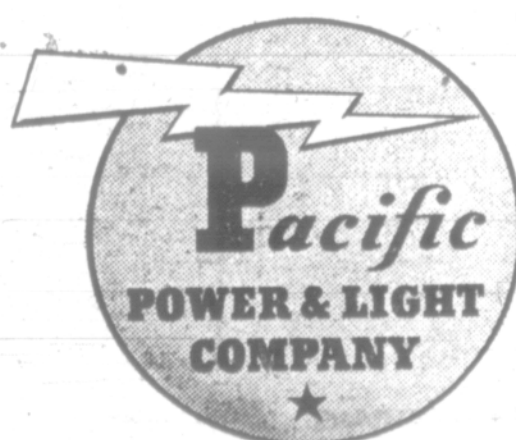

This job of maintaining the vital flow of electricity, year in and year out, is one of the biggest responsibilities of every power company in the country. It puts the biggest premium on common sense, and teamwork, and the backing of experienced men who can handle the job under any condition.

That's the kind of organization our men have been building up for years—an organization made up of all twelve PP&L districts, working together on their own and each other's problems. In fact, it is the basis of PP&L's over-all service record—one of the reasons why our more than 90,000 customers last year were able to use 570,000,000 KWH of electricity—why residential rates are 43% below the nation's average.

● The Seaside region is known far and wide as one of the Northwest's most inviting and popular vacation spots. But, only in recent years has this district enjoyed the stability that comes from having a high percentage of permanent residents. New developments, new activities, today make Seaside a busy place the year around. In the same way, the stability that results from the widely diversified activities of all 12 PP&L operating districts make for a rugged, dependable electric system. Because PP&L serves a complete cross-section of the great Columbia Basin, users all over the system have their electric service protected against local adversities. Through the years they have found benefits of this business-managed system operation consistently reflected in lower rates.

MITCHELL C. THORN (left) District Manager at Seaside since 1931, started in with PP&L 22 years ago as a laborer; worked his way up as lineman, service man, local agent and chief clerk to become Manager at Pomeroy, where he served two years before assuming present responsibilities. "Mitch" has been highly active in Civilian Defense; has been appointed by the Governor as State Lighting Consultant for Seaside area.
