MORO SCHOOL NOTES

The Senior Dance which was held April 16 at Grass Valley was well attended. The auditorium was decorated with red, white and blue streamers, which added a patriotic motif, as well as carrying out the colors of the class. Music was furnished by the DeMoss Melodiers.

Last Friday at an all school assembly, the school wound up the campaign to buy a jeep by auctioning off all unclaimed articles turned in during the school year. Herman Ziegler acted as auctioneer and Mr. Hollinshead, clerk. Bidding was spirited, and when totals were added it was found that $346.06 had been pledged, which amount was given to the bidders in stamps or bonds. The grand total received in the campaign is $2700, which will buy three jeeps. Moro students are justly proud of this number, and appreciate the cooperation of parents which made this possible.

On May 7 a musical program will be held at the Moro school. As there is to be no county music festival, this is to be Moro schools contribution to music week. Various organizations of the community, as well as the school, will take part in the program, which is to be, "SONGS AND DANCES OF MANY LANDS." Both the high school and grade-school bands will play. Next week the complete program will be announced.

Next Friday "SPRING FEVER" will hit Moro full force, when the Junior class present their annual play, full of comedy, college romance, and embarrassing situations. In short, "Spring Fever" is full of laughs for young and old. Reserved seats for this production may be had by calling the school.

The Senior Class are happy this week-- the end of high school study is in sight, for announcements have arrived, giving May 25 as the date for graduation.

The show "Hold Back The Dawn" is to be presented tonight (Friday) in the school gym. This picture stars Charles Boyer and Paulette Goddard.

HI-WAYS TO HEALTH by ADA R. MAYNE OREGON DAIRY COUNCIL

We suppose you have discovered by now what real fun it can be to plan and shop for your meal without dipping into your ration book. Turning away from the packed shelves of canned goods or the well-filled frozen food locker wasn't easy, we'll grant, but there really is no more interesting part of a market than the fresh fruit and vegetable section once you have exposed yourself to it. And especially is this so right now. At least a recent trip through a market revealed all sorts of interesting green stuff spinach, kale, escarole, dandelion greens, turnip greens, beet greens, mustard greens, broccoli, Swiss chard collards, curly chicory, parsley, watercress. We bought some spinach and found it especially tender and sweet.

Now that you have your family liking fresh vegetables, are you sure that you are giving them the full benefit? Even if vegetables are fresh and crisp when you buy them, some of their precious vitamins will escape unless you take proper precaution. As soon as you bring vegetables home from the market, rinse them and put in the vegetable container in your refrigerator and keep them there until cooked or served. You don't want vitamins vanishing from them right in your kitchen. It can happen and they won't show it. So cook only enough for each meal and cook quickly, only until tender-crisp, for overcooking increases vitamin losses.

As each new vegetable appears on the market you welcome it with delight and cook it first with only the simplest season. But ter always points up the delicate flavor in vegetables, but since you won't be able to have as much as you have been used to make your share of butter go farther by putting it directly on the vegetables to make the flavor count.

The right way to cook raw spinach is to first remove roots, tough stems and wilted leaves, then wash several times in cold water until all sand is removed, and drain slightly. Cook 8-10 minutes in a covered saucepan, turning spinach once during cooking. Season with butter, salt and pepper. Creamed spinach is something to write home about. If you have never tried it here is a favorite recipe:

- Creamed Spinach
1 1-2 pounds spinach
2 tsp butter
1 onion, sliced
1 cup milk
2 tsp bread crumbs
1-2 tsp salt, 1-8 tsp pepper.
Dash nutmeg.
Wash spinach thoroughly. Cook without additional water, until tender. Drain and chop fine. Melt butter, add onion and brown. Then add remaining ingredients and spinach and cook together 5 minutes. Serves 6.

PRICES SET ON ONION AND SPUDS
Maximum prices on dry onions and white potatoes of the late 1942 crop for sale during May and June will be 10 cents above those for the same commodities during the month of April, the office of price administration said today in announcing a move designed to spread available supplies evenly over the next three months. In the absence of this adjustment the higher April price would have encouraged growers to sell as much as possible of their supply during that month. The amendment became effective April 8. Retail sales, which are under a fixed mark-up regulation, will reflect the increases in the prices charged the domestic consumer. At the same time, OPA emphasized, the action should mean more even distribution of the available supplies of potatoes and onions.

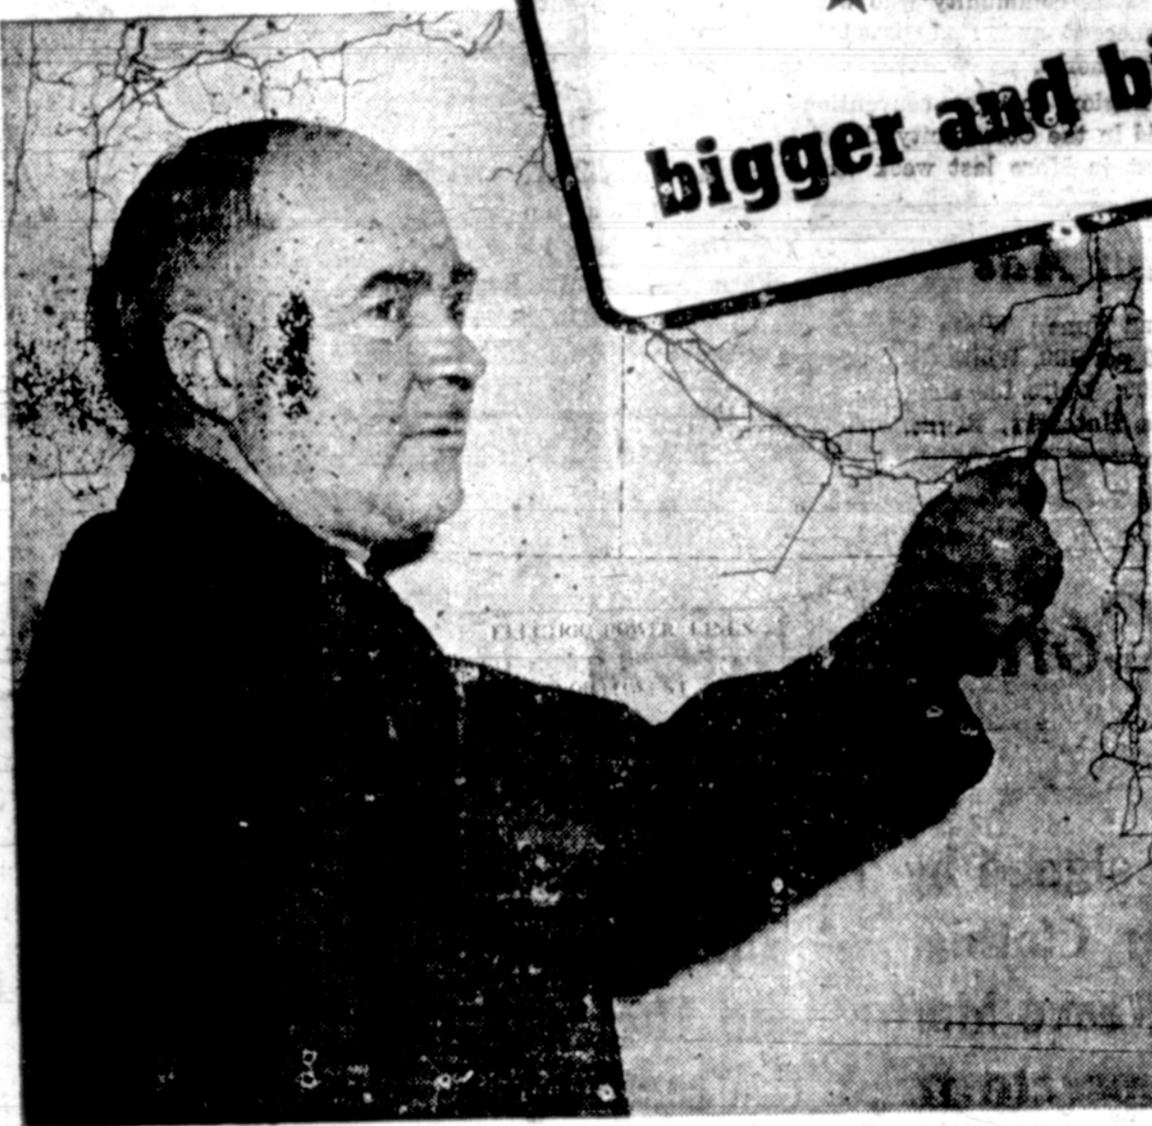

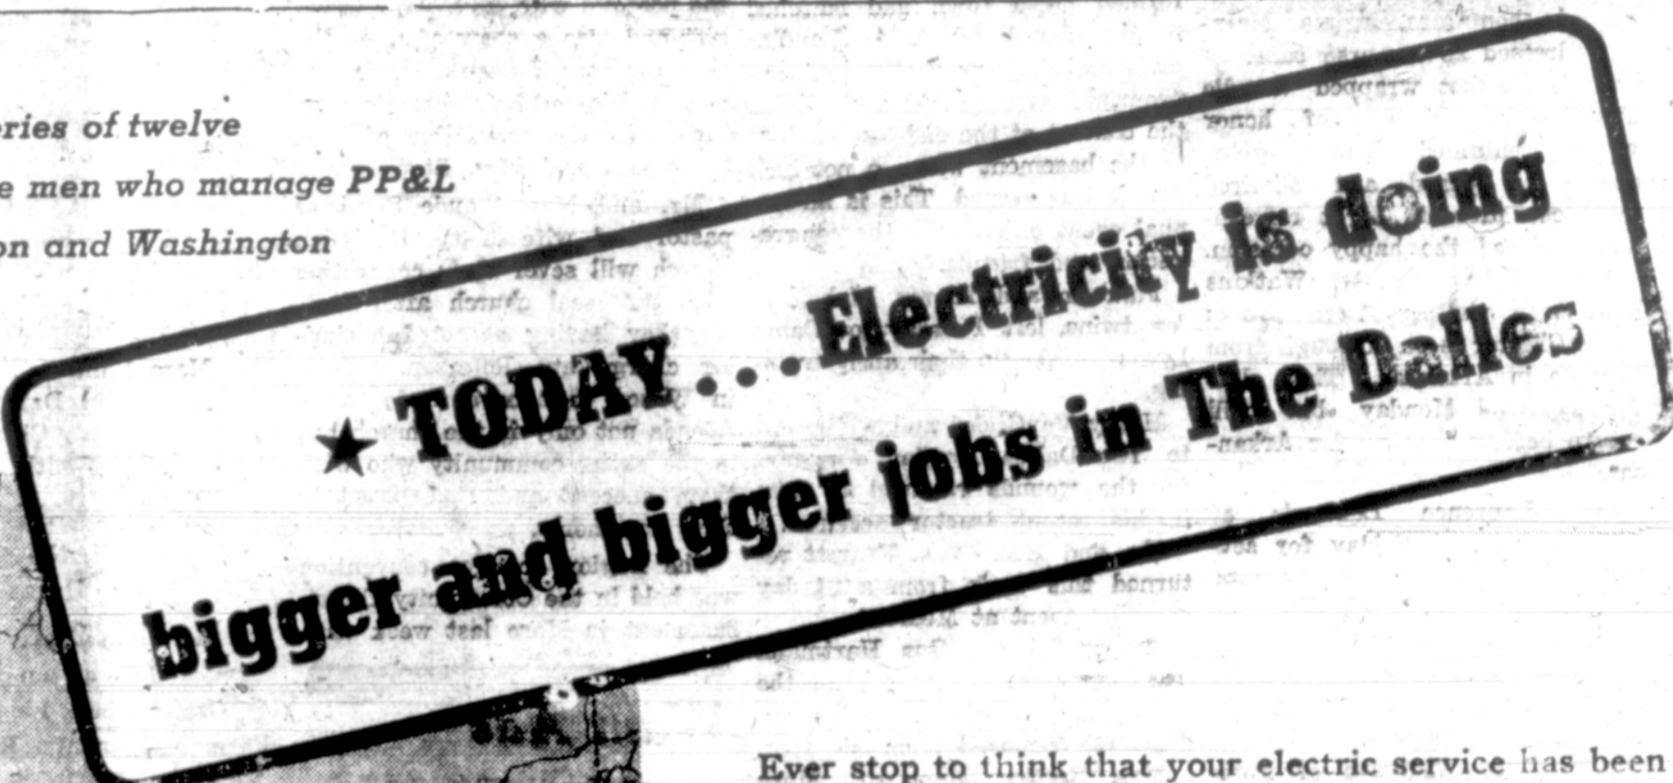

DEPENDABILITY

In these times more than usual it is important to have a dependable grocer-- In wartime prices and quality and even quantities are subject to change.

Quality here will be good, prices will be fair and quantities what is allowed.

One of a series of twelve advertisements about the men who manage PP&L business in Oregon and Washington

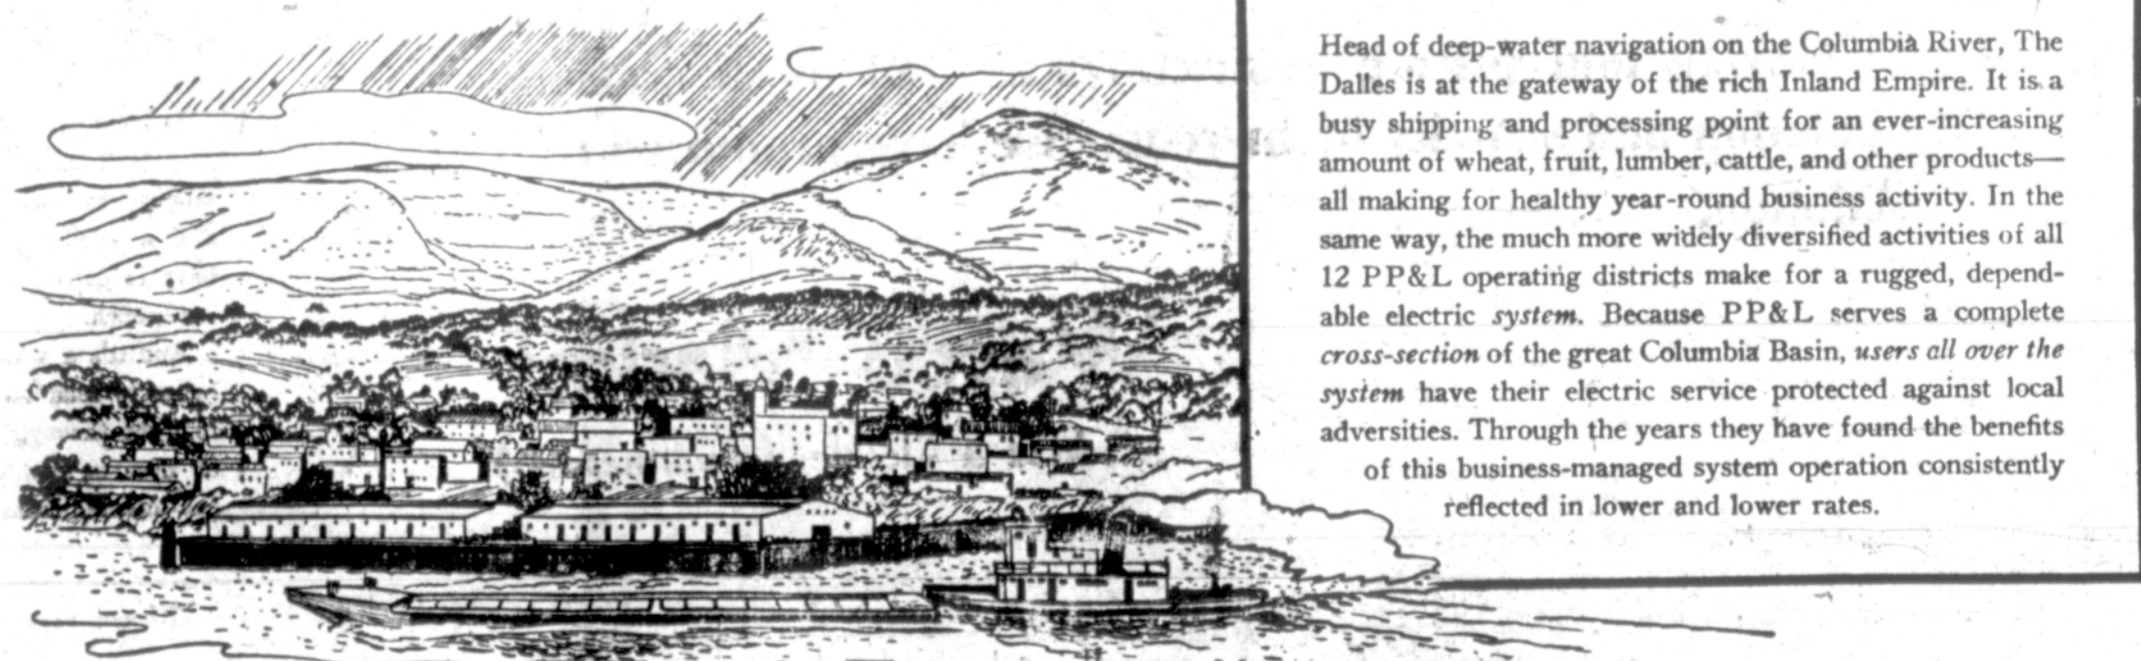

GLENN L. COREY, District Manager at The Dalles since 1925, points out a section of the transmission network linking together 150 generating plants now cooperating in the Northwest Power Pool. Glenn is a graduate of Oregon State and started in with PP&L right after World War I, in which he served as 2nd Lieutenant with the 57th Field Artillery. He learned the business from the ground up--meter reader, clerk, operator at the old Hood River power plant; District Manager at Seaside, Toppenish, The Dalles. The Corey family includes 3 daughters, and 2 sons-in-law, both in the armed forces.

Ever stop to think that your electric service has been on a 24-hour shift for years and years? That's just one of the things our District Managers have to think about.

It's one of the reasons why the electric business-- all over America--long ago outgrew the stage where one community or one district, could adequately handle its own power needs.

Today, for example, the line that runs to your home is an integral part of a carefully planned network of feeder lines, transmission lines, and the thousands of local circuits that make up the PP&L system.

Because we have this system--with its veteran organization of trained people--behind your service, you seldom know when emergencies arise. But, there's another advantage that's easy to see--for system-efficiency means economy. And that's one of the reasons why PP&L residential rates are now 43% below the national average!

Head of deep-water navigation on the Columbia River, The Dalles is at the gateway of the rich Inland Empire. It is a busy shipping and processing point for an ever-increasing amount of wheat, fruit, lumber, cattle, and other products--all making for healthy year-round business activity. In the same way, the much more widely diversified activities of all 12 PP&L operating districts make for a rugged, dependable electric system. Because PP&L serves a complete cross-section of the great Columbia Basin, users all over the system have their electric service protected against local adversities. Through the years they have found the benefits of this business-managed system operation consistently reflected in lower and lower rates.
