New Farm Account Book Out

A new farm account book, more simple, even though less complete, than the standard Oregon book now in use, has just been designed by the farm management department at Oregon State college and published by the extension service.

The new book is suitable for use by any farmer in keeping accounts of cash receipts and disbursements such as are necessary in making out income tax returns on the cash basis. It is not intended to replace the older and more complete book, but will provide a means for more farmers to keep accounts while devoting a minimum of time to such work, says Curtis Mumford, head of the farm management department.

Lowering of exemptions on the federal income tax to the point where all who have as little as $1200 in cash receipts annually must file a return has increased greatly the demand for farm records, says Prof. Mumford. While it is estimated that up to this year not more than 10 percent of Oregon farmers have kept book accounts acceptable for income tax records, many times that number are now required to make returns even though exemptions may eliminate the necessity for making actual tax payment.

With this new account book, every non-essential for tax records has been eliminated, while instructions have been included which are easy to understand and follow. One of these books started now can be filled in with a record of earlier transactions this year and will thus, by the end of the year, provide an authentic record on which to figure future tax obligations.

Experience has shown, said Mumford, that those farmers who have accurate records usually save on taxes, as they are much more likely to forget scattered expenses than they are income, which is usually received in relatively larger amounts.

These blank account books will be sold at the usual price of 25 cents each and may be obtained from county agents.

DEPENDABILITY

In these times more than usual it is important to have a dependable grocer—In wartime prices and quality and even quantities are subject to change.

Quality here will be good, prices will be fair and quantities what is allowed.

Half-Effort Will Not Defeat Japan

By JOSEPH C. GREW
United States Ambassador to Japan until the outbreak of war, and author of "Report From Tokio."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In describing one of the big air battles over Guadalcanal a recent newspaper account tells of an American flyer who parachuted from his crippled plane to the waters of Lunga Bay. The Navy craft which picked him up next went to the rescue of a Japanese pilot seen struggling in the water nearby. As the rescue boat reached the Japanese flyer he suddenly pulled out his revolver, aimed it at the drenched American pilot and pulled the trigger. The cartridge failed to explode. Then the Japanese officer turned the gun on himself with suicidal intent. Again he pulled the trigger and again his revolver failed him. At this point an American sailor knocked him out with a boat hook and pulled him aboard the American craft a prisoner.

Almost daily one reads eye-witness stories such as this one, and all of them clearly demonstrate that war with our enemy in the Pacific cannot end in compromise. For ten years I lived in Japan. The truth as I know it from close observation is this: Nothing less than the exertion of our maximum capacities, individually and collectively, in a war of offense will bring our beloved country safely to the longed-for haven of victorious peace. The Japanese are pawns of a senseless but mighty militarism—

JOSEPH C. GREW
Says It's Fight to Finish

...ally we can continue to lead our normal lives, leaving the spirit of self-sacrifice to our soldiers and sailors, we shall unquestionably run the risk of a stalemate with Japan. I do not have the slightest doubt of our eventual victory. But I do not wish to see the period of our blood, sweat and tears indefinitely and unnecessarily prolonged. We must not fail to realize that we are up against a powerful fighting machine, a people whose morale cannot be broken even by successive defeats and untold economic hardship, a people who gladly sacrifice their lives for their Emperor and their nation. We must also remember that Japan did not start this war without carefully laid military plans for victory over the United States and a peace dictated by their war lords at the White House.

This is a total war, the only answer to which is a total American victory. It is a war in which half measures of any kind mean incredible waste of material, energy and human life. In this sense a half-filled War Savings Stamp album is symbolic of half-effort. There are, I am told, roughly 100 million partially complete War Stamp albums now in circulation. These uncompleted stamp albums are, in a measure, like a 100 million threats to a speedy and victorious peace. On the other hand, for every War Savings album completed and cashed in for a Bond, you the owner have helped some soldier or sailor take a forward step on the uphill road to total victory. (U. S. and stir constantly until the custard coats the spoon. Remove at once and cool; then add vanilla or small amount of spice to flavor Honey Tapioca Cream:

- 1-3 cup quick-cooking tapioca
- 1-3 cup honey
- 1-4 tsp salt
- Zeggs, separated
- 4 cups milk, scalded
- 1-2 tsp orange extract or 2 tsp grated orange peel

Combine tapioca, honey, salt and slightly beaten egg yolks in top of double boiler. Add milk slowly, mixing thoroughly. Cook over boiling water until tapioca is transparent—10 to 12 minutes stirring often. Remove from heat and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Add extract or grated peel. Serve warm or cold, with cream.

There are many foods that do not require precious coupons from your ration book. Among these, eggs milk rate as protective foods because they are a source of important vitamins and minerals needed to safe guard health.

The season for more abundant eggs is ahead. However, if you must cut down because of price let the children have most of the eggs, 4 or 5 weekly for each child and 2 or 3 for each adult.

Every homemaker knows that milk tops the list in the nutrition yardstick and it is easy to include the quart of milk daily for each child and pint for each adult. It isn't necessary to drink this amount. It can be used otherwise.

Dessert should always be planned as a nutritious part of each meal—one more way to slip in the daily quota of milk and eggs—and our advice is to make the most of it. Some favorites are custard poured over left over cake or cookies; and the whole family of bread, rice and custard puddings which use more milk per serving than most other foods.

If dispositions at the dinner table are gloomy and life seems to be made up mostly of wet umbrellas, add a cheering dessert to your menu tomorrow. Use a soft custard for topping in place of the usual whipped cream. You'll find it will add a dash in the way of flavor and appearance that will please the family.

Customers must not only be told of good things to buy, but how to buy them in these hectic war days.

The store that makes it easy for customers to buy will not only make more sales, but more important, will make more friends for the time to come when that will be paramount.

That is one reason why wise businesses, large and small, are advertising now---to prepare for the time when customers are hard to get.

Conditions then will be much different than now when it is merchandise that is hard to get.

They put their best foot forward, advertise their best quality or service. Such a policy will bear fruit when it is most needed.
