H. M. Stephens Dies While Hunting

News accounts Monday told of the sudden death of H. M. Stephens while on a hunting trip in the Steens mountain country. He was reported to have shot a buck which fell over a small cliff. He called to his wife to bring up his horse and died from a heart attack as she came up.

Mr. Stephens was formerly a liquidator of the Bank of Moro and Bank of Commerce at Wasco during which time he lived in Moro. He was a director of the First National Bank of The Dalles prior to that and had moved to that town from Bend where he was in the same business.

He is survived by his wife, Elsie. He was a partner in the Stephens-Staples company which sold motor cars and repaired them.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express the thanks of the DeMoss school board and my own personal thanks to the men who put out the fire that endangered the DeMoss school house last week.

John DeMoss
