LAKE COUNTY PLUM MAY BE DISTRIBUTED

The possibility of introducing the wild plum of Klamath and Lake counties into the higher elevations of Umatilla, Wallows, Union, Baker, and other eastern Oregon counties where the climate is too severe for common varieties is suggested by O. T. McWhorter, extension horticulturist at Oregon State college.

This red wild plum is listed as Prunus subcordata in official books on plums, but up to the present time it has existed almost entirely in the wild state with very limited attempts at growing it under cultivation.

An unusual feature of these plums is that they are freestone rather than clingstone as are practically all other native wild plums. They have foliage closely resembling the European type plums, from which most of the domestic varieties come, while the fruit is somewhat oval in shape like apricots.

They vary greatly in size, with some strains as large as a small Italian prune. Unless completely ripe they have an astringency which gives preserves and butters made from them a distinctive flavor much sought after.

ARMY-NAVY TEST FOR STUDENTS

The next qualifying test for the Army specialized training program and the Navy college program will be given in high schools and colleges, Tuesday, November 9, according to the War Department. The test is open to male graduates and high school seniors in their last semester who will reach their seventeenth birthday but not their twenty-second birthday by March 1, 1944. The test will provide an opportunity for these men to qualify for college training in studies for which the Army and Navy have vital needs. Graduates of the program will serve as specialists, technicians, and officers in the Armed Forces.

Eisenhowers Endorse USO Campaign

From opposite sides of the world, the Eisenhower brothers, one of them a general, the other a college president join the backers of the National War Fund and its seventeen war-related agencies for which 6,000 campaigns are now under way, uniting appeals for military and foreign services with local welfare agencies.

General Dwight "Ike" Eisenhower, commanding the Allied forces in North Africa and Italy, has transmitted the following message through military channels: "Delighted to endorse National War Fund campaign and to extend best wishes for complete success."

His brother, M. S. Eisenhower, president of Kansas State College had this to say about the National War Fund's appeal:

"Our taxes and our funds invested in war bonds go to the Federal Government to finance strictly official war needs. But there are other, vital human needs in war. I have seen some of them. In North Africa I saw refugees from France, Poland, and the low countries, Yugoslavia, who had fled from their homes to escape Nazi tyranny. They preferred even homelessness and starvation to Nazi oppression. And what I saw does not, I know, match the indescribable situation in China and elsewhere. We in Kansas, all of us, can help by contributing to the National War Fund."

"Sure, I remember how much land was worth in the last war, but I also remember how little it was worth and what happened afterwards. Land is worth a lot of farmers."

WFA GIVES FEEDING SUGGESTIONS

To make the Nation's supply of livestock feed produce the maximum amount of food, the War Food Administration says hogs should be marketed at lighter weights than during the past two years and 1944 Spring farrowing should be held substantially below that of last Spring. These measures will be necessary, WFA says, if livestock numbers and feed supply are to be held in balance. WFA urges very best use of roughage and pasture for sheep and cattle. In general, WFA points out, if feeders hold down the weights to which they feed their meat animals, they'll get maximum output of meat per pound of feed used. To conserve feed, WFA recommends heavy culling of range herds.

If your car has hypoid gears, pressures against gear teeth sometimes skyrocket to thousands of pounds per square inch. That's potential trouble if you haven't a gear lubricant built to take those pressures. Each type of transmission and differential requires a special lubricant, designed for its particular problems. Save trouble, repair bills—ask your Standard Man which of these you should use:

RPM GEAR LUBRICANT (COMPOUNDED)

For all transmissions and differentials (hypoids excepted) . . . minimizes wear, resists sludging, foaming, corrosion.

RPM GEAR OIL

For truck transmissions and rear axles that require an uncompounded gear oil . . . built for extra hard duty, resists foaming.

RPM HYPOID LUBRICANTS

Special grades for trucks and cars . . . specially compounded for extreme hypoid pressures. Specify whether you want passenger car or truck type Hypoid Lubricant.

ZEROLINE GEAR OIL

A straight mineral oil for lubrication of gears that do not require an extreme-pressure type of lubricant.
