CROSSING THE SNAKE

Again the Trail left the river and continued in a northwesterly direction. One of the well known spots on the overland trail was Hot Springs, located about ten miles northeast of the present Mountain Home, Idaho. Some of the travelers said that it was hot enough to boil a fish or scald a hog without either hog or fish or which to try it out.

It was a dreary drive of many miles through the sagebrush until their eyes were gladdened by the welcome greenery along the Boise river, which was reached about six miles southeast of the Boise of today, then along the stream past the present Caldwell, Idaho. Boise river was once called Reed's river, in honor of John Reed, who worked for the American Fur company. He was killed by the Snake Indians somewhere on the stream in the winter of 1813-14. The French voyageurs called it the Boise, or Wooded river. Its wooded banks offered a welcome change after traveling hundreds of miles over treeless plains and hills. The spelling and pronunciation changed to the present Boise when the Americans came.

It was September 10th when the wagons came to a halt at Fort Boise, the Hudson Bay trading post, where the travelers were welcomed by jovial Francis Payette, veteran employee of the company. Payette made their brief visit at the fort a pleasant one, staging a dance for the benefit of the travel-worn emigrants, who cast away their cares as they danced to the tuneful music of fiddle, banjo and accordion.

It was at Boise, that the second crossing of the Snake occurred. The crossing was made without exciting incident or serious accident.

WINES

WORK WONDERS....WITH LOW RATION POINT FOODS

Wine not only improves flavor—it alters the texture and tenderizes tough, stringy meats. Try marinating (soaking) cheaper low-point cuts of meat for a few hours in red or white wine—they'll be tender and delicious. And every smart housewife can find hundreds of ways to high-point her low-point dishes.

Two Thrifty Suggestions:

BEAN CASSEROLE WITH SHERRY WINE
War-time Recipe—Cut 2 strips bacon fine and fry crisp, or melt 4 tbsps. meat fryings; add 1 chopped onion and brown. Add 2 tbsps. brown sugar or molasses, 1/3 cup catsup, 1/2 cup California Sherry wine. Mix in 4 cups drained cooked lima, kidney or navy beans. Bake 1 hour at 350° F. Serves 4 to 6. And you'll find that small glasses of the same Sherry makes grand prelude to the dinner.

KIDNEY SAUTE WITH BURGUNDY
War-time Recipe—Slice 1 lb. kidneys (2 veal, 3 pork, or 5 lamb) removing white tubes. Soak in cold salted water 15 minutes. Fry 1 chopped onion in 2 tbsps. margarine or oil until limp. Add drained kidneys and brown well. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and 2 tbsps. flour; brown lightly, stirring. Add 1/2 cup Burgundy wine and 1/2 cup water; cook, stirring, until smooth. Cover and simmer 10 to 15 minutes or until kidneys are tender. Serves 3 or 4. Try it tonight—and serve the same good Burgundy at the dinner.
