ANOTHER WAY THE

PACIFIC NORTHWEST IS HELPING THE FIGHTING FORCES...

THEY'RE MASHED with BROWN GRAVY
Thanks to the American miracle of dehydration!

Their table may be an oil can or a busted ammunition case—but there's no question about the food. It's the real American, home-grown variety... and this year, more and more of it is going from right here in Washington and Oregon.

Potatoes are just one good example:

In spite of labor shortage, the acreage for this crop was almost doubled in the last year. Dehydration plants have been enlarged, too, ready for their job of reducing each 100-pound sack to a cargo-saving tin of only 15 pounds.

Yes, fighting food is all-important right now. The growers and processors are doing their jobs; it's up to all of us to give them all the help we can!

Low-cost PP&L electricity is doing its part on more than 12,500 farms, and in scores of packing and processing plants that have grown up throughout the territory we serve. For 33 busy years of Pacific Northwest progress, it has been our job to have power ready to serve each new agricultural industry as it was developed... and to help find more ways to cut production costs by putting cheap and dependable electricity to work!
