Their Battles 80 Years Apart

U. S. Marine Corps Photo
Eighty years separate the dates of battles in which Theodore A. Penland, 89, of Portland, Ore., and his grandson, Pfc. Floyd M. Penland, 24, of Waynesboro, Va., fought. When the elder Penland heard that his grandson, a U. S. Marine wounded at Tarawa, was in a hospital, he boarded a plane to visit the youth. The Civil War veteran's father was killed at Bull Run.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"That's really a great editorial you just read to us, Judge. Where did you say it appeared?"
"In 'The Stars and Stripes'... the newspaper of the U.S. Armed Forces in Europe. Kind of gives us folks back home something to think about, doesn't it, Bill?"
"It certainly does, Judge. Particularly the last paragraph. Would you mind reading that again?"
"Glad to, Bill. It says, 'We can remember the days of prohibition, when moonshine whiskey made quick fortunes for bootleggers, crooked politicians and dishonest police officials. As a result, we claim we know what we want in the way of liquor legislation and feel those at home should wait until we return before initiating further legislation on liquor control."

"Out of fairness to our boys over there fighting, Judge, how could we disobey such a wish?"
