Leatherneck Washing Machine

U. S. Marine Corps Photo
Laundry problems on Pacific outposts are not as difficult as one might expect. An example of Leatherneck ingenuity is demonstrated above by Corp. Billy G. Alexander of Amarillo, Tex. The clothes are placed in the half-barrel, with soap and water, and the plunger does the work. When an especially good job is desired, a fire is built under the barrel. The power? Oh, yes, propulsion is supplied by a hand-made whiffmill.

Now life has no more surprises — In Durban, South Africa, a man was able to get himself a wife by paying her dad $88 in hard cash plus seven cows. So what? So, into the Office of the Price Controller there appeared a man who protested that his prospective father-in-law had jacked up the price to $128 in hard cash. The P-I-L explained that increased cost of living made it necessary for him to boost his price. The Controller allowed as how the problem was beyond his province.

On the Road to Talasea

Action by Leatherneck machine-gunners during the fight for Talasea, New Britain, is pictured in a pencil sketch by Marine Second Lieutenant Kenneth B. Bald of Mount Vernon, N. Y., showing leading a unit following the invasion. Known for his two comic strips, "Captain Marvel" and "The Shadow," Lieutenant Bald led a machine-gun unit in this action. Central figure in the sketch is Pfc. Clayton C. McAndrew of Newport, Ky. Pfc. Todd J. Buchmiller of Salem, N. J., is at his left and Pfc. Michael Cordons of New Brunswick, N. J., is at the right.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The more I read about it, Judge, the more I realize the tactics and requirements of this war are as different from the one I fought in 25 years ago as night is from day."
"Yes, and I can give you an example of how true that is, Fred. In World War I the chief uses of alcohol produced for war purposes were found in smokeless powder, medical supplies and chemical warfare materials. In this war the need for this product is far more vital because it is also used as a fuel to propel torpedoes, to make shatterproof glass for airplane windshields and instrument covers, to make lacquers used in camouflaging equipment and as a base for synthetic rubber needed for tires, gas masks, paratroop equipment and dozens of other things."
"Every time I think of it, Fred, I realize how fortunate we were in having a beverage distilling industry in existence when war broke out... ready and eager to convert 100% to the production of this critically needed war product. I'm mighty sure bootleggers wouldn't have been of much help."

Who will be your best friend after the war?

ONE OF THE BEST friends a man can have both these days and after the war, is a nice little piece of paper.

A crisp green-and-white paper that 10 years hence is going to bring in an extra dollar for every three you put in now.

A piece of paper that can help bring you comfort, peace of mind, security. A War Bond.

That's why, when times are good, and you're making a little extra money, you should collect as many of those pieces of paper as you possibly can. Common sense will tell you that you can't collect too many.

So buy War Bonds. Keep on buying more and more War Bonds. Hang onto them—don't be tempted to cash them in. For after the war you'll have some mighty fine friends in your fistful of War Bonds!
