What Every Woman Ought to Know...

about her Family's Winter Food Supply!

● (And how to make sure of plenty... of the best!) Here are a few questions and answers that will be of interest to every homemaker in Oregon and Washington.

- QUESTION: First of all, will there be more—or less—commercially canned food available for civilians this winter?
ANSWER: Less. In fact, it has been estimated by the War Food Administration that there will be less than last year.
- QUESTION: Did the ending of the war in Europe ease the food situation?
ANSWER: No. The armed forces still need more than ever before. Remember, they must have food that can be shipped and won't spoil.
- QUESTION: What happens to us civilians? What will we get all the canned vegetables and fruits we need this winter?
ANSWER: Home canning will have to supply most of them.
- QUESTION: Isn't it being optimistic to expect home canners to supply so much food?
ANSWER: Not if you know American women! Last year half the canned vegetables and two-thirds of the canned fruits that civilians ate were home canned.
- QUESTION: It's all very well to want to can—but isn't it a rather tough proposition for the average woman to undertake?
ANSWER: It's actually easier than you think! And this year, canning equipment will be more plentiful.
- QUESTION: Will there be enough pressure canners?
ANSWER: There have been more pressure canners manufactured this year, and they aren't rationed.
- QUESTION: Suppose I can't buy a pressure canner—or even borrow one?
ANSWER: Your local newspaper may be able to direct you to a community canning center.
- QUESTION: The $64 question: Sugar?
ANSWER: Your local War Price and Rationing board will allow extra sugar needed for canning up to 10 pounds per person. And remember, home economics experts from the staffs of national women's magazines and city newspapers stand ready to help with special sugar-saving canning recipes. Consult them for this extra wartime help!
- QUESTION: Say, it does look as if home canning might be more important this year. But what do I can?
ANSWER: The excess from your Victory Garden, Or fresh vegetables and fruits in season. Northwest crops—with a few minor exceptions—are bountiful this year! (Can all you can—nutrition standards call for at least four and, if possible, six to seven servings of fruits and vegetables every day.)
- QUESTION: All right, you've definitely interested me in home canning. But...I'm not quite up on my canning technique. What do I do?
ANSWER: Easy! City, state and federal agencies are standing by to help you. Women's pages of your local newspapers will prove a tremendous help throughout the canning season. The Home Economics department of your state agricultural college will dispense the latest tested procedures. And the U. S. Department of Agriculture will be glad to send you numerous helpful bulletins! Your bookstore can supply you easy-to-read volumes on canning... or you can read the same information at the nearest public library.

Here's a Great Feature of PP&L's New Low Rate for Homes and Farms!

No matter where you live on the PP&L system—in a city home or on one of the 13,000 farms served by this progressive Company—you now have available this new "all-purpose" rate that gives you tractor performance at wheelbarrow cost!

After the first 125 KWH you use any month in your home or on your farm, PP&L's "all-purpose" rate drops to only 1½ cents per kilowatt-hour for the next 125 KWH. Then it drops sharply again—down to only 6/10th of a cent per kilowatt-hour for the next 600 KWH. That means the 600 KWH block costs only $3.60! Think what you can do with all those kilowatt-hours when you really put electricity to work.

Start planning right now to get that electric range, that automatic water heater, and all the other labor-saving, comfort-giving electrical appliances that are now on the production lines.
