TRANSITION
 Some of the early fair pictures show long rows of horses held by proud owners, groups of cattle and many buggies containing the beribboned gentry of the county. That was in the days when field work was done with horses and only a few farmers had grass enough to keep cattle, and when transportation was also by horse. The fair program consisted of trotting races in those days and these races carried over from one year to another and the competition was keen.

The advent of the tractor has changed the county fair as it has changed so many aspects of living in Sherman county. This year there are to be no draft horse prizes at the county fair, no surging six horse teams to prance around the arena. What work horses remain in the county are kept for sentimental reasons or for show purposes and probably less than a hundred acres were plowed with horses. Instead of keeping horses farmers have gone into cattle and following their usual custom of wanting the best, they have purchased stock of several breeds, of a quality to rival the fine horses that made the county famous among horse buyers thirty years ago.

Nowdays the only horses shown are a bunch of slim legged animals in fancy saddles. They have their uses but it is principally for pleasure and not utility. They are a luxury item on most farms. Years ago before the rodeo business became organized there was little bucking at the fairs although some one often brought in a few horses to see if the neighbor boys could ride as well as they boasted. Now the rodeo is like a show, peopled by professionals with wide reputations who contest with horses with reputations for meanness in several states.

Our taste in entertainment has changed but still the county fair draws crowds because it meets the demand. Folks get together, admire the stock, discuss the races at the buckers, laugh at the clown and have a good time being together. Humans are really gregarious animals who enjoy being with each other and the county fair gives them an opportunity to do that in good surroundings.

Now then let's all go to the county fair!!!

GENERAL MARTIN
 Yesterday in Portland General Charles H. Martin was laid to rest, a short week before he would have reached his 83 birthday. He had been congressman and governor but the habits, mental and physical of his military training were so strong that he remained a general throughout his political career.

For those who like their public officials determined and positive General Martin was perfect. He knew what he wanted and took the direct route to the desired end. His fair for the sipper and stronger words was well known and he made them meaningful with vehemence. He made his decisions quickly and stayed with them resolutely. There was about him no element of compromise with his convictions. He stood for the principles of early America without amendment by the new deal of his own party. His bright, blue eyes never twinkled with more fire than when he was condemning those who wanted the government to take over the responsibilities the American system gave to the individual.

He was well loved and well hated. And surely those who hated him, and finally defeated him, respected his determination and vigor.

What this country needs is a sucker's strike. Exchange This is a heck of a time to have the wind start to blow.

In Other Days

From the Observer, Sept. 27, 1907
 G. F. Guinther will sack 350 sacks of potatoes from a plot of ground 2 rods less than two acres. They are a new variety, known as the red hill yam.

Ladies free to the wrestling match Saturday evening. The wrestling will be done in full uniform tights. Time called at 9 o'clock. Order is guaranteed by those in charge. I am paying 60c per roll for butter and 25c per dozen for eggs today. W. F. Schuller, Moro.

Grass Valley Journal
 September 28, 1917
 A number of boys are making their $3.50 per day, we learn, at Harry Key's farm, assisting in harvesting his 52 acres of beans. Mr. Key may receive for this crop at present prices something over $4000.00.

G. C. Scheurer and family left Monday for The Dalles to remain this winter. Mr. Scheurer will be in the men's department of the Pease & company store. Shelby Dugger and Charlie Lane have left for California, making the trip in a Ford and expect to remain during the winter. Shelby will try that climate with hopes of benefitting his health.

SET YOUR SIGHTS

It takes planning to achieve a goal

Some young men know what they want and plan for it. Others are still looking for their niche. The new Regular Army can help both. Perhaps you want to go to college but can't afford it. If you enlist in the Army, you'll get your chance. Honorably discharged after a three-year enlistment, you are eligible for 48 months of education at any college, trade, or business school for which you can qualify. The Government will pay your tuition, laboratory fees, etc., up to $500 per ordinary school year, plus $65 a month living allowance—$90 a month if you have dependents. If you haven't found your spot, an Army enlistment offers you training in any of 200 trades and skills. You leave the service eligible for further training at the best civilian schools. You can assure yourself of the benefits of the GI Bill of Rights if you enter the Army on or before October 5, 1946. See your nearest Army Recruiting Station for details.

HIGHLIGHTS OF REGULAR ARMY ENLISTMENT

- Enlistments for 1 1/2, 2 or 3 years. (1-year enlistments permitted for men now in the Army with 6 or more months of service.)
- Enlistment age from 18 to 34 years inclusive (17 with parents' consent) except for men now in Army, who may reenlist at any age, and former service men depending on length of service.
- A reenlistment bonus of $50 for each year of active service since such bonus was last paid, or since last entry into service, provided reenlistment is within 3 months after last honorable discharge.
- A furlough for men who reenlist within 30 days. Full details of other furlough privileges can be obtained from Recruiting Offices.
- Mustering-out pay (based upon length of service) to all men who are discharged to enlist or reenlist.
- Option to retire at half pay for the rest of your life after 20 years' service—increasing to three-quarters pay after 30 years' service. All previous active federal military service counts toward retirement.
- Choice of branch of service and overseas theater (of those still open) on 3-year enlistments.
