LIQUOR BY THE DRINK

We do not expect the liquor by the glass bill to get very far. If it does it will surely bring local option votes in several places in Oregon and eventually such liberalization of the liquor laws are what causes prohibition.

In the "good old days" saloon keepers paid $1000 licenses even in small towns. Yet this bill would let them operate for $500 although the state would get a rake-off on the price of whiskey.

Ordinarily the more places open for the sale of liquor the more people will drink it and with less supervision. There seems a legitimate complaint from travelers who must buy a whole bottle when they want less and are used to buying by the glass. The undoubted benefits of our Knox law are so great however, that our visitors will not be much the worse for trying it.

People can now be as convivial as they please in their own homes which is really a better place for it than some public bar.

COLUMBIA TO CALIFORNIA

The proposal to take waters of the Columbia river and shove them over the hills of southern Oregon so they could water the parched lands of California received something of a boost from Senator Barkley last Sunday when he stopped in Portland.

To Oregonians the proposal is as silly as some of the other flamboyant ideas that hatch in the feverish brains of our southern neighbors. The cost would have to be paid out of the profits from agricultural products grown with the water or from electricity made with it. We could help pay, of course, if we ate oranges or used electricity.

It sounds so outrageous as to be utterly fantastic. The distance would be several hundred miles and the water would have to be raised almost a mile high. There is fertile soil in Oregon that might well be dampened before any such undertaking was considered.

But one might remember that it is not safe for a small state to be scornful at the ambitions of a large one. Such things are handled by politics now that the new deal has made it so and California has many more votes than Oregon will ever have. Reason, cost practability, good sense will all be secondary if it comes to a contest of political power within the federal government. Sovereignity over rivers is vested in the federal government nowdays.

This might result in Californians opposing further development of the Columbia or a contest over water between western states that will make them easy marks for easterners intent on keeping the east the center of production.

STATE TREASURER

There are two candidates for state treasurer. They differ very greatly in personality and attitudes toward government.

Howard Belton is a farmer near Canby and it is a big farm and well managed. Belton is ruggedly honest and a great digger after the facts, persistent in getting them. He has served long in the legislature with a consistently conservative and moral viewpoint. He serves on the union high school board and in other capacities in local affairs.

Belton isn't imaginative, nor flighty. He's down to earth and common sense. He is an exemplary family man. Perhaps it could be said this way. If both were living in Sherman county and both were well known to all there is no question but that Belton would be elected.

These days if you see a short haired and short skirted woman walking own the street, she's a grandmother.

At last newspapers are putting quote marks around the word "liberal" when using it as an adjective applied to a public figure. So many of our highly vaunted "liberals" have advocated measures that reduced the liberty of the people that the word was meaningless. A "liberal" is one who desires more liberty, more freedom for the individual, not one who would restrict the people by laws.

NO OLD AMERICA

In the presidential campaign now going on no one is expressing the philosophy that was taught in the history books thirty years ago and labeled the American creed.

The theory that the function of government was to govern and that every man should be entirely responsible for his own living and that of his family and that private industry should be permitted, yea encouraged, to develop the resources of the nation is either dead or sleeping.

Perhaps we shall never see a candidate for prominent office who will espouse such a program. Both candidates favor a further boost in minimum wages by the government, continued development by the government of power and irrigation, increased old age benefits, more social security. All of these make the government grow stronger and the people grow weaker.

While we quarrel with Russia we make our own government more powerful and more like that of the Soviets every day. We speak for democracy and work for totalitarian principles.

When governments get too big the people oppose them and work for the right to express themselves as individuals. It was less than 200 years ago when this swing became important and revolutions have been overturning rulers ever since until recently. Now it appears that the pendulum has started to swing the other way and all over the world people are demanding "strong" governments and a promise of security. They want something on which to lean for the job of depending on themselves is too much for them.

Revolutions on behalf of freedom were fairly easy a few years ago, but with new armaments, new means of communication, better government secret services it will not be so easy again for the people to win their rights from oppressive governments.

GEORGE NEUNER

Lawyers and laymen alike sometimes disagree with the opinions of George Neuner, attorney general for Oregon, who is a candidate for re-election, but all agree that he is a man of integrity and honesty, without taint of connection with Oregon's small but active underworld.

Neuner should be chosen. He works hard at his job and has some capable assistants. The enforcement part of the office will not become lax under his management.

HOW TO GET AWAY

Scientists have taken pictures of the earth from a distance of 70 miles and have found that it is really round and has the same sort of a curve figured from less accurate data. It was done with rockets.

Most of us have wanted, at times, to get away from it all, to leave the desk or the farm or the shop and get clear away. One use that these rockets may have —and the only one known to us —is to make it possible to really get away.

From a heighth of 70 miles almost any part of the earth would probably look good. The farm nn which one had toiled until his back was weak, the shop that had grown burdensome and this battered old typewriter would be pleasant thoughts to one so far away he could see a segment of the earth's rim.

It wouldn't take two to four weeks to get ready to go back to work. The next day would seem too late.

In Other Days

From the Observer Oct. 25, 1929

C. A. Binder broke a bone in his right wrist last week when trying to crank his Ford car.

L. H. Nahouse and family left Thursday morning for Maupin where they are visiting a sister of Mrs Nahouse.

Joe Gregg left for his home in Tennessee Monday. He has been here all summer visiting his sister Mrs J. H. Wilson and other relatives.

From the G. V. J. Oct. 24, 1919

Fred Messinger has bought the Sommers residence property and Fred Baylock has bought the residence in the northern part of the city, recently vacated by Mike Olsen.

John Conroy came in Wednesday afternoon from out south with eleven hundred head of lambs bought recently at Antelope.

Henry Pape has lumber delivered for his new residence five miles north of Grass Valley. The new structure, we learn, will cost near five thousand dollars.

From the Observer, Oct. 22, 1909

Mrs Cora Isenburg of Hood River is the guest of her sister, Mrs George Hennagin.

L. L. Peetz is in Portland with a car load of Berkshire hogs.

Roy Axtell has completed repairs at Mrs Slater's residence property in this city and is now fixing up the City Market in an attractive manner.

Born to Mr and Mrs C. D. O'Leary October 10 a daughter.

Friends of Mrs Nellie Hulse will be pleased to learn she is now rapidly recovering her health at home in this city.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

I'm Glad We're "Different!"

There's a lot of difference of opinion in our county on the best kind of pasture. Some say alfalfa mixed with brome grass others say mixed with oats or barley. But all agree that a mixture's better than a single crop.

I sometimes think people are the same way—and the strength of America is its mixture of so many different strains—some from one country, some from another—right down to little differences: like folks who have a taste for beer and those who prefer cider.

From where I sit, so long as we never become intolerant of one another's different tastes—so long as we live together with our differences, and even supplement them the way brome grass does alfalfa, then we're a mighty good crop!

So neighbor—enjoy your cider while I enjoy my beer! Vote for your candidate—I'll stand by mine! But never let our differences divide us!

Joe Marsh
