HOW MANY COAST JOBS WERE BORN

Pacific Telephone's construction program has made work for countless thousands and added to the West's postwar prosperity

1. When you see telephone cable on its way to work, you're watching the West benefit in two important ways. It means new voice highways for the West... more telephones... better service. It also means jobs and paychecks for the men who make the cable, those who install it and, later on, those who maintain it. And putting in new cable is just a small part of our building program.

2. Hundreds of new buildings mean work for carpenters, bricklayers—and work for those who provide the materials. They mean future jobs for telephone people. Since the war, we've put half a billion dollars to work in new construction. Much of it has found its way in ever-widening circles into the economy of practically every city and town in the West.

3. More business for the baker, the druggist, the clothier—telephone construction has given the West a big postwar lift. There's no way, of course, to trace all the jobs created by just one mile of cable... or one building. But it would probably be hard to find a family whose income has not benefited, in some way, from the money we've spent to provide more service.

4. It all adds up—this tremendous building program—to a better West for all of us. It is being paid for by thousands of investors who have provided the millions of new working dollars that make the job possible. Result: More telephones... better service. Yet a few pennies still buy a telephone call—one of your real values today.
