Not for dumbbells!

Each time this newspaper comes out it pays a compliment to your intelligence. It is not published for dumbbells.

As are all American newspapers, this one is published for people like you who are smart enough to run households and businesses, to hold jobs and elect Presidents. People who can separate the wheat from the chaff in the day's news and come up with the right answers.

We are able to publish because you find in the newspaper the facts and opinions on which to base your thinking and shape your life.

The facts may be good or bad. Congress may veto a tax reduction. Rains may reduce the corn crop. How you react depends on your point of view. What you think is based on what you know.

Similarly, certain opinions may please. Others may displease. You approve the theories of one candidate for political office and deplore those of his opponent. You read both sides of a question and make your choice.

This newspaper prints all sorts of facts and all shades of opinion. It is our job to do so. Mixed with the news of weddings and wars and all the thousands of things about which you want to know are the views of legislators and educators, of labor leaders and businessmen, of conservatives and radicals.

There are those who oppose this kind of newspaper. To their thinking you should read a different kind—one that prints only the facts they want you to know—only the opinions they want you to believe.

Acting as committees with appealing titles, they are agitating for laws to limit publication of facts and opinions. They claim you cannot be trusted with all the news. What they mean is that, if they can keep you uninformed, they can steal your freedom.

Of course, they do not attack you directly. Their target is the newspaper. Because it is your main source of information they propose regulations to govern what the newspaper can print. They dress up their plans in noble sounding sentiments.

But it all comes down to the same thing. They know that if they can control what you read, they can control what you know. When they control your mind, they control you.

The real attack is against you. Newspapers are a sort of front line. Their stake in a free press is no greater than yours because their right to publish is tied in inseparably with your right to read. Just as long as you are free to know—you are free. When your sources of information go, your freedom goes with them.

Your right to know is the key to all your liberties
