Now Hospitals Are "Banks," Too!

Doc Simpson was saying, "Hospitals are building up 'bone banks' that work just like blood banks. When bone is needed, the surgeon takes one from a refrigerator, cuts it to the right shape and simply splices it in."

"You doctors are sure making progress," I says, "but tell me, are any of the patients fussy about whose bone they're getting?"

"No sir!" replies Doc. "No more than they worry about whose blood they get. No one yet asked for a bone from a man who went to the same school or church he did."

From where I sit, it would be a better world if we were half as willing to accept other people's ideas and tastes, as we seem to be willing to accept their bone and blood. There'll always be differences. Some like buttermilk, others would rather have a sparkling glass of temperate beer. But underneath we're pretty much the same, serving each other's respect and tolerance!

How America's first service station was born

One day back in 1907, a Standard of California man stood watching a line of impatient motorists in goggles and linen dusters waiting to buy five-gallon cans of gasoline at Standard's Seattle plant. He had an idea for serving customers more efficiently, more conveniently.

The next day a thirty-gallon tank which had been a kitchen water heater was installed opposite the main gate at the plant. To it were attached a valve-controlled hose and a glass gauge... so gas could be poured directly into the customers' cars.

That makeshift arrangement was the first service station in America.

Today there are more than 10,000 Company and Independent Dealer stations selling Standard of California products. The services and conveniences they offer... the
