UNEMPLOYED LIST GROWS

Unemployment in Oregon reached 94,000 on February 1, nearly 10,000 higher than a year ago and a new record for the state. In mid-February last year it was estimated that 93,000 were without jobs, but the official month-end tabulation dropped to 91,200.

Every one of Oregon's 26 employment offices reported increases from a month ago, when 69,000 unemployed were counted, but in nine areas the number was lower than a year ago when the state total was 84,050.

Oregon Youth Wins Sectional Honors in 4-H Dairy Production

Eugene Evers

Eugene Evers, 18, of Forest Grove, had the honor of being judged one of 10 sectional winners in the 1949 National 4-H Dairy Production program. He has been taking care of 30 dairy cattle in addition to his swine and sheep. A 4-H'er for 10 years, Eugene has shown a number of prize cattle, including grand champion Holsteins at County and State fairs. He placed first three times in showmanship, and as breed specialist at State fair was awarded a purebred Holstein calf. He also gave a number of demonstrations relating to dairy production.

Eugene was largely responsible for keeping the local 4-H Club together, and during the past two years increased membership from five to 20. He has organized a new 4-H dairy club of 18 members which he plans to lead. He enrolled in Oregon State Agricultural College last fall, and earnings from his dairy production project will pay part of his expenses.

Two Democrats File For Office

Howard Morgan, who represented Clackamas and Multnomah counties in the 1949 legislature, yesterday filed his candidacy for the Democratic nomination as State Labor Commissioner. Morgan is now a resident of Polk county, where he operates a farm. Formerly a member of organized labor (AF of L), his term in the legislature was distinguished by a voting record rated perfect by the Oregon State Grange on farm issues, and by both AF of L and CIO on labor issues.

Morgan is an overseas veteran of the recent war, serving four years as a naval officer with two years on duty in the combat areas of both the Atlantic and South Pacific. He is 36 years old, is a graduate of Reed college (economics), has been married ten years and has three children. He has had administrative as well as legislative experience in government. During the early months of the war he served in the executive office of the President in Washington, D. C.

Morgan has friends and supporters among businessmen as well as in labor and agriculture. The conservative "Oregon Voter" recently said of him, "—bitterly antagonistic to communists, his courage, ability and firmness in conviction are widely recognized, with result he frequently is mentioned as likely future contestant for democratic nomination for governor."

In filing his candidacy, Morgan expressed his determination, if elected, to overhaul the office of labor commissioner and restore its rightful importance to the people of the state; to enforce the laws under that office, especially Oregon's pioneering laws for the protection of women and children in industry; and to carry out the duties of the office in making detailed economic studies of the causes, extent and remedies for industrial unemployment in Oregon.

State Senator Vernon D. Bull, a LaGrande Democrat representing Union and Willowa counties in the legislature, announced yesterday that he will be a candidate for Congress from the Second District in the May primary. If nominated, Senator Bull will oppose the Republican congressman Lowell Stockman in November, if Stockman is re-named by the Republicans in May.

Senator Bull is a veteran of 14 years in the Oregon legislature.

In his statement this week Senator Bull emphasized that he is sharply opposite to the present Congressman on many issues, including those relating to agriculture, labor, public power and regional development. Bull supports the program of President Truman, including the CVA and farm support policies.

Senator Bull announced that his campaign committees in the 18 counties of the district are being set up, and that a vigorous drive will be conducted through the primary and election campaigns.

Senator Bull went to Washington last year to speak for CVA before the congressional committee on public works. He is chairman of the Intrim Committee on State Institutions of the 1949 legislature.

NO LAME DUCK CONGRESSMAN . . . Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., (D., N. Y.), on crutches because of injuries suffered in a fall from a horse, and his wife are en route from his office in Washington to the capitol to sit in on a recent session of congress. The accident prevented Roosevelt from attending the opening of the new session of the 81st congress, but he has recovered sufficiently from his fall to be able to attend the remainder of the meetings. This is his first term in the house.
