Southeast Asia Supplies Needs Of World That Rides On Rubber

NATURAL RUBBER COMES FROM HERE

Over 90% of all the rubber grown in the world comes from billions of rubber trees in Southeast Asia. On rubber depends modern travel and communication—including automobiles, trucks, planes, telephones and radios.

Recent events have turned the spotlight on Southeast Asia, stronghold of democracy in the East and the world's chief source of a raw material on which modern civilization depends—natural rubber.

A scant 70 years ago not a single rubber tree grew in this entire area, nearly as large as Europe. Today there are millions of acres of neat rows of high-yielding rubber trees which supply nearly all world needs for this elastic material. The United States alone used over 600,000 tons of it in 1949.

In addition to the large plantations or "estates," which are financed and managed by European and American companies, there are over 400,000 small one-family rubber farms in Malaya alone which supply a "cash crop" for native Malays, Chinese, and Indian growers.

A booklet called "Natural Rubber and You" has recently been published by the Natural Rubber Bureau, Dept. N200, 1631 K St., N.W., Washington 6, D.C. It shows in photographs how natural rubber is grown in Southeast Asia. You can obtain a free copy by writing the Bureau.
